HOOVER SLAMS 'PORK' RELIEF; ASKS NEW BILLS

If Revised May Give Aid to Chicago.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 24.—President Hoover today loosed a new barrage of criticism at the "pork barrel" sections of the two billion, three hundred million dollar Garner and Wagner relief bills. In a statement the President urged that the relief legislation be rewritten to eliminate the pork and to make possible larger relief loans to the communities hardest hit by the depression.

Revision of the bills along the lines suggested by the President would make possible the loaning of larger relief loans to Illinois and indirectly to Chicago. Some estimates tonight put the amount which Illinois would receive under a bill revised according to the Hoover plan at between $25,000,000 and $50,000,000, compared with the $18,500,000 which would be allocated to Illinois under the Wagner bill.

"Need," "Not Population."

The major attack of the President was directed at the federal public works sections of the two relief measures and the section of the Wagner bill providing 300 millions for relief loans to states to be divided on a basis of population. The President would have the loan divided according to the relief needs of the various communities. The Wagner bill carries one billion, five hundred millions for loans for non-federal construction projects, 500 millions for federal public works, such as public buildings, and 300 millions for relief loans.

The Garner bill has one billion, two hundred millions for public works, a billion for non-federal projects and 100 millions for destitute loans. The President denounced the public works sections as wasteful and of a pork barrel nature. He asserted that enactment into law of the relief bills as now written would unbalance the 1933 budget by possibly as much as one billion, three hundred million dollars, break down national credit and stability and, in the end, increase, rather than decrease unemployment.

Democrats Deny "Pork."

The injection of the Hoover statement into the chaotic federal relief situation stirred up criticism in Democratic ranks. Senator Robert F. Wagner [Dem., N. Y.], author of the Wagner bill, announced tonight he would answer the President on the senate floor tomorrow. Senator Joseph T. Robinson [Dem., Ark.], senate minority leader, immediately issued a statement denying that the Wagner bill was of a pork barrel nature.

The senate has passed the Wagner and the house the Garner bill. The conferees were appointed by each house today to iron out differences and report back a revised measure. Representative Henry T. Rainey [Dem., Ill.] said tonight that it would be possible for the conferees to turn out a new bill. Democratic leaders assert they will fight to the end against any move to eliminate the public works items.

President Hoover charged that the plan of dividing relief funds according to population represented a "pork barrel" operation which constituted an invitation to the states to dip into the federal treasury.

Hears Sargent's Plea.

The President's statement was issued a few hours after Fred Sargent, chairman of the Chicago citizens' committee on public expenditures, and Representative Fred A. Britten [Rep., Ill.] had called at the White House and urged Mr. Hoover to use his influence to have such a provision put in the relief bills.

The same plea was made to congress and the Reconstruction Finance corporation by Mayor Cermak when the Chicago delegation last Tuesday invaded Washington in search of a loan to pay back salaries to teachers and other employes and continue relief for 130,000 families.

Congressional supporters of the relief bills hesitated tonight to estimate the sum which Chicago might obtain on a basis of need. Senator Robert F. Wagner [Dem., N. Y.] said he had attempted to arrange for the distribution of the 300 million dollar fund according to need, but had found it could not be pushed through the senate. He favored the idea and added that steps would be taken to revise this section if it appeared feasible.

If the fund were divided according to need, a board, probably the Reconstruction Finance corporation board, would survey the country and decide what each state should have. The amount given Chicago would depend upon the case presented by that com-

AMELIA FLIES TO CITY; GIVEN NOISY OVATION

Aviatrix Is Cheered at Airport.

BY KATHLEEN McLAUGHLIN.

Slimmer than before, more famous than ever, Amelia Earhart skimmed into Chicago yesterday with her husband and fresh world laurels. The "gallant lady" of aviation, who dared the Atlantic by air a second time because she thought she hadn't earned her accolades for the first, wasn't flinching yesterday from the cameras as she did four years ago when Chicago whooped it up for a home town girl who blazed the feminine transoceanic trail. This time, she figured, she had shown 'em.

Fundamentally, she is still the same retiring youngster who dodged the graduation exercises years ago at Hyde Park High school. As she looked up and laughed and waved at the shouting crowd on the balconies of Curtiss-Reynolds airport as she stepped from her scarlet and white monoplane on the wide concrete runway it was less in exultation than in gratitude.

Escorted by Army Planes.

It was after all a long way from the fogbound, sleet lashed Atlantic night and the meadows of Londonderry to the streaming sunlight of yesterday afternoon, the smell of clover, the escorting fleet of eighteen army planes, and the cheering spectators. Amelia is no feminine Alexander looking for more skies to conquer. Her feat is no longer a novelty to her, and she was more pleased than thrilled by the acclaim.

Roaring out of the southeastern horizon shortly after 1 o'clock, the escorting squadron of planes heralded the arrival of America's premier aviatrix at the field. They circled once and dropped to earth, taxiing expertly into line in the center of the field. A smaller group accompanied the Earhart ship, which was painted to resemble a vast red and white eagle with spread wings. The eagle nosed past the others as the wheels touched ground and there was a rush toward the plane as the guest of honor was located. She is here as honor guest of the Washington bicentennial military tournament, which opened last night at Soldiers' field.

Amelia's Helen Morgan haircut would have identified her as she was handed out by her husband, George Palmer Putnam, had there been any possible doubt about the identity of the tall, slender girl in the smart tailored frock of navy cloth. There was a shout from the gallery. Amelia was "in" and the fun was on.

Talks About Her Name.

As quickly as she was settled in one corner of a gayly furnished balcony, when the hordes of picture takers had finished, she made it plain that she prefers to retain the name she made famous—professionally.

"Not that I'm rabid about it, at all, nor a Lucy Stoner," she said. "But I think women in aviation should have the same privileges as women who write—and my husband doesn't mind. For social purposes, I think Putnam's a grand name, though."

Other queries brought concise retorts in quick succession. She isn't going to quit flying and raise a family—there's no reason why she should when half the women who fly are married, and half the married ones have children, she argues. She doesn't believe her ocean hop contributed anything to aviation as a science, but she hopes to do it again in her lifetime. She made the flight this time to vindicate her original trip as a passenger.

Tells of Bad Weather.

"Experience counts for so much," she explained. "I knew from my first trip that in 2,000 miles one's bound to encounter some bad weather, and I took every possible precaution against it. I believe lack of experience accounted for some of the failures on other flights. I found the bad weather and got through it without minding—personally, I like it. Why? Well, it's just that it's a break in the trip. Flying gets pretty monotonous if everything is smooth sailing, and bad weather keeps you alert when otherwise you might drop off to sleep.

"Before I took off I figured that with the preparation I had made my chances were one in ten of getting across. No, I wouldn't do it again with the same equipment—there's no point to that. But I might if some new apparatus was developed that made it worth while.

"Women pilots, to get anywhere in aviation, will have to go through the

Siam's Army, Navy Revolt; King Seized

BANGKOK, Siam, June 24.—(AP)—One of the world's few remaining absolute monarchies toppled today when the army and navy of this picturesque land, combined as the new "People's party," suddenly revolted and set up a "constitutional monarchy."

The coup was almost bloodless. The army chief of staff was believed shot to death by his own men when he resisted their demands for surrender.

Most of the royal family were captured immediately by the soldiers and sailors who invaded the principal royal palace. Several government officials and cabinet officers were seized.

King Prajadhipok and Queen Rambai were captured at Huahin, where they were spending a holiday and held aboard a warship as prisoners. It was announced tonight the 35 year old king had accepted restriction of his absolute power and agreed to rule under a constitution.

Masses Take No Part.

The mass of the people apparently took no part in the movement, and the main city was quiet. In fact, the capital was taken completely by surprise when the uniformed lines poured into the city afoot and in army tanks. Many had machine guns. They marched on the palace and took over control, imprisoning designated high personages in their quarters there.

The army and navy leaders announced they intended to deliver the country from the government of princes, who hitherto have held almost a monopoly of high offices in the Siamese government. Most of them were educated in Europe.

Later some of the prisoners were reported to have been released, but other high officials and princes were still held prisoners in one of the royal palaces by troops.

Army Economies Blamed.

PARIS, June 24.—(AP)—The revolt in Siam was caused by sweeping economy measures put into effect during the last week by King Prajadhipok, the newspaper Le Matin will say tomorrow.

Numerous functionaries and officers of the army were dismissed because of this economy program, according to the newspaper.

KING FORCED MODERNISM.

The absolutism against which this morning's revolt was directed has, in the opinion of many European observers, been highly advantageous to the country, as under the guise of despotism many useful reforms have been introduced, including inland air mails, radiophone to Europe and magnificent automobile roads. King Prajadhipok recently to meet national financial stringency made a large contribution to the public revenue from his private purse.

The king is responsible to no one under present law and himself initiated the idea of selecting advisers in the cabinet and privy council, both of which bodies meet weekly.

While in the United States for an operation to remove a cataract from one of his eyes a year ago the king told interviewers he intended to set up a constitutional monarchy when his country was ready for it. He has introduced many western modernizations during his short rule.

He succeeded to the throne on the death of his brother, Rama VI., in 1925 and became the seventh monarch in the present dynasty.

Higher Taxes Imposed.

Economic conditions have been considered serious in Siam for some time. On April 25 a large group of poverty stricken farmers presented a petition to the government demanding loans.

In an effort to balance the budget heavy taxes were imposed on salaries and land which were reported to the state department to have caused much distress.

The overthrow of the Siamese monarchy recalled an ancient prophecy in Siam that no dynasty will last longer than 150 years. The nation celebrated the 150th anniversary or the Chakri dynasty in April.

Two Americans who have become Buddhist monks were among the foreigners in Bangkok when the revolt took place. They were L. A. Colborn and T. M. Ormsby, both formerly of Idaho.

WORLD TO PERISH IN 6 MONTHS, SAYS MYSTIC; VILLAGE IN TERROR

[Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.]

PORT OF SPAIN, Trinidad, June 24.—The world is doomed to destruction in the next six months by fire sweeping the earth, is the prophesy of a frail, bearded, Spanish mystic who descended suddenly to the inland village of St. Helena from the mountains.

Terror stricken villagers listened in awe to the pronouncement of the patriarchal mystic, as, with the detached air of an ascetic, he delivered the dire warning. The inhabitants, zealous Christians, have abandoned work and are devoting their time to prayer and meditation.

Meanwhile, the prophet has vanished to his lone retreat in the mountains. He said he fell in a trance in his youth and was granted powers to discern the mysteries of life. He forsook the world until this dramatic appearance. He asserted he receives telepathic messages from a dead sister.

Split in British Labor Parties Now Open Break

LONDON, June 24.—(AP)—The long strained affiliation between the Labor party of Great Britain and the Independent Labor party was broken tonight. The Independent Labor party decided at a conference to operate as an independent political group.

Rising Prices of Hogs Bring Hope to Farms

Farmers in the corn belt were yesterday encouraged by the news that for the twelfth consecutive trading day in midwest live stock markets prices of hogs have continued steadily to advance, with cattle prices following to a somewhat less extent.

At $4.50 per hundred pounds, hogs yesterday were selling in Chicago at 36 per cent more than the low prices of June, and both packers and commission men were predicting the upturn would continue. Cattle, too, sold higher yesterday. Best steers sold at $3.25 per hundredweight, compared with $7.65 last week.

In neither case have the advances been due entirely to shortage of supplies from the country, according to Charles E. Snyder, editor of the corn belt dailies, who points out that 85 per cent of the nation's corn crop is marketed as meat, along with thousands of acres of pasture and hay crops.

Meat, being a staple of first rank in times when people economize, has shown a steady gain in per capita consumption in recent months.

CLAIMS 2 STOLE GOLD IN TEETH TO SATISFY DEBT

New York, June 24.—[Special.]—Joseph Bernstein appeared in a police court today and lodged against Daniel and William Barats, Bronx shoe dealers, a complaint that on June 17 they took him forcibly from his home to a dentist's office, paid the dentist $3 to remove from his mouth two bridges—an upper and lower—together with two teeth to which the bridges were anchored, to "satisfy" an alleged debt of $50. The Barats brothers took the bridgework and the teeth, Bernstein swore, and on the way back to the Bronx robbed him of a new suit of clothes and turned him loose.

Magistrate Overton Harris held the Barats brothers in $1,000 bail each for examination on June 29.

Bernstein said the bridgework which the Barats brothers caused to be removed cost him $150 and the suit of clothes was worth $50 more. He did not set a valuation on the two perfectly good teeth to which the bridges were anchored and which the dentist extracted.

Children 16 years old or younger will be granted free admission and use of lockers at all city beaches and bathing pools on weekdays, it was voted yesterday by the city council on a motion of Ald. ROOSEVELT STEAM ROLLER WINS 2 SEAT CONTESTS Long Is Louisiana Victor; Minnesota to Governor.

Aided by the Roosevelt forces, to which he had pledged his delegation, Senator Huey P. Long, the Louisiana Kingfish, last night won twenty seats at the Democratic national convention for himself and his delegates. The vote of the national committee was 55 to 32 in favor of seating the Long delegation.

It was the second victory for the Roosevelt followers before the national committee. Earlier in the day the committee had voted, 71 to 14, to seat the Minnesota delegation of 24 headed by Einar Hoidale, also pledged to the New York governor. These two decisions gave to Roosevelt 44 votes which he had hitherto claimed but which were deemed somewhat uncertain pending the outcome of the contests.

Governor's Delegates Seated.

Late last night, the committee seated Porto Rico's regular delegates, six in number, all pledged to Roosevelt, and seated Dr. L. C. Mundy of Wilkes-Barre, Pa., a Roosevelt Democrat, whose place in the Pennsylvania delegation had been disputed by Peter J. McCormick. These additional seven votes made a total of 51 votes given to the New York governor by the national committee during the day.

The losing Louisiana delegation, led by former Gov. Jared Y. Sanders, announced that it would appeal the decision of the national committee to the credentials committee, which will be in action Monday afternoon. The Sanders delegation was unpledged.

The defeated Minnesota delegation was headed by John E. Regan. It also was unpledged, but had been regarded as being favorable to Smith.

Thrills in Louisiana Hearings.

The struggle of three opposing delegations for Louisiana's twenty places in the convention was marked by some astounding scenes. The national committeemen were alternately thrilled by impassioned oratory from former Gov. Sanders; convulsed with laughter at the antics and witticisms of Fernand Mouton, leader of the "burlesque" delegation put up by Senator Long; and appalled into silence as the Kingfish screeched himself into a frenzy that left him with popping eyes and frothing mouth.

Former Gov. Sanders' voice trembled with emotion as he voiced his plea in behalf of his delegation. Although the majority on the committee were against him, he was accorded loud cheers as he finished. He was visibly affected and walked to his seat unsteadily, supported by his followers.

Calls Long Traitor to Party.

"Senator Long has been a traitor to the Democratic party in Louisiana," he said. "Four years ago he brought a delegation to the Democratic convention at Houston which had been selected by his state central committee. He promised at that time that if allowed to take his place in the convention hall he would call a convention in 1932 to elect a legal delegation.

"Despite that promise, on Feb. 11

Al Smith Leading Fight for Two-Thirds Rule.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.

The Roosevelt steam roller steamed into the open yesterday and rolled right into a storm that threatens to work havoc to the party in the Democratic national convention next week.

The storm burst with the promulgation of the plan of the managers of the candidacy of Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York for the nomination for President to jam through the convention an abrogation of the century old two-thirds rule which would require 770 votes to nominate.

War to the Last Ditch.

Anti-Roosevelt leaders declared war to the last ditch on the move, some predicting that it presages the beginning of the end of the Roosevelt candidacy for the nomination, some serving notice of refusal to support a nominee chosen by less than two-thirds of the convention, some warning of party revolt producing a third party and all agreeing it promises a convention surpassing the Madison Square Garden affair of 1924 for length, turmoil, bitterness, and destruction of party harmony.

Meanwhile the Roosevelt steam roller rolled right along on its decreed mission. It flattened out opposition in the national committee to the seating of "Kingfish" Huey Long's Louisiana and other contested Roosevelt delegations. It jammed through the resolutions committee the appointment of a subcommittee to write the platform composed of six Roosevelt and three anti-Roosevelt members.

Roosevelt in Control.

With the Roosevelt forces in control of the national committee and the temporary organization of the convention the next work of the steam roller will be clearing the way for reports on Tuesday by the committee on permanent organization recommending the election of Montana's senator, Thomas J. Walsh of the Roosevelt faction, for permanent chairman in preference to Jouett Shouse of the Smith-Raskob faction. Then will come more work for the steam roller with the production by the Roosevelt controlled rules committee of a special ruling providing for the termination of the two-thirds nominating rule.

The program of the Roosevelt high command is to provide for suspension of the two-thirds rule if no nomination is made in the first few ballots and then to name Roosevelt by a simple majority vote.

Overplay Their Hand.

The anti-Roosevelt captains, regarding the Roosevelt tactics as a confession that the New York governor never could achieve a two-thirds vote and believing that the Roosevelt managers have fatally overplayed their hand, are now staking all on the defeat of the move to do away with the two-thirds rule. If they win that battle on the floor of the convention, they are confident they can "stop Roosevelt" permanently and eventually force the nomination of another. Gov. Albert C. Ritchie of Maryland, Newton D. Baker of Ohio, and Melvin A. Traylor of Illinois, are the most prominently mentioned alternatives in anti-Roosevelt quarters.

The possibility that the move to abrogate the two-thirds rule would prove a boomerang for the Roosevelt candidacy put heart into all the foes of the New York governor. The inference drawn from Mayor Frank Hague's Thursday night statement that Al Smith stood ready to step aside, if Roosevelt would, in favor of a compromise candidate for the good of the party was pronounced unwarranted at Smith headquarters.

Says Smith Is in Race.

Mr. Hague said that he had been misinterpreted, that no such offer was contemplated and that Mr. Smith is still in the race and will fight to the bitter end for the nomination. Mr. Hague explained that all he had meant to convey was that Roosevelt could not be elected, if nominated, and that the party would win with any of the other candidates, including Smith.

James A. Farley, Roosevelt manager, and his lieutenants, merely contemplated the gathering storm with a smile, calmly asserting that they would go through with their program. They had counted noses and felt they had the votes to put it through. The steam roller would do the rest.

"We wouldn't have made the move if we had not been sure of our ground," said Mr. Farley. "It is not a sign of weakness as our opponents assert. Nor is the south against our program. The southern delegates are coming here like the other Roosevelt delegates determined to nominate the governor and not to let this opposition stop them."

Veto Power of South.

This was a reference to the traditional insistence of the south upon the two-thirds rule which gave that region a veto power over nominations. Now many of the southerners who favor Roosevelt are ready to throw the rule overboard. Commenting on the contention of Mr. Shouse that it would be unfair to abrogate the two-thirds rule without doing away with the unit rule governing some delegations, Mr. Farley said: "This convention has nothing to do with the unit rule; that's up to the states themselves."

In the midst of the uproar produced by the Roosevelt move Senator Pat Harrison of Mississippi, a Roosevelt supporter and member of a Roosevelt delegation, appeared on the scene and sought to pour oil on the troubled party waters. He had a compromise to propose which he thought would restore harmony. He would have the Roosevelt managers drop their fight to abolish the two-thirds rule and the anti-Roosevelt forces drop their fight to put over Mr. Shouse for permanent chairman. The convention would adopt a resolution thanking Messrs. Raskob and Shouse for their distinguished service to the party, then elect Senator Walsh chairman. Mr. Farley rejected the Harrison harmony proposition.

"Situation Satisfactory."

"When we make a move we go straight through," he said. "We have the votes to put it over. The reaction is favorable and the situation satisfactory."

Senator Harrison made a plea for avoidance of convention dissension that might jeopardize the favorable prospect of victory in November.

"I am not opposed to the abolition of the two-thirds rule," he said, "but I have always felt that it ought not to be changed in the midst of the game. If the rule is to be changed by this convention merely to win a temporary victory that will affect us in November, it would be much wiser to forego that necessity. If it is abrogated by one convention it should not go into effect till the next convention."

The senator said this was his personal opinion, which might be disregarded by the majority of the Mississippi delegation.

Welfare of Party.

"Roosevelt, in my opinion," he said, "can be nominated on the first ballot with the two-thirds rule in force. But what I'm afraid of is that the move to abrogate it might drive a wedge and drive away delegates which Roosevelt otherwise might get. It makes me sick to think that any one could be so blind to the welfare of our party in this election. A repetition of the Madison Square Garden fiasco would drive a dagger into the heart of the Democratic party."

Senator Harrison said he favored a plank recommending submission of repeal of prohibition to state conventions "without any string tied to it by the federal government." He said he was willing to be pledged to vote as a senator for submission of repeal but not as a Democrat to vote for ratification of repeal. He came out flatly for a plank opposing cancellation of the war debts.

Al Smith denounced the Roosevelt move against the two-thirds rule and asserted that he is still in the race for the nomination.

Tradition in Party.

"The two-thirds rule," said Mr. Smith, "is a tradition of the Democratic party which has stood for 100 years. A new rule should not be adopted in the heat of a political battle. The spirit of American fair play will not tolerate any eleventh hour unsportsmanlike attempt to change the rules after the game has been started. Since the earliest primary this year all the contestants for this nomination, as well as their backers, have known that two-thirds of the total number of delegates were required to bring about this nomination. The delegates were all elected with the understanding and expectation that two-thirds would be required.

"The leader of the forces behind the candidate with the largest number of delegate votes has proclaimed to the country at least three times a day that the man he was backing would be nominated by a two-thirds vote on the first ballot. When the scepter of power, however, fell from his hands and was taken up by the senator from Louisiana [Huey P. Long] and the senator from Montana [Burton K. Wheeler] late last night, resolutions were hastily adopted by a small group committing the candidate's followers to an abrogation of the two-thirds rule. This radical change suggested late at night without any deliberation or discussion sounds like a cry for the life preserver.

"Leading Democrats throughout the country will repudiate any such action and it will be distinctly harmful to the party chances in November no matter who is nominated.

Tried Four Years Ago.

"At least a year before and again six months prior to the Houston convention a number of my friends suggested this identical procedure. I vetoed it on both occasions and frankly and publicly stated that unless two-thirds of the delegates to that convention wanted me, I did not care to receive the nomination."

Mr. Smith said that if necessary he would take the floor in behalf of retention of the two thirds rule. He added that former Gov. James M. Cox of Ohio, the 1920 candidate, had telephoned his opposition to abrogation and that John W. Davis of New York, the 1924 candidate, is coming to fight the Roosevelt move.

"Do you think you can lick them on the abrogation proposition?" he was asked.

"Yes, I think so," Mr. Smith replied. "It was started by two new generals — Gen. Wheeler and Gen. Long."

This was a reference to the activity of Senators Wheeler of Montana and Long, the Louisiana "kingfish," in putting over the abrogation program in the Roosevelt council of war Thursday night.

"Will you support the nominee whoever he may be?" was another question asked.

Awaits Convention Action.

"That's no question to be asked at this time," said Mr. Smith. "I don't know what the convention will do."

Rejecting the Harrison harmony proposal, Mr. Smith said, "You cannot compromise with a principle," later explaining that the principle involved is "keeping your word," by which he meant Roosevelt's alleged agreement to accept Shouse for permanent chairman.

With the exception of Senator Harrison, the Roosevelt partisans supported the move to get ride of the two-thirds rule. Joe Guffey of Pittsburgh, who is promising upwards of 60 of the 76 Pennsylvania delegates for Roosevelt said the rule "should be abolished by all means."

If the Roosevelt managers were pragmatic in moving to abrogate the two-thirds rule in order to compass the nomination of Roosevelt, the favorite son delegations were no less pragmatic in opposing the move in order to "stop Roosevelt."

"Why the abolition of the two-thirds rule would mean the nomination of Roosevelt," said Henry G. Brunner, state chairman of Ohio.

Senator Carter Glass of Virginia, Byrd supporter, said he "would not support anybody who takes a short cut or makes a snap play in the middle of the game."

"Any change attempted in the nominating rule would be fraught with danger," said former Senator James A. Reed, Missouri favorite son. "What was good enough for Andrew Jackson should be good enough for the rest of us. It looks as if somebody is badly scared. This clearly marks the beginning of the end."

Palmer Favors It.

Former Attorney General A. Mitchell Palmer favored abrogation in order to prevent a repetition of Madison Square Garden.

"We must apologize to the shade of Champ Clark if we change the two-thirds rule," said Alfalfa Bill Murray, Oklahoma's favorite son, with reference to the fact that Clark was one of the only two candidates who ever failed of nomination once they had polled a majority.

William Gibbs McAdoo, leading sponsor of the candidacy of Speaker Jack Garner, said the California delegation was committed to a recommendation by this convention that the 1936 convention consider changing the rule.

Although one of the Roosevelt keymen in the convention, former Senator Gilbert M. Hitchcock of Nebraska, was disposed to consider the Roosevelt move a mistake. It would stir unnecessary dissension, for Roosevelt, he thought, could be nominated by a two-thirds vote.

Sam Rayburn, Garner manager, said Mr. Farley "should not, however desperate he may become, undertake to change the rule in the single hope of nominating one man."

Ritchie for Repeal.

Gov. Ritchie of Maryland reached the scene expressing the hope that the convention would "take a clear cut, definite, and unmistakable stand for the repeal of the eighteenth amendment, thus returning the whole subject to the states.

"I think that those states and communities which wish to enact prohibitory legislation are entitled to do so. If this meets the circumstances or desires of any of the states, then such states should be free and undisturbed in their right to have the legislation they want. More than that, effective federal measures should be established to protect those states against shipments from other states which would contravene their laws and the will of their people.

"Pending the repeal of the 18th amendment, I favor such liberalization of the Volstead act as the 18th amendment permits in order to allow the manufacture of light wines and beer, thereby giving employment to thousands who need it and providing new markets for farm produce, to say nothing of depriving the gangster of the outlaw profits of his outlaw trade and bringing legitimate revenue into the federal treasury for the relief of the people from oppressive and confiscatory taxes."

Gov. Ritchie opposed abrogation of the two-thirds rule, remarking that if the rule is to be changed it should be by the next convention, not this one. He said he would support the nominee whoever he is.

Meanwhile, the Roosevelt leaders continued to confer over convention strategy. Meeting in a room in the Congress hotel last night some 40 leaders heard a message from Gov. Roosevelt himself spoken over the telephone from Albany. An amplifying device brought his voice to everyone in the conference room. After the governor had thanked the assembled workers each of those present said a word of greeting to the governor over a private wire connecting the room with the executive mansion in Albany.

WOMEN WEARING 'WET' THIMBLES IN BATTLE FOR REPEAL

The Women's Organization for National Prohibition Reform is issuing thimbles as wet insignia. Around each thimble is a red band and the slogan: "For repeal of the 18th amendment."

Mrs. Charles H. Sabin of New York, president of the organization, who was giving out the thimbles to all callers from her suite in the Blackstone hotel yesterday, said she was confident that the Democratic party would adopt a prohibition repeal plank. She and Mrs. Anne O'Hagan Shinn, president of the Women's Democratic union of New York, who is the guest of Mrs. Kellogg Fairbank, will appear before the resolutions committee today to plead the wet cause.

"Women are awakening politically this year as they've never done before," said Mrs. Sabin. "It is the fact that prohibition has failed morally that stirs the women, more than the fact that it has failed economically, although the last is just as vital. The moral depression is more arousing to them than the economic depression."

$719,587 RAISED BY DEMOCRATS IN VICTORY DRIVE

A total of $719,587 has been raised toward the $1,000,000 goal in the Democratic victory fund drive, Chairman John J. Raskob of the Democratic national committee, announced yesterday morning at a meeting of state victory fund chairmen in the Congress hotel.

Charles H. Sabin, chairman of the New York fund committee, drew prolonged applause when he announced that the home state of two presidential candidates, Franklin D. Roosevelt and Alfred E. Smith, had raised more than half the total pledged. The New York contribution was $365,600.

Illinois, with Robert F. Carr as chairman, raised the second largest contribution, $61,146. The District of Columbia raised $9,888, coming within a few points of its $10,000 quota. Maryland, home state of another presidential candidate, Albert C. Ritchie, was the only one to exceed its quota. The quota was $35,000 and the contributions $35,700.

Including the $200,000 pledged the party for convention expenses, the victory fund now amounts to $919,587. Mr. Smith, Mr. Raskob and other Democratic leaders gave brief pep talks urging that the campaign be carried on until next November.

K. OF C. LEADER WILL SPEAK AT RALLY OF DRYS

A Roman Catholic and a Salvation Army lader will speak at the pre-convention rally of the militant drys in Orchestra hall tomorrow night.

Col. Patrick W. Callahan of Louisville, director of the Knights of Columbus activities in the world war and vice president of the American Business Men's Prohibition foundation, will speak for the Catholic drys.

Evangeline Booth, commander of the Salvation Army in the United States, will be the second speaker. The rally is being sponsored by the Illinois Conference of Associations Supporting the Eighteenth Amendment.

Jane Addams, founder of Hull house, is to speak at a luncheon of the National Woman's Democratic Law Enforcement league at the Chicago Woman's club today.

LADY DEMOCRATS FIGHT MANFULLY FOR THEIR MEN

Two of Them Sass Sen. Huey P. Long.

BY GENEVIEVE FORBES HERRICK.

Were I required to sum up the "woman angle" to this Democratic parley in one lead sentence, I should be inclined to write:

"It's a convention of Dolly Ganns."

Wait a minute! What I mean is that each one of the 500 women here officially is here to fight for her man. She knows what she wants and she's not afraid to come out and talk about it, yes, and battle for it.

Where the Republican women rode the G. O. P. elephant elegantly around wherever the men led it, each of these Democratic women, or so it seems to me, climbs up, independently, on a Democratic donkey of her own, and rides the beast for all he's worth.

That ought to make a sprightly meeting. Perhaps we who wield the woman's pen may really have some news for you next week.

Sasses Huey P. Long.

As a preliminary, women made some news yesterday. One woman, his own colleage, sassed Huey P. Long, before the credentials committee; another woman heckled him, and a Porto Rico school marm won a victory for her delegation in a contest before the same committee.

The Kingfish, with many a flourish, was arguing his case. Suddenly he pointed his finger at the nice looking Stella Hamlin, Louisiana's national committeewoman, and shouted magnificently:

"Why, you wouldn't be here, if I," beating his breast, "if I hadn't written in your name as committeewoman four years ago."

"Hates Women in Politics."

"Ridiculous," Mrs. Hamlin whispered to the people around her. "Why, he never even knew there was such a thing as a committeewoman. He hates women in politics; that's why he wouldn't take his case before the subcommittee yesterday; afraid of the five women on it."

Later, as Long insisted that the state central committee in his state was the supreme power, Mrs. Hamlin popped up, got the floor and said icily, "If the state central committee is so all powerful, as you claim, why didn't it appoint you to the senate?"

And, toward the end of his speech when the Kingfish denounced an opponent for not contributing "even one thin dime" to the campaign, Mrs. Ruffin Pleasant, wife of a former governor of the state, chirped out spunkily, "Say, we wouldn't trust you with a thin dime."

Votes Against Long.

Mrs. Hamlin voted against the seating of the Long delegation. "I've never voted for Huey Long and I never will," she rejoiced. "What he said about me is just hooey from Huey."

But a lot of other committeewomen voted with him and he won.

Last night another woman, Mrs. Jean Springstead Whittemore of Porto Rico, argued briefly why the delegation she headed be seated; won her case easily and quickly.

As the curtain rises for the big show, Monday, better take a walk through the Congress hotel and have a look at the feminine dramatis personnae.

First of all, stop in at the woman's headquarters and have a look at Boss Ross. She's former governor of Wyoming, Nellie Taylor Ross, the feminine chief of the entire party. She comes from Cheyenne, and rides a horse cross-country, but never in the Paris gowns she's wearing at this convention.

She won her place as chief four years ago at Houston, over the candidacy of Florence Farley, Kansas committee woman. There's a little fugitive talk now of another contest, but committee women from all parts of the country are rallying to Gov. Ross' side, declaring she's an able, intelligent and fearless major domo.

Some Friendly Enemies.

Down the corridor a step and you'll find Chicago's Janet [Mrs. Kellogg] Fairbank, boosting Chicago's Melvin Traylor. Up the corridor a step and you'll run into Chicago's Mrs. George Bass, fighting the good fight for Roosevelt. These two women are warm friends, personally.

And that, argues Miss Sue White, associate of Gov. Ross in the headquarters, is the happy basis on which most of these pre-ballot battles are founded.

"We Democratic women," Miss White declared yesterday, "aren't amateurs in politics. We can fight and win, fight and lose; then get together to work for victory in November. Honest disagreement is a political factor which our women recognize and respect."

Then go to the Gold room and you'll see the resolutions committee giving ear to the various women bringing various planks for the platform. Yesterday the committee heard Jane Addams, pleading for peace, urge a lower tariff in the interest of a stimulated world trade; heard her recommend cancellation of war debts and reparations and ask for the recognition of the de facto government of Russia.

Discussing the war debts, Miss Addams, very serious, brought smiles of satisfaction to the Democrats' faces when she said, "Mr. Hoover has appointed so many commissions that surely the Democrats when they come into power may be permitted one more."

Many a Democrat nodded happily when she used the word "when."

Busy in State Caucuses.

Up and down the halls you'll bump into the committeewomen and the women delegates. You'll find them asserting, with fair unanimity, that they don't care so much whether or not they're in the picture when the flashlights begin to go off in the Stadium Monday so long as they've been in the picture in the state caucuses that are now going on. It is the state caucus, they feel, that is going to be so important this convention.

Accordingly, yesterday morning at the victory meeting, when Mary Ward, who'll probably be the new committeewoman from Massachusetts, spoke right up and urged, or shall we say warned, the men to give the women more representation in the small group conference, all the women applauded. It looked to me as if ex-Gov. Ross started the clapping.

A Few of the High Spots.

You've only touched a few of the high spots in your pilgrimage around the hotel. You've missed a lot of women who are here for business. You didn't see Mrs. Henry Moskowitz, Al Smith's right hand woman. She's hard to see; so busy with conferences. You didn't see Miss Lavinia Engle of Maryland, chief of the women's Ritchie forces.

The tall woman with the excellent figure and the District of Columbia badge is Mrs. J. Borden (Daisy) Harriman, who arrived yesterday. She's just written an article on "The Politest Men I Know," and you should see the bowing and scraping whenever she enters an elevator.

Wives and daughters of candidates are all over the place; all of them pleasant and very politic. More come tomorrow. Mrs. William H. Murray, wife of Alfalfa Bill of Oklahoma, will be in town tomorrow morning. But you may not see her in the perspiring swirl at headquarters. Alfalfa Bill said yesterday that "I wouldn't have her down here with these hoodlums." An hour later he modified that and said that of course she'd be around.

Tomorrow, too, Mrs. Woodrow Wilson comes to town. She'll be wearing orchids and she won't do any talking.

Crowds in Loop Give Ritchie Wild Welcome on Arrival

Gov. Albert C. Ritchie of Maryland came to town yesterday afternoon like a conquering warrior.

Whether he will be the conqueror or the vanquished remains to be seen in the next few days, but among the thousands who cheered him yesterday were many who hailed him as "Mister President."

"Win with Ritchie" banners dotted a crushing jam of uproarious Ritchie boosters, which almost overwhelmed the governor at the Baltimore and Ohio depot. Mr. Ritchie's genial dignity carried him through, however, and he laughed even when somebody stepped on his heel and pulled off his shoe. The governor stooped, replaced and fastened his shoe, and then was carried along in the mass of cheering folks to the auto court of the depot.

Demonstration Kept Up.

Gov. Ritchie struggled his way into the open car awaiting him, and as he stepped upon the seat and raised his arms in acceptance of the reception being accorded him a fresh blast of cheers demonstrated that he was a welcome visitor.

As the car moved slowly out of the station into Wells street and then to Jackson boulevard and Michigan boulevard, and finally to the Congress hotel, a mass of citizens, standing five to ten deep along the curbways, kept up the demonstration.

When the governor passed the Board of Trade a deluge of ticker tape, order blanks, and sheets torn from telephone books rained down on the procession.

"How about beer?" a boisterous voice shouted.

"I'm for it," the governor called back.

Mr. Ritchie was formally welcomed —in so far as it was possible for any one to be formal in that jam at the depot—by Peter B. Carey, president of the Board of Trade, and City Greeter George Gaw.

The bright lights of Chicago Democracy were not on hand, but their absence was not noted. Bailiff Al Horan and John F. Delaney, secretary to President Emmett Whealan of the county board, extended the welcome of the Democrats. Later former Chief Justice Floyd Thompson of the Illinois Supreme court joined the party.

Arriving with Gov. Ritchie and the Maryland delegation on the special Baltimore and Ohio train from Baltimore were Howard Bruce, national committeeman from Maryland; Attorney General W. Preston Lane; Mayor Howard Jackson of Baltimore, and United States Senator Millard Tydings.

Ovation At His Hotel.

At the Congress hotel another host of Ritchie fans awaited his arrival. He stood up in the car again and received the ovations of this crowd. Finally a way was fought for him through to the hotel door and he went up the stairway to the Florentine room where an American Legion band greeted him with "The Star Spangled Banner" and "Anchors Aweigh."

Although the policemen and self-appointed monitors were sweating fiercely, and loudly demanding more "air for the governor," Mr. Ritchie seemed the coolest in the place. He was escorted to his private suite on an upper floor, and settling down comfortably in an arm chair, he submitted to an interview with newspaper men.

There was no doubting that the governor was happy.

"It was a grand reception, and it's a grand town," he said.

ROOSEVELT MEN SET UP FRAME FOR PLATFORM

Governor Wants 'Repeal' in Plank.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

The Roosevelt forces will write the tentative draft of the platform being prepared by the provisional resolutions committee in advance of the Democratic national convention opening on Monday. On motion of William G. McAdoo of California, a supporter of John [Cactus Jack] Garner, a subcommittee was appointed by Gilbert M. Hitchcock, former Nebraska senator and chairman of the unofficial resolutions committee, to prepare a draft after the conclusion of the open hearings today. The nine carpenters include six Roosevelt supporters and three anti-Roosevelt men. They are:

GILBERT M. HITCHCOCK, Nebraska, chairman [Roosevelt].
WILLIAM G. McADOO, California [Garner].
SENATOR BURTON K. WHEELER, Montana [Roosevelt].
SENATOR CORDELL HULL, Tennessee [Roosevelt].
A. MITCHELL PALMER, District of Columbia [Roosevelt].
SENATOR CARTER GLASS, Virginia [Byrd].
JOSEPH C. O'MAHONEY, Wyoming [Roosevelt].
WILLIAM A. COMSTOCK, Michigan [Roosevelt].
SENATOR DAVID I. WALSH, Massachusetts [Smith].

The group contains four senators, three former cabinet members in the Wilson régime—McAdoo, Wilson's son-in-law; Glass, and Palmer—and its chairman, Hitchcock, was Wilson floor leader in the United States senate.

Tries to Place Jimmie Walker.

John T. Dooling of New York, on the provisional resolutions committee by proxy, sought to increase the subcommittee to ten members with a view to trying to land Mayor Walker of New York on the resolutions body, but he was discouraged by McAdoo.

Mr. Palmer, who was a candidate for the presidential nomination at San Francisco in 1922, already has started to write provisional planks. He is aided by Senator Hull and Homer Cummings of Connecticut for national chairman. Mr. McAdoo is being consulted.

Word from Gov. Roosevelt of New York is that the people on the resolutions committee, which will be officially created at the hands of the convention Monday, know his views on the main issues.

Wants "Repeal" in Plank.

On prohibition Roosevelt has conveyed the idea that the word "repeal" should be in the plank. The matters of phraseology, text, and content are otherwise left to the carpenters. Prohibition is to be the final topic at the public hearings this morning.

The general belief is that a plank will be reported out calling for submission of repeal of the 18th amendment by congress to the several states in conventions. Some of the carpenters are for nailing into the Democratic platform the Bingham minority repeal plank which was rejected by the Republicans last week with the aid of the postmasterships in Democratic states in the south.

Some Want Party on Record.

Some groups advocate a plank putting the party on record as favoring repeal itself and asking immediate modification of the Volstead act—Al Smith's proposal and the idea of Illinois and some other industrial states. This may go to a floor battle on the direct question of whether Democracy should declare for resubmission of repeal or whether it shall also set itself up as an advocate of repeal.

One plank said to be agreed upon will be against cancellation of war debts—to the effect that "all governments should observe their obligations."

Another calls for federal regulation of stocks and bonds dealt in across state lines—a federal blue sky law.

Another, while keeping clear of recognizing soviet Russia, is said to favor "more cordial trade relations."

The announced aim is to keep the whole platform to about 1,000 or 1,200 words and to trim out all wordy chaff as far as politicians can blue pencil it. The whole subcommittee gets to work this afternoon and the rough draft is expected to be ready for submission to the whole provisional resolutions committee by tomorrow night.

Attack on Farm Board.

An onslaught upon the operations of the federal farm board and a call for a plank demanding repeal of the federal marketing act and dissolution of the board was the chief feature of yesterday's public session. It was launched by P. B. Carey, president of the Chicago Board of Trade, and Thomas J. Wickham for the Council of American Grain Exchanges.

The troubles of the American railroads were outlined by Ralph Budd, president of the Burlington, while arguments for planks on reduction of governmental costs were made by Samuel M. Hastings, head of the Illinois Manufacturers' association.

Peace, power and Porto Rico were topics in the forenoon session, and today the open provisional hearings will wind up with the subjects of tariff, unemployment, labor, immigration and prohibition.

The refusal met by Mayor A. J. Cermak in his effort to obtain funds to the extent of some $40,000,000 from the Reconstruction Finance corporation led the Chicago Teachers Voters' association to ask for a plank favoring provisions that would enable such relief for all school districts, with proper safeguards.

ON FARM BOARD

In the attack on the federal farm board, Messrs. Carey and Wickham said the board had exploited American agriculture and had wasted 480 millions of dollars in two years while farm prices meanwhile had fallen through the trap door.

"We denounce as unsound and untrue," they declared, "the doctrine that agriculture is suffering from overproduction when men are hungry and unclothed in every country.

"We assert that the farm board's demand that farmers destroy growing cotton and kill living animals was not to aid agriculture, but the sabotage threat of political racketeers to hide their incompetency.

"We charge that this administration has given ready ear to so-called 'farm leaders' with political influence urging legislative panaceas already a failure in human experience, but that it has closed its eyes to the needs of the tiller of the soil; that it has entered upon a deliberate campaign to destroy farmer owned and controlled coöperatives and private business enterprise; that it has built up with government money a monopoly under political control; that through its discredited plan of stabilization it has brought the lowest level of farm prices ever known."

Proposal for Farm Plank.

Mr. Carey and Mr. Wickham asked a plank calling for:

"The immediate repeal of the grain futures act and the un-American power to legislate that it has placed in the hands of a political appointee; the immediate repeal of the agricultural marketing act, the dissolution of the farm board and early liquidation of its grossly tangled and burdensome affairs, to restore the agricultural department to its proper sphere, in the hands of a secretary competent and experienced in the affairs of agriculture and who will devote that great department of government to the welfare of the farmers of this nation, and who will permit them to handle their own affairs in their own way without dictation from any governmental agency.

Want Loan Aid for Farmers.

"American agriculture must be placed upon an equality with other lines of business. To this end, and to prevent the loss of farms and farm homes by mortgage foreclosure during this period of distress that Republican legislation has brought upon them, we demand that the Reconstruction Finance corporation be required to classify existing farm mortgages as proper assets upon which emergency loans may be made at the lowest possible rate of interest and amortized over such a period of years that the burdened farmer will be given time to work out his own welfare."

Speaking of the National Live Stock Marketing association, Charles A. Ewing said his organization was opposed to any measures designed to abolish the agricultural marketing act or the federal farm board. Among the planks he suggested was one for abandoning the gold standard in favor of a new world currency based on an index figure of commodity prices—the familiar "india rubber dollar" idea.

CHICAGO TEACHERS

Homer Davis, principal of the Ellis school, and Harry L. Tate, president of the Teacher Voter association, submitted a plank pledging the party to support national legislation which will provide for the investment of federal funds through the Reconstruction Finance corporation, state treasurers, or otherwise, in the bonds or other securities of school districts to the amount of uncollected taxes for the purpose of paying school district employés.

"In a recent survey," said Mr. Tate, the following is shown of school districts throughout the United States: Sixty-two per cent are reducing teachers' salaries, 37 per cent are employing fewer teachers, 19 per cent reducing length of school year, 38 per cent increasing size of classes, 33 per cent postponing building.

"All of which shows the tremendous loss to the children of America through the lessening of educational standards."

THIRD PARTY THREAT

A threat of a third party based on a nation-wide youth movement, if the Democrats fail to take a clear, unequivocal stand on economic issues, was voiced by Robert M. Hutchins, president of the University of Chicago.

"The Democratic party has its greatest opportunity of a generation in this election," said Hutchins, "if it asserts itself on the economic issues. "If it does not speak unequivocally a third party will surely arise.

"There is a youth movement in the United States, and it is prepared to assert itself politically. The Democratic party can get its support only on a clear, unequivocal statement of policy on the issues of the day.

"The Republican platform brings no response from our hearts, it rings no bells in our breasts."

William Gaston and Robert C. Rand, who preceded Hutchins, advocated a program calling for reduction of the tariff, reduction of federal activities in general, cuts in the federal budget, and newer methods of taxation, modification of allowances for veterans not injured in actual service, and outright repeal of the 18th amendment.

RAILROAD PROBLEM

In placing the plight of American railroads before the committee President Budd of the Burlington road asked for a platform plank providing for federal regulation of highway and water transportation, for a lessening of the regulation enforced upon the railways and for legislation enabling the railroads to strengthen themselves by effecting consolidations.

"The service rendered by the railroads in the building up of industrial life is essential to the economic welfare of the nation," Mr. Budd said. "Employment conditions are greatly dependent upon the railroads' welfare, both because of the men employed directly by the roads and by those working in plants which provide the supplies and equipment purchased by the railroads.

"In the last decade we have seen the springing up of vigorous competitors, by water and air and overland. The railroads are thoroughly regulated, while our competitors are not. We seek only an equality of regulation and we believe these competitors should be subjected to the same scrutiny when additional services are provided as we are when extensions are suggested."

FREE SILVER

Free silver, a favorite campaign issue for three-quarters of a century, was espoused again by Milton Miller of Portland, Ore. An earlier proposal, put forth by George T. Beck of Wyoming, was for the Democrats to approve a plan to make legal tender of all government bonds, thus freeing more money for circulation.

But Mr. Miller declared that instead of making legal tender of bonds the bonds should be placed in the treasury, with silver coined in place of the bonds, thus, as Mr. Miller said, saving interest.

Urge Waterway Action.

An accusation that the Republicans last week got so tangled up in the wet and dry controversy over repeal that they forgot other important questions was made by James M. Thompson, New Orleans publisher. He was introduced by Mayor T. Semmes Walmsley of New Orleans.

"Don't let us muff the ball like the Republicans," said Mr. Thompson.

Congressman Frank Reid of Aurora, Republican, former chairman of the flood control committee joined in the appeal for a clear waterways and flood plank, saying any interruption in the waterways program would be disastrous.

For Racial Betterment.

A plank for racial betterment was submitted by Edgar Brown, who was a candidate in the April primaries for the Democratic nomination for congress in the First district against Congressman Oscar De Priest, and by Earl B. Dickerson, representing the National Association for the Advancement of the Colored People.

GOVERNMENTAL WASTE

An appeal that the Democrats put in a plank committing the party to the policy of drastic reduction in governmental expenditures in conformity with the impaired income of the taxpayers was made by Samual M. Hastings, head of the Illinois Manufacturers' association and of the Midwest Manufacturers' Association, Inc.

Hastings said the burden of taxes is now so high that every man works more than three months out of the year for the various governments.

"It seems entirely unnecessary for me to restate here," he said, "that the entirely unwarranted tax burden—federal, state, and local, which is now crippling industry, as well as individual taxpayers, must be materially and promptly reduced before any appreciable improvement in economic conditions or any definite reduction in unemployment is accomplished.

Sees National Menace.

"Public expenditures for all forms of government—national, state, and local—have assumed the proportions of a national menace. The most authoritative information discloses that with American income declining from about 85 billions of dollars in 1929 to probably less than 40 billions in 1932, or a decrease of more than 53 per cent, all forms of governmental expenditures have risen during the same period from about 12½ billion dollars to more than 14 billion dollars, or an increase of more than 11 per cent."

CANDIDATES VOW TO LIGHTEN U. S. BURDEN OF TAXES

Gov. Ritchie Points to His Maryland Economies.

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

A sincere effort to reduce federal government expenditures on a large scale was promised yesterday by Gov. Albert C. Ritchie of Maryland and former Senator James A. Reed of Missouri, two candidates for the Democratic nomination for the presidency.

Friends of Melvin A. Traylor, president of the First National Bank of Chicago, who is not an avowed candidate, asserted that he would give the nation more real economy than any candidate in the field.

Associates of Al Smith said his record as chief executive of New York state is a guarantee of a big slash in the cost of the federal government.

Ritchie Has Definite Plan.

Gov. Ritchie has a definite plan and program to obtain a reduction in federal taxes which he advocates for the federal government. It is a scheme of executive budget which has been practiced in Maryland for years, with the result that its finances are in excellent condition. By this system the governor estimates the revenue and then recommends appropriations based upon it. The state legislature can decrease or elliminate any item, but cannot increase it. It can make added appropriations for new projects, but at the same time must originate a tax to pay for the cost.

Asked how much he believed he could reduce the federal budget, Gov. Ritchie replied:

"That cannot be honestly answered by any sincere person before making a detailed study of the expense; but the federal budget is more than four billion. The federal debt and the veterans' expense account for a large part of it. On the ordinary expenditures of the government there has been an increase of half a billion in the last eight or ten years. I feel confident that could be eliminated; and probably other large savings could be made.

Can't Stand for More Taxes.

"From experience I know it is difficult to make reasonably exact estimate of savings. All of the savings possible are imperative under present conditions. It is most essential to economize. The people cannot stand for more taxes. Consolidations and eliminations in the departments, bureaus, and divisions of the government can undoubtedly be made without destroying the primary functions of the government.

"The Maryland executive budget plan has worked well. On June 8 we sold $1,000,000 of bonds for permanent improvements at 104.79. The bonds have a coupon interest rate of 4½ per cent and sold on the basis of yielding the purchasers 3.9 per cent.

"We believe our budget system would get effective results in the federal government, because in Maryland it is impossible to have an unbalanced budget, unless the governor overestimates the income. If he does he is responsible and the people all know it.

"The result is that Maryland starts each fiscal year with a surplus. For the current fiscal year the surplus was one-tenth of the expenses for the year."

"Are the Maryland cities in good financial shape," was asked.

"Mayor Howard Jackson of Baltimore just told me that he has been selling notes—warrants anticipating the collection of taxes, at three per cent."

Chicago cannot sell its tax warrants at six per cent.

Reed Would Reduce Bureaus.

Ex-Senator Reed of Missouri was specific in criticizing many expenditures of the Washington government.

"The cost of palatial structures costing many millions, of which the care will add perpetual expense, should be stopped," he said, "except where would be a distinct loss from failure to complete a building under construction.

"The 55 millions spent directly for enforcement of prohibition, and the 300 millions spent indirectly ought to be stopped. A halt should be called on the attempt to regulate farm prices, costing 500 millions, which resulted in breaking farm prices.

"In the federal government are almost innumerable activities, which should be carried on by the states, if at all, that should be stopped.

"There are numerous boards and bureaus that could be abolished. I would not want to say that the departments of commerce, agriculture and labor should be entirely eliminated, but their functions should certainly be circumscribed and their expenses vastly reduced."

Speaks for Traylor.

Frank Scofield of Fort Worth, Tex., said that he was qualified to speak for Melvin A. Traylor, whom he has known for 28 years.

Nearly 40 years ago he was branding cows on my father's ranch," said Mr. Scofield, "and he knows what economy is from the viewpoint of the common people.

"Mr. Traylor knows that the expenses must be cut drastically if the government is to hold together. He will go the limit, and he knows better than any one else what the limit is. He is the best qualified man of any who have been mentioned for the presidency to give the amount and kind of economy which the nation must have."

"Alfalfa Bill" Murray of Oklahoma was asked his attitude on governmental economy and replied: "I haven't time to be interviewed on that now. See you later."

Give Al Smith's Views.

At the headquarters of Al Smith the candidate was too busy to grant a personal interview, but associates, friends and former state workers under the former New York governor gave Mr. Smith's views on economy and supplied speeches he had made and articles written to prove that his position "has been consistently and persistently for the utmost economy," as one phrased it.

It was pointed out that Smith as governor reorganized the state departments, and saved $750,000 on the public works department in the first year. He consolidated 187 departments, bureaus and commissions into 19 departments and then obtained an amendment to the state constitution prohibiting the creation of any larger number.

ROOSEVELT WINS FIRST ROUND IN SEAT CONTESTS

Victor in Louisiana, Minnesota Fights.

last, to the horror and consternation of the Democrats of Louisiana, a telegraphic call went out to members of the state central committee to meet on the following day and elect delegates to the national convention. Once again, as in 1928, we were to be deprived of our right to hold a convention and absolutely stripped of our franchise.

"There was grumbling at this autocratic action of Senator Long and a convention was called at Shreveport which legally elected a delegation representative of the people. We ask that this delegation be recognized here. We want no favors. We only want to come into the house of our fathers with clean hands and be given justice and a fair deal."

Jester Takes the Stage.

Then, the dark, squat figure of the jesting Mouton was upon the rostrum. Kingfish Long stood near by watching Mouton, who is one of his state pay rollers, with a broad smile on his face, doubling up with laughter at some of Mouton's wisecracks.

"There are three kinds of fishes here," chuckled Mouton in his broad, Creole accent. "First, there's the kingfishes, then there's the ex-fishes, composed of the ex-governors and the ex-bosses who are sore at the Kingfish, and last of all, there's me and the other little fishes."

The members of the committee roared as the grinning Mouton rambled on, quoting doggerel and casting a reproachful glance now and then at members of the opposing delegations.

Makes His Own Convention.

"I tried to get on the Kingfish's bandwagon," said Mouton in mock sorrow. "He wouldn't have me. I went over to the Sanders delegation. They told me to go on away. So I got up my own convention and here I am with my own delegation.

"Don't you all believe them when they say I'm one of the Kingfish's men. Why, I made the Kingfish. He's just a poor, misguided fellow and I want to set him in the right path.

"If you'll join with me," here Mouton turned to the Sanders delegation which was scowling at him, "we'll rip Kingfish Long's scalp right off his head and we'll carry it back home. That is, I'll carry it as far as the state line. You can carry it inside the state because I don't think it might be so safe to wave it around down there."

And Next Is Huey Himself.

Then, the red headed junior senator from Louisiana had his say. Senator Long started out quietly enough, but was soon at his evangelistic best, shouting himself hoarse.

"I'm the Democratic party in Louisiana," he yelled, beating himself on the chest. "Who's got a better right to pick the delegation? Every one of this Sanders bunch is a sorehead about the way he's been beaten by me. I beat 'em many a time and I'll beat 'em again.

"They've come to Chicago to get recognition here because they can't get it in Louisiana." Here the Kingfish literally screamed. "They've been beat, beat, beat, beat, BEAT down there!"

After the vote in favor of his delegation had been announced, the Kingfish strode from the room, waving his arms and shouting, "They can't put it over on the Kingfish!"

The Minnesota Battle.

The battle of the Minnesota delegations was almost as stirring. At least a dozen cries of "You're a liar!" were cast at each other by members of the opposing groups. Regan, leader of the defeated delegation, charged that Holdale, his victorious opponent, had "sold out the Democratic party in Minnesota."

"Why, the Democratic party in 1928 wouldn't trust Wolf (Joseph Wolf, national committeeman) with the money to run the campaign!" Regan shouted, thrusting an accusing finger at Wolf.

"You're a dirty liar," retorted Wolf.

"And you're a crook," shot back Regan.

The strength of the Roosevelt faction in the national committee was felt at the very outset when Chairman John J. Raskob was overruled on his recommendation to refer the delegate contests back to a subcommittee which he had appointed. Senator Long had refused on Thursday to appear before this subcommittee, challenging its authority.

Led by Bruce Kremer, national committeeman from Montana, a Roosevelt adherent, the committee overruled Chairman Raskob by viva voce vote.

3 TAMMANY BIG SHOTS MYSTERY MEN OF PARTY

Curry, Olvaney, McCooey Keep Own Counsel.

The mystery men of the convention—thus observers are designating John F. Curry, George W. Olvaney, and John M. McCooey, big shots from Tammany hall, who will speak the will of New York City in the naming of the Democratic candidate for President.

Queer birds, these Tammany braves, the hinterland politicians are saying. While leaders from the central states and west mingle in the pre-convention crowd at the Congress hotel, freely exchanging views and predictions, the men from the Wigwam stick close to their dens in the Blackstone, keeping their own counsel.

They have been here three days and no one yet knows to a certainty whom they favor for the nomination. Tammany's ways are secret. But Boss Curry has his scouts prowling up and down candidate's row at the Congress, keeping a wary eye on the New York state delegation of 94, forty of whom he is reputed to control.

Friendly Toward Roosevelt.

Mr. Curry is said to feel fairly friendly towards Gov. Roosevelt and somewhat cool towards Al Smith. Curry is a close friend of the Roosevelt campaign manager, James A. Farley, and always professed regard for Roosevelt, at least up to the time the governor allowed Samuel Seabury to start rooting up Tammany tin boxes.

Judge Olvaney, on the other hand, is regarded as a Smith follower. He was formerly the Tammany leader, having succeeded Charles B. Murphy with the backing of Gov. Smith back in 1924. The Happy Warrior viewed his resignation in 1929 with regret and the election of Mr. Curry with disfavor.

Mr. McCooey is the Brooklyn Democratic boss and, properly speaking, has no business in the Tammany tribe. Tammany membership is supposed to be restricted to residents of Manhattan, but Boss McCooey was taken in as a friendly gesture when the Brooklyn and Manhattan organizations united to shelve John H. Hylan for James J. Walker as the candidate for mayor in 1925. Whatever Curry says will go for McCooey in the present situation, the wiseacres say.

Pose for Group Picture.

They alighted from a New York train Wednesday and posed for a group picture. They made a formidable impression—the tall, freckled Olvaney with a slow smile; the squint eyed, iron jawed Curry, faintly resembling John J. Pershing, and the rotund McCooey, with the white, walrus moustache and blue eyes popped wide in perpetual astonishment. An indefinable mark was discernible upon all three, a steadiness of the gaze and a hardness of the mouth, the mark of men always under fire, the mark of Tammany.

As Tammany leader, Curry's word is law to the legions of New Yorkers who belong to the "social, patriotic and benevolent organization," which George Washington once headed, and is one of the country's oldest and most powerful political organizations.

The son of Irish immigrants, Curry was a telegraph messenger and Tammany precinct worker in youth, rising to power as a district leader in 1899. Up to the time he became boss he had been a political pay roller for 33 years, yet had never been known to taste liquor or utter a profane word. His voice is quiet and his manner unassuming.

Power Is in Wigwam.

The secret of his power lies in the Wigwam, a gray stone structure facing Union square, where the New York Reds occasionally stage a riot. Within the hall is an assembly room where, at meetings of the sachems, Curry sits enthroned.

Over the throne droop the branches of a potted palm tree. Around the room is other tropical foliage. Across the leader's desk stretches a carved tiger three feet long. Another tiger dozes on the window ledge and a third, of inlaid tropical wood, crouches on a wall shelf.

The tiger has been Tammany's emblem for sixty years. Back in the '70s the cartoonist, Thomas Nast, fighting the corrupt rule of Boss Tweed, depicted the organization as the striped jungle beast, fattening on human prey. Adoption of the tiger emblem and the jungle trappings was Tammany's answer.

Go Away Smiling.

Few except the sachems see Boss Curry in the sanctum. But of the thousands who trek to the hall seeking jobs, political favors, coal, food, or rent each is allowed a whispered word with the chief. Nearly all go away smiling.

On the office wall hang maps showing every one of the thousands of dwellings in Manhattan. They are colored by districts and precincts. Curry can put a finger on any house and tell what district leader is responsible there. The maps tell the story of Tammany's tremendous and consistent victories at the polls.

The source of funds for the Tammany philanthropies is another story, one that is never told in full. Judge Seabury is supposed to have got part of it when he exposed the barter in magistracies, the shakedowns of the police vice squads, and the enormous fees of favored pleaders before the zoning board.

Olvaney's Case Cited.

Olvaney's case was an illustration. In proceedings before the Hofstader legislative committee, Seabury showed that Olvaney banked $3,000,000 during his term as Tammany leader. A millionaire builder, Fred F. French, reluctantly testified that he had to pay Olvaney's law firm a $75,000 fee to straighten out certain zoning restrictions and allow him to put up his Tudor City apartments. Olvaney took the stand and described himself as "a good Samaritan."

The Tammany ex-boss is a native of New York City. He was born June 20, 1876, worked his way through law school and, upon his admission to the bar, joined the Tammany organization. His first political job was deputy corporation counsel. Next he became alderman, then deputy fire commissioner, and in 1915, when Al Smith became New York county sheriff, he was appointed sheriff's counsel.

Olvaney came to Leader Murphy's notice in 1919. He was elected chairman of the Tammany law committee. Thereafter when a Tammanyite asked Murphy's advice, his invariable answer was: "Ask George." In 1924 Gov. Smith advanced him to judge of sitting only a few months when Murphy's death left the Tammany leadership vacant. Olvaney was elected boss.

The most notable thing about Mr. McCooey is his ability to remain on the public pay roll. Mayor Hylan named a New York municipal ferry for him. He was once toastmaster at a dinner costing $116 a plate. The Hofstader committee brought out that he had arranged a bipartisan deal giving his son office as justice of the Kings County Supreme court for fourteen years at $25,000 a year.

The Tammany record demonstrates that its leaders are intensely practical men. While none can guess who the organization's choice for President may be, the campaign strategists are fairly certain on one point. When the battle narrows down and a victor begins to emerge, they say, the Tammany braves will be riding with the winner.

Convention Notes

Those wishing to visit the Stadium tomorrow to view the decorations will be admitted at gate 2 on Madison street and gate 5 on Warren avenue between 11 a. m. and 5:30 p. m. A box office in the Stadium grill on Madison street will be kept open during the day for those wishing to purchase tickets to the convention.

A bit nervous, perhaps, in close proximity to so many people, the drum major of the Board of Trade band pranced into the Florentine room of the Congress for the Ritchie demonstration, leading his musicians, and promptly lost control of his twirling baton, which flew across the room toward a group of Ritchie supporters, scattering them in all directions. The leader recovered it, however, and continued his gyrations.

Acting contrary to the recommendation of Jouett Shouse, the Democratic national committee yesterday approved the appropriation of $4,800 to pay for the flood lights at the Stadium necessary for the taking of talking moving pictures. Mr. Shouse declared the flood lights had proved to be a great annoyance to the delegates at the Republican convention.

City Greeter George Gaw came close to being in two places at the same time yesterday. He met Gov. Ritchie at the Grand Central station and Mayor Walker of New York at the La Salle street station—both within fifteen minutes.

The Democratic parliamentarian, Representative Clarence Cannon of Elsberry, Mo., will give the same advice to the 1932 convention chairman that he issued to chairmen in 1920, 1924 and 1928; principally "Don't interrupt a roll call." The rules so specify and, in addition, Mr. Cannon can remind the new chairman that once the rule is violated a tangle almost invariably follows. "Bryan," Cannon recalled, "was frequently recognized during a roll call in the old days. It was hard not to give him the privilege and once on the floor, his influence was astounding. That voice affected the emotions like music."

Appealing in behalf of unpaid school teachers, David F. Davis of the Chicago High School Teachers' association, wrote to Al Smith yesterday asking that he use his good offices to secure a Democratic plank pledging adequate federal aid for public education.

The youngest delegate, Compton I. White Jr. of Clark Fork, Idaho, 11 years old, arrived yesterday with credentials certified by the Idaho Democratic chairman classifying him as an honorary delegate. He will recite before the convention.

Commander Evangeline Booth of the Salvation Army, who will deliver the prayer at the first convention session on Monday, will be the first speaker at the dry massmeeting on Sunday night in Orchestra hall.

Introducing himself as "a friendly enemy," James A. Farley, the Roosevelt leader, visited Byrd, Garner, and Reed headquarters yesterday to present his compliments. Today he plans to call on Al Smith and the Traylor, Ritchie, and Murray headquarters.

Gov. Roosevelt, Speaker Garner, and Newton D. Baker were the only major candidates for the presidential nomination not in Chicago yesterday. Mr. Roosevelt was reported considering the journey here in case of a prolonged deadlock. John E. Mack of Poughkeepsie, N. Y., who will place the governor's name in nomination, conferred with him at Albany before leaving for Chicago. Speaker Garner was in Washington watching the course of his relief bill. Mr. Baker arrived at his home in Cleveland after an eastern trip, remarking that he "hoped for wisdom and candor at Chicago, but I have no long distance advice to give them."

KENTUCKY'S 'IRON MAN' ARRIVES FOR HIS KEYNOTE JOB

Barkley Hopes to Improve on G. O. P. Effort.

With his speech ready for the printers and his voice in condition, Senator Alben W. Barkley, keynoter from Kentucky, arrived here yesterday for a preliminary survey before taking the gavel as temporary chairman of the Democratic national convention at the Chicago Stadium on Monday. Senator and Mrs. Barkley are stopping at the Hotel Sherman.

Disclaiming any intention of disparaging a rival, Senator Barkley indicated that he considered the keynote speech delivered by Senator L. J. Dickinson of Iowa at the Republican national convention last week a pretty poor performance, on which he hoped to improve. Unlike the Republican keynoter, Senator Barkley intends to say something about prohibition.

Hears the Gavel Banging.

"I listened to Senator Dickinson on the radio," Senator Barkley said. "I could hear Chairman Fess banging the gavel frequently and I judged that the Republican keynoter did not command the undivided attention of his audience."

While disinclined to enter his party's controversies, the Democratic keynoter did comment on the conflict over the naming of the permanent chairman. He predicted that the opposition to Senator Thomas J. Walsh of Montana, choice of the Roosevelt camp, would fade as did the opposition to himself as temporary chairman.

"The objection to me on the basis of my vote for the coal and oil tariff was a sham," he said. "The tariff bill was brought in by the ways and means committee of a Democratic house as a party measure. My vote was for a lower rate than that provided in the house bill. My keynote speech will show that I stand for Democratic tariff principles."

Kentucky for Walsh.

Although the Kentucky delegation will not arrive until tomorrow, Senator Barkley predicted they would support Senator Walsh for chairman. He pointed out that the delegation leader, Dr. J. H. Richmond of Louisville, is the Roosevelt campaign manager in Kentucky and that the delegation is instructed for Roosevelt.

In his twenty-seven years in politics Senator Barkley has lost only one contest. A graduate of the University of Virginia, he was elected prosecuting attorney of McCracken county, Kentucky, in 1905, county judge of the same county in 1909, and member of congress in 1913. He served as representative until his election to the senate in 1926.

Of powerful physique, he is rated an aggressive and energetic speaker. Due to the stamina he has displayed in campaigns, he is known to his friends as "Iron Man Barkley." He is 56 years old.

FEDERAL AGENTS RAID 23 PLACES; EVEN CICERO HIT

Seventy federal dry agents led by Deputy Administrator A. E. Aman raided twenty-three alleged speakeasies last night. In Cicero seven places were raided. Cicero heretofore had been more or less neglected by the prohibition forces.

The raids were made on the north, south, and west sides of Chicago in addition to Cicero. An alleged beer flat at 1843 West Madison street, across from the Chicago Stadium, where the Democratic convention is to be held, was one of the places raided. Mr. Aman denied that the raids were intended to dry up the city for the convention, although reports to that effect have been current and extraordinary activity on the part of prohibition agents occurred before the Republican convention.

Among the Cicero places raided was a saloon at 6001 West Roosevelt road. James B. Koler and George Gruss were arrested. Koler's place has been in business there more than 20 years. Other Cicero raids were at 6109 West Roosevelt road; the Idle Hour saloon, 5907 West Roosevelt road, and 6147 West Roosevelt road.

HOOVER CLUBS RAISE $30,000 FOR CAMPAIGN

Washington, D. C., June 24.—[Special.]—Although $30,000 is the total cash the "Hoover '32" clubs have been able to reap thus far, Joseph R. Nutt, Republican national treasurer, said today the prohibition plank adopted by the Chicago convention had brought delayed promises of money from potentially heavy contributors to the Hoover campaign.

Mr. Nutt's announcement was made following a conference on financial matters with President Hoover. He expected the campaign budget to be between $500,000 and $750,000. The 1928 budget was one million dollars, but the total cost of that campaign far exceeded that sum.

Henry J. Allen, former Kansas senator and campaign publicity director in 1928, was reappointed to his old post. Publicity headquarters will be in Chicago.

Repentant Boy Bandit on 6 Months' Probation

Richard Rollins, 20 years old, wanderer who became a bandit on Thursday and was so conscience stricken after holding up a single victim that he surrendered to the police, was arraigned yesterday before Municipal Judge William J. Brooks. The victim, who had promised Rollins he would not report his $1.77 holdup to the police, did not appear to prosecute and Judge Brooks placed Rollins on probation for six months.

Shoots Himself to Death in His Room in Hotel

Anr Pucik, 54 years old, shot and killed himself in his room on the fourth floor of the Y. M. C. A. hotel, 826 South Wabash avenue, yesterday afternoon. His widow, living at 3257 Burr Oak avenue, Blue Island, was notified, but late last night she had not appeared to claim the body.

LEGISLATURE OF INDIANA TO GET DRY REPEAL BILLS

Indianapolis, Ind., June 24.—[Special.]—Several measures providing for repeal of the state bone dry prohibition law, as recommended in state platforms of the two major political parties this year, are being prepared for introduction at the special session of the Indiana legislature, which opens July 7.

It was reported Representative William J. Black of Anderson, Democrat, is preparing a measure for sale of medical whisky, now forbidden, on which the state would collect a tax of 50 cents a pint. The Black measure is understood to contain a clause "repealing all laws in conflict therewith."

Another measure would permit sale of whisky by physicians' prescriptions, in pint quantities, on payment of $1 fee or tax on each pint of whisky thus sold, the money to go to the state treasury.

The same bill would not permit a druggist to fill whisky prescriptions unless he had engaged in business at least three years prior to passage of such an act. That, it was explained, would do away with "bootleg drug stores."

Church's Lead Over Simpson Is Cut to 18

The contest for the Republican nomination for congress in the 10th district between Ralph E. Church and James Simpson Jr. became closer yesterday. Totals in the recount of the precincts in Chicago, in progress at the offices of the election commissioners, showed that Church's announced lead of 73 had been cut to 18. At one time the recount gave Simpson a slight lead, indicating errors in many precincts. So far 227 of the 349 city precincts have been counted the second time.

MAYOR WALKER HERE; GREETED BY LABOR GROUP

New Yorker Refuses to Talk Politics.

Mayor James J. Walker of New York arrived in Chicago yesterday in time to join in a parade in his honor arranged by the Chicago Federation of Labor. The mayor declined to discuss politics, explaining he is merely a member of the New York delegation and will keep step with the majority of the state's delegates.

Fifteen minutes before the arrival of the mayor's train in the La Salle Street station 500 members of the federation, headed by the federation band, filed into the train shed. They carried banners with the legends, "Chicago Federation of Labor Extends Loving Welcome to Jimmy Walker," and "Hey, Jimmy."

Serenaded by Band.

The band serenaded the mayor in his private car at the end of the train with "The Sidewalks of New York," "Hail, Hail, the Gang's All Here," and "There'll Be a Hot Time in the Old Town Tonight." Mayor Walker was cheered as he stepped onto the observation platform in a brown suit, gray shirt, and tan felt hat turned down at the Walker angle. The band played "For He's a Jolly Good Fellow."

The mayor smiled broadly.

In his car the mayor said of the reception committee, "I have an idea most of these people were down to give me a hand when I returned from San Francisco after my appearance in behalf of Tom Mooney."

Mayor Walker said he did not bring a prohibition plank with him. "Are you wet or dry?" he was asked. "Wet," was the answer.

Tells How Wet He Is.

"How wet?" "Enough," he replied, adding, "You know I don't dislike Dudley Field Malone's suggestion that we might adopt the Republican minority plank down to the last comma."

He was asked what and when he proposed to reply to the Seabury charges.

"I haven't read them all yet," was the reply.

To a question on the revelation before the senate stock market investigation committee disclosing him as a promoter for the market operations of William Fox, motion picture and theater magnate, he said, "You know there is nothing I can say."

Goes to Bendix Home.

On all questions pertaining to national politics he answered, "You know I have very little to do with the convention. I am but a member of the New York delegation. The voice of the majority of that delegation is good enough for me on all questions."

Mayor Walker went to the home of Vincent Bendix, where he will be a guest during the convention. He was preceded by the band and followed by a motor cavalcade of the labor organization members. He did not appear at the afternoon session of the resolutions committee, of which he is a member.

Chicago Students Off for Kentucky Mine Inquiry

A delegation of about a dozen students from the Meadeville Theological seminary and a few others from the University of Chicago left yesterday for Harlan and Bell counties, Kentucky, where they intend to investigate conditions among miners. Aron Gilmartin, leader of the theological students, said that they wanted to have first hand information before they make recommendations for assistance to the miners.

Toys Teach Children Generosity

"I'll let you push me, Billy," said John, hopping into his new red wagon.

"That's not much fun for Billy," said John's mother, overhearing. "Suppose you take turns riding, and let each boy do his share of pushing."

John agreed that it would really be lots more fun that way.

A new red wagon is a possession any boy will be proud to share. And if generosity leads it astray, there's his own name for identification.

ESTIMATE ESTATE OF ROSENWALD AT $45,000,000

Owned 789,238 Shares of Sears-Roebuck.

The inventory of the estate of Julius Rosenwald, filed yesterday before Probate Judge Horner, disclosed that at the time of the death of the pioneer merchant and philanthropist on Jan. 6 the gross value of his estate was in the neighborhood of $45,000,000.

At present the declining stock market has probably cut its value in half. In addition, it was disclosed that about 40 per cent of Mr. Rosenwald's stock holdings are posted as collateral with banks or are subject to other encumbrances. The amount of these encumbrances was not made known, so the net worth of the estate cannot be calculated.

Charities to Get $11,000,000.

In addition to paying state and federal inheritance taxes, Mr. Rosenwald's sons and daughters are bound by the terms of his will to turn over to the Rosenwald family fund, for the continuation of his charities, the sum of $11,000,000 within two years of his death.

Were the inheritance taxes collected strictly on an appraisal of the estate based on stock market quotations at the time of his death, the heirs and the charity fund might find that the federal and state tax collectors had taken most, if not all, of the estate. However, Sonnenschein Berkson, Lautmann, Levinson, & Morse, attorneys for the estate, issued a statement yesterday that it has not been necessary to date to dispose of any of Mr. Rosenwald's holdings of Sears, Roebuck stock in the open market, nor do they believe that it will be necessary to do so.

789,238 Shares of Sears.

Mr. Rosenwald owned at the time of his death 789,238 shares of stock in Sears, Roebuck & Co. This stock, which had a paper value of approximately 145 million dollars at the peak of the bull stock market, has declined from 30 to 10¼ since Mr. Rosenwald's death.

Attorney Leonard M. Reiser, one of the lawyers who drew the will, said last night that federal tax authorities agreed that it would have been impossible to dispose of such a large block of the stock as Mr. Rosenwald held at the quoted market price and that accordingly it is hoped that treasury officials will agree to an appraisal of the assets of the company as a basis for fixing the inheritance tax. This, it is expected, will give the heirs their equitable share of the estate, Mr. Reiser said.

Mr. Rosenwald's unencumbered holdings of listed stocks were as follows:

	Value Jan. 6.	Value June 24.

Totals....	$15,823,725	$7,054,647

Mr. Rosenwald also owned stocks which were posted as collateral on loans, loaned outright, or were posted to guarantee the stock accounts of employés of Sears, Roebuck & Co. These stocks, with their values at the time of his death and at present, follow:

	Val. Jan. 6.	Val. June 24.
409,934 Sears-Roeb ..	$12,028,020	$4,059,457
5,000 Amer Tob B.	335,000	251,875

5,000 Woolworth ..	186,875	119,375
Totals.....	$13,592,907	$5,275,669

The market values of the listed stocks in the estate have declined $17,086,316 since Mr. Rosenwald's death.

Other assets listed in the inventory are cash in banks of $101,475, proceeds of nine insurance policies on Mr. Rosenwald's life totaling $573,174, and personal effects, automobiles, and household furnishings appraised at $37,924.

The inventory listed notes receivable, classified as good assets, totaling $1,838,050, and accounts receivable classified as good, totaling $9,395,310. Classified as doubtful were notes totaling $1,619,075, and accounts receivable totaling $163,772.

Held Title to Home.

Mr. Rosenwald held title to his Ravinia home, valued at $250,000, and to the property on which the plant of Sears, Roebuck & Co. is located. The latter, however, is subject to repurchase by the company. It bears a 12 million dollar mortgage.

The estate lists only one bond, a $50 government issue, as good. A number of other bonds, listed as doubtful or desperate, are principally securities issued by various charitable or philanthropic enterprises with which Mr. Rosenwald was associated. Behind the matter of fact listing of doubtful and desperate items in the inventory probably lie dozens of stories of Mr. Rosenwald's philanthropies.

The inventory made known at what cost he guaranteed the stock accounts of his employés following the 1929 market crash. In the list of stocks pledges are 132,143 shares of Sears, Roebuck posted to guarantee such accounts, and in addition, another account listed shows that Mr. Rosenwald put up $5,575,000 in cash as a similar guarantee, secured by the stock holdings of employés, which are worth only a fraction of that sum at present.

FATALLY SHOT IN BACK BY DRY AGENT IN SOUTH

Find Victim's Rifle Unloaded.

Birmingham, Ala., June 24.—[Special.]—Tom A. McCombs, 38 years old, was fatally shot in the back here today by W. L. Hutto, a federal dry agent.

McCombs was shot down as he pointed a rifle at S. R. Posey, also a dry agent, who was working with Hutto, according to Sol Miller, deputy prohibition administrator of the north Alabama district. It developed that McCombs' rifle was not loaded.

In a dying statement the agent's victim declared he was only "trying to scare the agents into leaving John alone," knowing that his weapon was unloaded.

Special agents have been ordered here from New Orleans, 5th federal prohibition district headquarters, to investigate the slaying.

The agents, Posey and Hutto, sought to arrest John McCombs, a brother of the slain man, as the man who had delivered five gallons of whisky to them earlier in the day.

When they tried to seize John McCombs a scuffle occurred, according to the agents, during which John called to his brother Tom to "get that gun." Then, the agents said, Tom ran out of the house with a rifle and pointed it at Posey, and Hutto fired the fatal shot.

Miller was waiting nearby with nine prisoners in his custody, expecting to add John McCombs to them, when the shooting occurred.

Acquit Youth of Slaying Railroad Special Officer

Galesburg, Ill., June 24.—[Special.]—A jury in Circuit court here today found Willie Rogers, 21, of Lancaster, Ky., not guilty of the murder of Special Agent D. F. Geddes of the Burlington railroad, whom he killed last April 28 in the yards here. The boy pleaded self-defense, claiming that Geddes was not in uniform when he started to search him as Rogers attempted to ride the blind baggage. The officer was slain with his own gun, which Rogers secured in the scuffle that ensued. Spectators in the courtroom made up a purse to send Rogers back to Kentucky, where his wife is expecting birth of a child tomorrow.

Hungarian Students Give Blood to Save U. S. Envoy

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BUDAPEST, Hungary, June 24.—Five Hungarian students gave their blood today to save the life of Robert English, third secretary of the American legation. Doctors said the transfusion was successful. Blood poisoning developed after an operation that English recently underwent, causing severe internal hemorrhages. When the Hungarian student friends of the American learned of his plight they volunteered blood for the transfusion. Mrs. English, a daughter of Joseph Grew, United States ambassador to Japan, who has been visiting in Tokio, is reported hurrying to Budapest.

BRITISH RANCHER EARL SAILS FOR CANADA TO RETURN TO PLAINS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, June 24.—A dramatic episode at the dockside at Southampton today ended the residence in England of the young earl of Egmont, son of the late "rancher earl," called the most unconventional and democratic peer in the world. He had let it be known he preferred the life of a Canadian rancher to a title and estates in England.

Just as the Empress of Britain was about to weigh anchor the young earl and his uncle appeared at the quayside, rushed up the gangplank, and disappeared into their cabins, refusing to see ony one.

They had booked one way passages to Quebec and made a last minute dash in a fast car from the ancestral home, Avon castle, at Ringwood, 20 miles away. The young earl, wearing loose flannel trousers and a leather sports jacket, carried a small suitcase.

The earl and his uncle are traveling first class, although the shipping agent declared there was considerable dispute between the pair because the uncle wanted to travel tourist class. After his father's death a few weeks ago as the result of an automobile accident the young earl has declined to see any one and has been living the life of a hermit in a couple of rooms of the huge castle.

World Court Overrules Lithuania in Memel Case

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

THE HAGUE, June 24. — By an overwhelming majority of 13 votes to 3, the world court today overruled the objection submitted by Lithuania that the court had no jurisdiction to deal with the dissolution of the Memel diet, nor with the case concerning Lithuania's formation of a directorate in Memel because of lack of confidence in the diet.

PICK PRYSTALSKI TO BE HEAD OF CRIMINAL COURT

Judges Get Assignments for Coming Year.

Judge John Prystalski of the Superior court, a Democrat, was informally designated yesterday as chief justice of the Criminal court for the year beginning in September, although his formal election will not take place until that time.

JUDGE PRYSTALSKI

His selection was included in the yearly reassignment of judges in the Circuit and Superior courts. Formerly it has been the practice for all of the judges of the two courts to meet and elect the chief justice of the Criminal court, who in recent years has exercised a power in criminal prosecutions second only to that of the state's attorney.

How Selection Is Made.

In the Feinberg grand jury case, however, the Supreme court held recently that only those judges actually assigned to the Criminal court may vote for their chief justice. Yesterday the Circuit court judges met and sent one of their number to advise the Superior court judges that they would concur on any chief justice selected by those Superior court judges assigned to the Criminal court. The Superior court judges then recommended to the four of their number who were assigned to the Criminal court the election of Judge Prystalski.

Assigned with him to hear criminal cases were Judges Rudolph F. Desort, who is now sitting in the Criminal court; Harry A. Lewis and John J. Sullivan. All except Judge Lewis are Democrats. He is ill at present, and his selection to hear criminal cases occasioned some surprise among Circuit judges, who pointed out that the heavy Criminal court call will make duty there an arduous task during the next year.

Judge Prystalski and other members of the present executive committee of the Superior court were reelected for another year. Judge Prystalski is chief justice of that court, Judge Denis E. Sullivan head of the chancery division and acting chief justice, and Judge Walter P. Steffen head of the law division.

Finnegan Succeeds Brothers.

Judge Philip J. Finnegan was elected chief justice of the Circuit court to succeed Judge William V. Brothers, who becomes head of the chancery division. Judge John R. Caverly was elected head of the law division and Judge Stanley Klarkowski acting chief justice. The executive committee of this court will meet within a week to select three judges to sit in the Criminal court.

Both the Superior and Circuit courts will recess from July 18 to Sept. 17. During the vacation period nine judges, to be designated by the executive committee, will sit one week each in the Circuit court to hear emergency matters. In the Superior court Judges William J. Lindsay and Marcus Kavanagh will hear emergency matters from July 18 to Aug. 20, and Judges Ross C. Hall and Joseph B. David from Aug. 22 to Sept. 17.

Other Assignments Listed.

Other assignments in the Superior court were:

Common law jury calendar: Judges Worth E. Caylor, David, Joseph H. Fitch, E. I. Frankhauser, Hall, Kavanagh, John P. McGoorty, Michael L. McKinley, Harry B. Miller, Peter H. Schwaba, Steffen and Charles A. Williams.

Common law non-jury calendar: Judge Walter P. Steffen.

Divorce and separate maintenance: Judges Joseph Sabath and James J. Kelly.

Chancery: Judges Denis E. Sullivan, Lindsay and Robert E. Gentzel.

In the Circuit court Judges William V. Brothers, Joseph Burke, Harry M. Fisher, retiring chief justice of the Criminal court, and Hugo N. Friend, who has been sitting in the Appellate court, will hear chancery cases. Appointments to the law division and Juvenile court will be announced next week along with those of the Criminal court.

NEW COSMIC RAY PENETRATES 18 FEET OF LEAD

Panama City, June 24.—(AP)—Dr. A. H. Compton, noted physicist of the University of Chicago, said today recent investigations by his cosmic ray expedition showed a ray which penetrates 18 feet of lead.

It is definitely affected by the earth's magnetic field, he said, and added this indicated it was not light, but a stream of electrical particles.

Dr. Compton, a Nobel prize winner, planned to sail today for Peru to continue his studies in the Andes.

MAURICE L ROTHSCHILD
MINNEAPOLIS — State at Jackson CHICAGO — ST. PAUL

SUGGESTS CITY SEEK U. S. LOAN OF $162,000,000

With the passage by the senate of the Wagner bill providing one billion 460 millions to finance self-liquidating public projects, Ald. John S. Clark [30th], chairman of the city council finance committee, yesterday took steps to determine how much money should be requested for construction work in Chicago.

ALD. J. S. CLARK.

After a survey of projects now under construction or being considered, Ald. Clark announced that the city could use 162 million dollars. He directed the finance committee staff to determine whether the projects he has in mind conform to the Wagner bill provisions, and if they do he plans to call a meeting of the committee to draft the city's request for a loan.

Includes Subway Project.

The projects considered by the alderman and the amount of money needed for each follow:

Project—	Amount.
Construct'n of State st. subway	$63,000,000
Construct'n of 4 filtrat'n plants	55,000,000
City-wide street repaids	20,000,000
Complete meterization program	15,000,000
Complete Chic. av. wat. tunnel	3,500,000
Construct of N. State st. bridge	3,000,000
Constr. of S. Halsted st. bridge	2,500,000
Total	$162,000,000

"All these projects are sound and necessary," said Ald. Clark. "They are self-liquidating, and work on them should proceed immediately to aid unemployment. We would start on some of these projects immediately since plans already have been drawn.

"I have estimated that with $20,000,000 the city could repair in one season all the street work that falls within the scope of the vehicle tax fund and at the same time give jobs to a large number of men. This work would be self-liquidating since only minor repairs would have to be financed out of the fund during the next several years, and the fund collections, totaling over $5,000,000 a year, could be used to retire the federal obligation.

Water Sale Profits.

Repayment to the federal government for loans to complete the work on the Chicago avenue water tunnel, construct the filtration plants, and carry out the meterization program could be made out of revenues from the sale of water.

Filtration has been talked of for some time in the city hall, but never has gotten beyond the stage of estimating the cost and preparing preliminary plans. In these plans the plants are located along the lake front. The water tunnel, which is scheduled for completion in two years, could be finished in one. As security for the loan the city could give certificates against water sale revenues."

Authorize Bond Issues.

Bond issues for the construction of the North State street and South Halsted street bridges have been authorized by the voters at referendums and the bonds, Ald. Clark said, could be put up as security. Construction of the latter bridge is under way now, but work on the State street span has been delayed pending settlement of subway litigation.

"Plans have been prepared for a number of sections of the subway," Ald. Clark continued, "and it is likely that work could be started in short time, providing the city could get a loan."

DANZIG POLICE CLUB REDS, HALT DEMONSTRATION

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

DANZIG, Free State, June 24.—Efforts of Danzig communists to stage a demonstration in the center of the city this evening failed when police freely used rubber clubs to disperse the crowd. Five hundred Reds protested passage by the Danzig council of a law granting the government additional powers similar to the recent measures adopted in Germany.

The visit of the German battleship Schlesien and two torpedo boats resulted in patriotic demonstrations by Danzigers voicing protests against the free city's status and the wish to return to Germany. A continuous program of entertainments was arranged for the sailors during their visit which thus far has been without incident.

Newspapers warned the inhabitants to maintain order and the police force was increased 100 per cent during the stay of the fleet.

PARTNER ON TRIAL WITH SOVETSKY PLEADS GUILTY

Sam Ginsberg, co-defendant with John Sovetsky, known as "the million dollar fence," yesterday pleaded guilty in the federal court of Judge John P. Barnes to charges of receiving and of possessing goods stolen from interstate shipments. He faces a maximum penalty of 10 years in the penitentiary on each of the charges.

The government agreed not to use Ginsberg as a witness against Sovetsky, who continued to stand trial before the jury. Ginsberg and Sovetsky, partners in a store at 6234 South Western avenue, were charged with receiving $10,000 worth of clothing stolen from freight cars. Witnesses yesterday continued to identify clothing as part of that stolen from an interstate shipment.

Judge Barnes indicated that a session would be held tonight in order to complete the case so that the jury would not be locked up over the week-end.

TRIED FOR DRENCHING TENANT.

Lyman Jones, 40 years old, 649 Belmont avenue, was placed under $1,000 peace bond yesterday by Judge Alfred O. Erickson for drenching Mrs. Stella Kapner, a tenant of the same building, with a bucket of water.

HOOVER SLAMS "PORK" RELIEF; ASKS NEW BILLS

Revised, May Provide Aid to Chicago.

munity, the need in other centers, and the total appropriated for relief. Illinois, under such a plan, would not get less than $30,000,000.

For "Paying Out" Projects.

With the Garner-Wagner private construction provision President Hoover said he was in agreement.

"I am glad," he said, "to see the adoption by the senate and house of the principle of generous relief to unemployment. They have proposed to extend the authority of the Reconstruction Finance corporation to use its credit to make advances on adequate security up to one billion five hundred million dollars for construction work of the type which will pay for itself.

"On the other hand, I intensely regret that these major provisions for relief of unemployment in both the Garner and Wagner bills should have been made the vehicle for committing the federal treasury to the expenditure of from 500 million dollars to one billion 200 million dollars for nonproductive public works because these provisions have the triple vice of being a charge on the taxpayer, of unbalancing the budget, and of providing only a small amount of employment and that to a large extent in localities where it is not needed.

"Any study of many of these public works provisions will indicate plainly their pork barrel characteristics. A large part of the expenditures proposed are wasteful in the present times. They impose tremendous future costs on the people for maintenance; they are not economically needed.

Squanders Public Money.

"Much of it represents a squandering of public money. Much of it is mechanicalized work. The reports of the different technical bureaus of the government show that they would produce direct employment during the next year to an average of less than 100,000 men out of the many million unemployed.

"These expenditures cannot be recovered; they must be met by the taxpayer now, or in the future. In order to execute them, appropriations must be made to different departments and thus a deficiency created in the budget of anywhere from 500 million dollars to one billion 300 million dollars.

"Such a deficiency cannot be disguised by accounting phrases. We have worked for four months in heartbreaking struggle to bring about a balanced budget. We have imposed one billion 100 million dollars in taxes upon the people; we have reduced government expenditure by 600 million or 700 million dollars through which many government employés will have lost employment, all in order that we might maintain the integrity of federal credit. To start now to break down that credit and stability will result in the eventual unemployment of far more men than this comparatively few who are benefited. We cannot restore employment in the United States by these methods."

House Leaders Clash.

The house battle over the highly controversial relief bill began when Speaker Garner declared bluntly from the chair that Representative Snell had refused to assume the responsibility of membership on the house conference committee.

Leaping to his feet, the Republican leader shouted:

"To a certain extent the statement of the speaker is absolutely correct. But I say to him and to the house and the country that the minority leader has never refused to take any responsibility that legitimately came to him."

"I'll appoint you on this conference committee if you will accept it," retorted Speaker Garner.

"Are you discussing this with me or not?" demanded the now thoroughly angry Mr. Snell.

Conferees Appointed.

"This is a matter that has come from the ways and means committee," Representative Snell continued, more quietly. "I have simply taken the position that there is no reason why this legislation should be considered differently than any other piece of legislation that has been before this house."

The speaker thereupon closed the incident by appointing as conferees for the house Representatives James W. Collier [Miss.], Charles R. Crisp [Ga.], and Henry T. Rainey [Ill.], Democrats, and Willis C. Hawley Ore.] and Isaac Bacharach [N. J.], Republicans.

Vice President Curtis yesterday appointed Senators Peter S. Norbeck [S. D.] and Smith Wildman Brookhart [Ia.], both radical Republicans; and Robert F. Wagner [Dem., N. Y.] on behalf of the senate.

Class of 1902 Host

A dinner in honor of Miss Kate E. Ford, who spent 43 years as a teacher at the Motley elementary school, was given by members of the 1902 graduating class last night at the Knickerbocker hotel. Fifteen of the thirty-one pupils who received diplomas from Miss Ford thirty years ago this June were present. The class of 1902 was the first 8th grade group at the school, which is at 739 North Ada street. Mrs. Helen Simonson Teven, 6973 Sheridan road, read the same prophecy that she read upon graduation. Miss Ford wielded a large spoon and led her former pupils in classroom songs. Miss Ford retired in 1928, and lives at 6201 Wayne avenue.

CAPONE'S NAME ON PEACE BOND AROUSES COURT

A peace bond bearing the name of Al Capone was produced in Judge Sabath's court yesterday when Robert W. Paul, 4617 Magnolia avenue, a Union station "red cap," was arraigned for nonpayment of $800 alimony to his wife, Mary C. Paul.

According to the woman's lawyer, Isadore M. Leavitt, Mrs. Paul's divorce decree, granted in 1930, ordered her husband to pay $7 a week for the support of his daughter, Pamela, 5 years old. The attorney said Mrs. Paul had only received $30 since the divorce was granted. Then Paul waved his peace bond and insisted that he had lived up to the bond, but his wife had not. He handed it to Judge Sabath, who read:

"We, the undersigned do solemnly swear this day, May 7, 1929, we will enter into no fights, verbal or otherwise, arguments, or dig up past performances. That we will keep peace and do as to others as we would have them do to us. That we will strive at all times to make things pleasant for the other fellow."

It was signed by both parties and the blue seal attached to it had the words "Lake Michigan" on one side and "Al Capone" on the other. Paul claimed that he did not draw the document himself and could not account for the Capone reference. The court told Attorney Leavitt to bring the wife in court to explain the gangster's name on the document. The lawyer promised to do so and the case was continued until July 13.

POLICE ARREST 12 RED ORATORS AND DISPERSE CROWD

A group of 500 Negroes, listening to twelve communist speakers in Ellis park at 37th street was dispersed by police last night.

Because the listeners were slow in breaking up and hearing reports that two other groups of communists were hastening to the park, Capt. Thomas Condon of the Stanton avenue station called for reinforcements.

Thirty uniformed men from neighboring stations rushed to the scene. They were joined by four detective bureau squads, and these with extra help from the district station made a total of fifty-five uniformed and civilian clothed policemen. No violence occurred.

The orators were arrested. Some were found in trees, when they delivered their harangues. Police said that the meetings in Ellis park had been ultra-Red recently and for that reason, as well as the lack of a permit, took action last night.

TURKS CAPTURE LAST OF REBEL SHEIKS IN IRAQ

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BAGDAD, Iraq, June 24.—The last enemy stronghold opposing the Iraq government fell today when the notorious Kurdish sheik, Ahmad Barzan, who has effected a virtual reign of terror throughout Iraq for a long time, was driven across the Turkish border and surrendered to Turkish troops.

The success of the operations against the robber baron culminates four months of sporadic warfare in which the British royal air force cooperated. He was driven out of his village headquarters at Barzan, but succeeded in escaping to the mountains where he resisted all efforts of capture.

He refused the government's offer to spare his life if he surrendered and operations against him were resumed some weeks ago at the conclusion of a truce.

SENATE DELAYS FINAL ACTION ON ECONOMY BILL

Conference Report Is Rejected.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 24.—[Special.]—Final disposition of the 165 million dollar economy bill was again postponed when the senate today voted to disagree with the report brought in by its members on the conference committee of the two houses.

JOHN M'DUFFIE. [Acme Photo.]

The wrecking of the entire economy program became a distinct possibility. Chairman John J. McDuffie [Dem., Ala.] of the house conferees announced that he was going to Chicago and would not return until next Wednesday. He greeted the senate's action by saying that the responsibility now lay with the senate if their economy bill is not passed by July 1, the commencement of the fiscal year. If the bill is not passed on that date, he said, the savings lost will amount to $300,000 a day.

Prospect for Passage Fades.

Senator Kenneth McKellar [Dem., Tenn.], one of the foremost economy proponents, said that the prospect for the bill's passage had become "distinctly unfavorable."

The senate rejection of the conference report sends the measure back to another session of argument between the house and senate representatives. Since the house recessed today until next Monday, further action on the economy bill definitely is delayed until next week.

Not only is the bill delayed, but the whole series of matters in dispute is reopened to further revision. Included is the plan for enforced furloughs for federal employés which the house agreed upon last Monday.

Question in Dispute.

This was one of the principal sections to which members of the senate took exception. Of the centers of dispute was the question of returning to the treasury the money saved under the furlough program. Led by Senator Hiram Bingham [Rep., Conn.], a group of senators argued that under a proposed ruling by the controller general cuts in appropriations would be first applied resulting in the dismissal of employés, and that the furlough plan would be applied to the remainder.

Another group denied that this would happen.

A third group, headed by Senator Kenneth McKellar [Dem., Tenn.], one of the chief economy proponents, declared that unless it did happen, the economy bill would result in no additional savings, but merely duplicate the savings realized through cuts in appropriations.

BANKS CONSIDER 30 MILLION LOAN TO PAY SALARIES

Asked to Buy Warrants for School, City Pay Rolls

While a half month's pay was being distributed yesterday to all employés of the city, county and school board, loop bankers were considering a request by city officials that they purchase sufficient tax warrants to meet all back pay rolls of the city and board of education, approximately $30,000,000.

Mayor Cermak made $4,500,000 available for the city and school pay rolls out of various city trust funds. This money must be replaced and the mayor did not permit its use for pay roll purposes until he had received promises from a number of large taxpayers that they will make substantial payments on their delinquent 1928 1929, and 1930 taxes within the next few days.

For First Half of April.

City employés got their pay vouchers yesterday and long lines of them crowded the city treasurer's office to cash them during the day. They were paid for the first half of April, their pay rolls totaling approximately $1,800,000. This included workers in the public library and the municipal tuberculosis sanitarium.

Among the city employés who were paid were the 2,300 city laborers who went on strike earlier in the week in an attempt to collect their pay arrears. City officials were hopeful that their pay checks would induce the laborers to return to work.

Clerks in the office of Charles E. Gilbert, secretary of the school board, worked until midnight last night mailing out checks to school teachers and other employés of the board who have gone home for the vacation period. The school paychecks were for the first half of March and represented the first cash given school employés since May.

The school payments were divided as follows:

Teachers	$1,870,463
Civil service, educational fund	348,315
Civil service, building fund	57,500
Playgrounds	17,912
Lunchrooms	428
Total	$2,294,583

Four thousand county employés got their paychecks for the last two weeks of March, totaling $435,000, out of funds advanced by County Treasurer McDonough in anticipation of county office fee earnings. He also advanced $50,000 for mothers' pensions for the first half of April and an equal sum to pay jurors who served in May.

Confers with Bankers.

City Controller Szymczak conferred with bankers yesterday in regard to the city's request that banks buy enough tax warrants to clear up the back pay rolls of the city and school board.

He was told that the banks wish more time to consider the proposition. After he left the conference Mr. Szymczak said he was hopeful the city's request would be granted. Unpaid city pay rolls totaled about $6,000,000 and those of the board of education $20,730,611 after yesterday's pay day.

ROBINSON RESENTS HOOVER'S PICKING OF FINANCE BOARD HEAD

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 24.—[Special.]—A threat that "executive usurpation" by President Hoover will interfere with the confirmation of Gardner Cowles Sr., Iowa, to fill the vacancy on the Reconstruction Finance corporation board was issued in the senate today by Senator Joseph T. Robinson [Ark.], Democratic leader.

Senator Robinson based his warning on yesterday's White House announcement that Mr. Hoover intended later to select a president of the corporation to succeed Gen. Charles G. Dawes, and that such selection need not be from among the board members.

The President's appointment of Gen. Dawes in the first place was a usurpation of authority, said Senator Robinson, and he announced his intention of seeing that such usurpation was not further extended. It would, he said, be resented by congress and particularly by the senate.

"Mr. Cowles is not yet confirmed," declared Senator Robinson. "He probably will not be, so long as the President insists that the chief office of the corporation may be appointed by him from persons not members of the board of directors."

From the act creating the corporation the senator read the provision relating to board officials and employés, which stipulates that the board and not the President shall "select, employ, and fix the compensation of such officers, employés, attorneys, and agents as shall be necessary."

SENATE VOTES WHEAT, COTTON FOR RED CROSS

Postage Rate Increases Are Approved.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 24.—[Special.]—Bills dealing with farm board wheat, federal juries, threatening letters, and various postal increases were passed by the senate today during a morning hour in which 47 bills on the calendar were approved.

The farm board was authorized to turn over 50,000,000 bushels of stabilization wheat and 500,000 bales of cotton to the Red Cross for charitable distribution. The distribution will be the second of its kind during this session, 40,000,000 bushels having been turned over by the farm board under an earlier measure.

Alternate Jurors Approved.

The senate agreed to a bill already passed by the house, authorizing federal judges to order the selection of one or two alternate jurors in cases in which the trial is likely to be protracted.

The threatening letter bill, already agreed to by the house, provides a $5,000 fine or twenty years' imprisonment, or both, for any person convicted of sending through the mails a threatening letter with intent to extort money or any other thing of value.

Five bills relating to increased fees for certain postal services were agreed to. The five have passed the house and are among the measures counted on, together with the first and second class mail increases, to help balance the budget.

Second Class Rate Increased.

The postmaster general is given authority to fix fees for money orders. Notices to publishers of undeliverable second class mail are hereafter to be charged for. Rates are increased on second class publications mailed at the postoffice of entry for delivery within the postal district in which the headquarters of the publisher are located.

An additional $7,000,000 is expected from the increase in fees for registered matter and from new provisions permitting the registry of matter up to $10,000 in value. An additional $2,500,000 is expected from increases in the insurance and C. O. D. fees.

DO DIPLOMATS SPEND U. S. FUNDS FOR WINE? STIMSON DENIES IT

Washington, D. C., June 24.—[Special.]—Do American diplomats abroad spend their government furnished "representation allowances" for wine?

Senator Kenneth McKellar [Dem., Tenn.] declared they did. Secretary of State Stimson denied it. Senator Harry B. Hawes [Dem., Mo.] deplored the fact that they didn't.

Senator McKellar declared they did, during an economy speech last Monday. Secretary Stimson addressed his denial to Senator Wesley L. [Five and Ten] Jones [Rep., Wash.] and Senator Jones put it into the Congressional Record today.

"There have not been made and there are not being made from appropriations under the control of the department any expenditures for wine or other alcoholic beverages," wrote Mr. Stimson.

"I had hoped what the senator from Tennessee said was true," sighed Senator Hawes. "There are no pleasant contacts possible on the continent without wine. One must make concessions to the customs of the country. Some of our diplomats follow that rule even to the wearing of short pants. So why not wine?"

Girl Phones Sister She's Tired, Then Kills Herself

Miss Lillian Musil, 22 years old, 1127 Dunlop avenue, a telephone operator, shot and killed herself yesterday in her home after telephoning her married sister that she "felt tired and couldn't do anything." The sister, Mrs. Emily Springle, 225 Ashland avenue, Forest Park, went to the Musil home and found the body in a second floor bedroom.

FIGHTING PLANES THRILL CROWD AT MILITARY SHOW

Infantry, Sailors, Tanks Put on "Battle."

Four squadrons of fighting planes roared over Soldiers' field in perfect formation, escorting a plane bearing Mrs. Amelia Earhart Putnam, to open the George Washington bicentennial military tournament last night at 8 o'clock. In rapid succession the other arms entered the bowl of the arena, displayed their maneuvers and left, all returning at 10:30 p. m. to close the performance in a battle scene presented on a massive scale.

Infantry, cavalry, artillery, machine gun, antiaircraft and tank units thrilled the spectators, filling half the stadium, with dashing drills. Four hundred sailors from Great Lakes Naval Training station went through their semaphore drill with precision. A series of floats marking the influence of other peoples upon the history of the nation circled the bowl.

Welcomed by Gen. Parker.

Entering the field at the opening of the pageant, Mrs. Putnam was welcomed by Maj. Gen. Frank Parker, commander of the Sixth corps area and director of the pageant, and by Corporation Counsel William H. Sexton, who presented her with the city's gold medal.

Mrs. Putnam greeted the spectators over a loud speaking system and then recounted the story of her recent solo flight across the Atlantic over W-G-N. She was the center of attention until a picked troop of the 14th cavalry charged onto the field.

As the looping comet plane appeared in the sky after the cavalry display the canvas fence at the north end of the field caught fire and a portion burned to the ground, to the gratification of several thousand spectators seated on the steps of the Field museum.

Start Jumping Contests.

The first of a series of jumping acts over an Olympic course was won by Lieut. George S. Smith, aide to Gen. Parker, on his "Silver Belle." Four entries will jump each of ten nights of the touranment, and the finals will be run off the eleventh night, July 4.

Marching in the new mass formation, one thousand picked infantrymen of the 6th and 2d infantries split in half, moved in a square and rejoined without a command. The massacre and burning of Fort Dearborn were enacted with war whoops and fireworks. Battery D of the 3d field artillery, last year's winner of the coveted Knox trophy, fired its guns at a full gallop.

French war veterans and American officers who have been decorated by France paraded while M. Dufresne sang the "Marseillaise." The performance ended with the capture of Cantigny, a world war offensive, in which all the arms participating in the show went into action accompanied by the roar of cannon, rattle of rifle fire and a brilliant fireworks display.

The American Legion, with a massed drum and bugle corps and three bands, will replace the sailors in tonight's performance.

AVIATOR KILLED AT RACES; TWO DOWN EN ROUTE

Niagara Falls, N. Y., June 24.—(AP)—One flyer was killed at the international air races that opened here today. Richard Bennett, 35 year old manager of the Binghampton airport, plunged earthward in a burst of flames as he was rounding the second pylon in a race for small motored planes.

Two other pilots experienced mishaps while flying to the meet, but escaped serious injury. Charles Thompson of Baltimore was forced into a river near Olean by a downward current of air. His plane was wrecked. He suffered only a bruised leg.

Addy Halford of Lansing, Mich., was forced down near Sandusky, O., by a broken rudder cable.

The race in which Bennett was killed was won by J. Thropp of Trenton, N. J., Harvey Hughes of Lansing, Mich., was second; H. Neuman of Moline, Ill., third, and L. Musgrave of Grand Rapids, Mich., fourth.

Another race for small motored planes was won by Neuman, with Art Chester of Joliet, Ill., placing second.

Neuman also won the race for planes with 800 cubic inch motors. Roger Rae of Lansing was second; Arthur Davis of Lansing, third, and John Livingston of Aurora, Ill., fourth. Livingston won the spot landing contest.

SLAYING INQUIRY EXPOSES TICKET SELLING IN JAIL

Investigation of the murder and suicide in the county jail revealed yesterday that Frederick Studebaker, a suspended guard, had been selling tickets to prisoners and their families for the picnic of the Sheriff Meyering club on July 18.

Studebaker admitted that he no longer had the money he collected for the tickets, but he intended to pay for them when he received his salary. Studebaker was suspended with another guard, Ernest Marinelli, 550 Taylor street, pending further investigation of statements that Jack Lawrence, the prisoner who shot and killed a guard and then himself on Wednesday, had received unusual jail privileges.

Lawrence's widow and her sister, Miss Della Broderick, were also held yesterday while authorities continued to investigate the manner in which the pistol used by Lawrence was smuggled into the jail. A writ of habeas corpus in behalf of the two women was withdrawn yesterday after a brief court hearing before Judge Rudolph F. Desort.

Twins, Under 3 Lbs. Each, Kept Alive in Incubator

Two day old twin girls, born to Mrs. Gertrude Mason, 1254 West 14th street and weighing less than three pounds each, were being kept alive last night in an incubator at the county hospital. They are being fed with an eye dropper. The smaller of the infants, who weighed only two pounds and nine ounces, was said to have difficulty in breathing.

same things men did. Very few now flying have had that experience. They need the time and the instruction and the experience. But let's not say women can't be transport pilots until they have proved they can't."

Women Have Courage.

Her final fling, as she gathered up a huge bunch of roses presented by Maj. G. E. Brower, in command of the flight, on behalf of the mayor of Hammond, was:

"Courage? Why, men have never had a monopoly on courage. However, it wasn't so much my courage as my interest in the flight that made it possible."

Capt. Brock Putnam, brother of her husband, and the latter's son, David Binney Putnam, arrived at the airport with the Putnams and spent the day with them at the Brock Putnam home in Glencoe.

After attending the war show, Miss Earhart went to the Stevens hotel to receive further honors at a large reception of army and navy officials and civic leaders. She continued hatless, as on her arrival earlier in the day, and wore a navy blue silk suit trimmed in grey.

Aviation Notes

United Air Lines yesterday added two planes daily from Chicago to Cleveland, increasing the number of planes scheduled daily between the two cities to seven in each direction. There are four planes daily between Chicago and New York in each direction. The planes provide 64 seats daily in each direction between Chicago and Cleveland, and 40 seats each way between Chicago and New York.

Two new type pursuit planes that have not been seen previously in Chicago landed at Curtiss-Reynolds airport in Glenview yesterday to participate in the military tournament in Soldiers' field. They are the XP936, an experimental low wing Boeing all metal fighter powered by a highly supercharged Wasp motor, and capable of a top speed of 240 miles an hour, and the P-12F, an accepted Boeing low wing fighter with inclosed cockpit, also Wasp powered.

Twenty Injured as French Jobless Wreck Restaurant

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TOULOUSE, France, June 24.—Thousands of unemployed, led by jobless musicians, today stormed a café where a Russian orchestra was playing and wrecked it. Twenty were injured. The proprietor of the restaurant was hurried to a hospital, where his condition was reported critical. As the battle raged the French orchestra of a neighboring café joyfully played the "Marseillaise." Only after tables, chairs, siphon bottles, glassware and windows were thoroughly smashed and customers beaten up or driven off was the mob dispersed.

EX-POLICEMAN GUILTY IN SLAYING.

Clearwater, Fla., June 24.—(AP)—Jerry Metz, former prohibition officer and detective, has been freed of a charge of attempting to kidnap the daughter of Dr. David M. Gardner, St. Petersburg Baptist minister. The acquittal was returned last night and Metz said he planned to go back to his former home at Bluefield, W. Va.

POOR BOX THIEF JAILED.

Joseph Blaney, 22 years old, 3136 North Keeisie avenue, was sentenced to four months in the Bridewell yesterday by Judge Howard W. Hayes for stealing 40 cents from the poor box of the Holy Cross mission, 641 West Randolph street.

NURSE RECOUNTS HUTTON'S WOOING IN BEAUTY SALON

Weeps as She Describes Details.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Los Angeles, Cal., June 24.—[Special.]—Just where Miss Myrtle St. Pierre adjusted her vibrator and her infra-red ray on the 245 pound person of Dave Hutton, who, she says, broke his promise to marry her when he eloped with the Rev. Aimee McPherson, and just how she administered one of her famous "salt glows" to ample Dave in her health salon at Pasadena became a matter of information for the jury hearing the pretty nurse's $200,000 damage suit against Dave today.

Miss St. Pierre, who was on the stand for the third consecutive day, wilted twice under the barrage of Attorney Mark Jones' cross-questioning. Superior Judge Lester Roth at one time interrupted the court session to call a five minute recess during which the brunette witness wept into an already damp handkerchief.

Overcome by Story.

The plaintiff's breakdown came after questions from the defense counsel, which insisted that she give added information covering the incident when her resistance faded before Hutton's so-called impassioned protestations of love.

Considerable of the testimony concerned a song which Dave, radio baritone and Angelus temple choir leader, told Miss St. Pierre—according to her testimony—that he had composed for her. The song was titled "My Love in You."

After her affections had been toyed with, Miss St. Pierre testified, and she had learned of his marriage to the woman pastor, Miss St. Pierre said she was saddened and rendered ill by hearing the song over the radio, and described as the love song which Hutton had composed for the Rev. Aimee McPherson.

The name of Lloyd Curry, a Los Angeles business man, was introduced when Attorney Jones asked the witness: "That night you stayed at your sister's home after a party, did Lloyd Curry stay all night?"

"No, not to my knowledge. You're not going to trap me, Mr. Jones."

Evangelist's Name Comes Up.

The magic name of Hutton's evangelist-wife entered the trial when the nurse of "salt glows" and magnetic massages was asked: "Did you or did you not say to Dr. Marshall of the Marshall Health institute in Hollywood in October, 1929, that it would be a good idea to have the doctor get Aimee McPherson into a compromising position in the institute and shake her down for some dough?"

"I did not, and this looks like a stunt to frame me," answered Miss St. Pierre.

Judge Roth ruled that this subject matter could not be considered in this case and later barred evidence purporting to charge other money seeking activities on the part of Miss St. Pierre.

Eugene Eben, a radio musician subpœnaed as a defense witness, bowed low before Miss St. Pierre as she left the stand and announced that she was "a very dear friend."

"I shall testify for her," said Eben. "I don't care who subpœnaed me. My testimony can only aid this charming lady."

Suit Against Aimee Called.

Los Angeles, Cal., June 24.—(AP)—A $10,000 damage action brought against Aimee Semple McPherson Hutton, evangelist, and J. Roy Stewart, film director, by John R. Gates, scenario writer, was ordered to trial today.

A motion by Mrs. Hutton's attorney to postpone the trial because of Mrs. Hutton's illness was denied by Superior Judge Arthur Crum.

THREE NATIONAL AND TWO STATE BANKS CLOSED

Grant Rehearing on Test of Stockholder Liability.

Three national and two state banks in Chicago were closed yesterday by action of their boards of directors.

The national banks were the National Bank of Woodlawn, 1326 East 63d street; the Ravenswood National, 1306 Wilson avenue, and the Midland National, 4190 Archer avenue. These institutions called in A. P. Leyburn, chief bank examiner of the Chicago federal reserve district, to take charge of their assets.

State Auditor Oscar Nelson acted at the request of directors of the Kaspar American State bank, 1900 Blue Island avenue, and the Central Manufacturing District bank, 1112 West 35th street, to close those institutions.

3 National Banks Shut.

The National Bank of Woodlawn had capital of $300,000 and surplus of $100,000. Mr. Leyburn was unable to make a statement on its deposits at the time of closing. On Dec. 31, 1931, they were $2,240,385. The Ravenswood National had deposits of $500,000, capital of $200,000 and surplus of $35,000. The Midland National had deposits of $500,000, capital of $200,000 and surplus of $35,000.

Deposits of the Kaspar American State were $4,400,000 at the time of its closing. It had capital of $1,000,000 and a $400,000 surplus. The Central Manufacturing District bank had deposits of $3,500,000, capital of $600,000 and a surplus of the same amount.

Court Grants Rehearing.

The Illinois Supreme court granted a rehearing yesterday at Springfield in the Centralia State bank case, testing the liability of former stockholders of closed banks. Since the case was filed, seven groups of attorneys have sought to intervene on behalf of Chicago bank stockholders or depositors, since the case is expected to have an important effect on the liquidation of closed Chicago banks.

The court's original opinion, which is now subject to the rehearing, held that if stock transfers were made during a period when the bank was open each successive stockholder could be held liable up to the par value of his shares for debts accruing against the bank during the period he held the stock. Illinois law provides that stockholders in a closed bank are liable to assessments up to the par value of their stock to meet the debts of the bank.

Ald. Henry Sonnenschein [22d], who took his seat in the city council yesterday following his election to fill the unexpired term of the late Ald. Joseph Cepak, introduced a resolution, which was adopted, calling upon congress to make such amendments to the Reconstruction Finance corporation act as would permit that corporation to be of greater assistance to banks.

M'GEOGHEGAN IS INDICTED AGAIN IN BANK HOLDUP

Daniel McGeoghegan, south side beer runner, again was charged with participation in the $60,000 robbery of the State Bank of Clearing in a true bill voted yesterday by the grand jury. The gangster will face an early second trial if he can be found by detectives, who sought him yesterday.

McGeoghegan was given his freedom when the state asked a nol pros earlier in the week, after the first trial ended in a disagreement. The jury was dismissed after 24 hours' deliberation in which the vote stood 11 to 1 for conviction. Bank officials had identified the hoodlum as one of the bandits, while alibi witnesses claimed McGeoghegan was attending a funeral at the time of the robbery on Dec. 6, 1930.

Assistant State's Attorney Walker Butler asked the charge be dropped explaining that bank officials who were witnesses, were tired being guarded in a loop hotel. State's Attorney Swanson said the nol pros had been asked without his consent. Later Lambert Bere, vice president of the bank, agreed to testify at a second trial and appeared yesterday as the only witness before the grand jury. Bank officials and State's Attorney Swanson expressed satisfaction with the way Prosecutor Butler conducted the first trial and he was appointed to direct the second.

VIRGINIAN WINS ORATORICAL TEST ON WASHINGTON

Washington, D. C., June 24.—(AP)—James R. Moore of Washington and Lee university, Lexington, Va., won in the bicentennial oratorical contest finals here tonight over eight opponents from schools throughout the country.

Speaking on "Washington, Nation Builder," the Somerset, Ky., orator won with 18 points the official George Washington commemorative gold medal, the only placing award. Presented by Representative Bloom [Dem., N. Y.], associate director of the United States George Washington bicentennial commission sponsoring the contest. Participation medals were given all contestants.

Felicien Lozes, Loyola university, New Orleans, and Bryson Hays of Columbia university, Portland, Ore., tied for second place with 19 points each.

John Crawford, Northwestern university, was given 17 points.

Park Ridge Bank Cashier Is Sentenced to Prison

Peter J. Immel, 28 years old, former cashier of the Peoples and Merchants' State bank of Park Ridge, was found guilty of embezzlement yesterday by Judge Walter T. Stanton and sentenced to one to ten years in the penitentiary. The state charged that Immel took $8,000 of the bank funds by making unsecured loans to himself without approval of the board of directors. He was discharged from the bank two years ago. Later the assets of the bank were taken over by another Park Ridge institution.

CHARGE BANKER STOLE $10,000 TO PAY AS GRAFT

Berwyn Officials Hit in Story.

CRIMINAL COURT.

James Dickness, larceny, sentenced to 1 to 10 years in the penitentiary by Judge George Fred Rush.

Francis Karel, 32 year old president of the closed First National Bank and Trust Company of Berwyn, who was arrested Thursday on a federal warrant charging him with making false entries on the bank's books and misapplication of funds, embezzled $10,000 which he paid out in graft to politicians and city officials to promote the sale of a building in which he was interested. The charges are made in a suppressed indictment made public last night.

According to Assistant District Attorney Owen A. West, the money was paid to city officials of Berwyn as "commissions" to promote the sale of a $100,000 building to the city. The building was sold after these commissions were paid, it was said, but the municipality was slow in making good on its obligation and Karel was unable to replace the misapplied funds.

Combination of Three Banks.

The First American National was a consolidation of three banks, one of which was the First National Bank and Trust company of Berwyn. Karel originally headed this. When the merger was accomplished the combined bank moved into the quarters occupied by the American Trust and Savings bank.

Owning the quarters of the old First National of Berwyn was a holding concern known as the Berwyn Securities company, which had the same officers as the merged institution. Karel was president of both.

To get rid of the First National of Berwyn bank building Karel and his associates suggested to the city that it would be a good city hall. It is reported now that the city officials approached declined the "commissions" before they would put the sale over.

Takes Money Out of Bank.

Karel tried to borrow this sum downtown, was unsuccessful, and then, as Mr. West relates it, simply took the money from the regular funds of his banking institution. He is alleged to have carried it on the books as a loan, although there was no note to represent it. Berwyn paid $2,400 and this was applied to the shortage.

Bank examiners discovered the discrepancy. Following the closing of the bank last Saturday the matter was taken up with the district attorney's office and the indictment returned Tuesday. Mr. West said that the actions of the city officials in the deal would be investigated further.

PUPILS GIVEN 223,669 GARMENTS BY AID SOCIETY

The School Children's Aid society distributed 223,669 new garments during the school year of 1931-'32, it was revealed yesterday in the annual report of Mrs. George A. McCorkle, president of the organization. The society is an auxiliary of the Chicago Woman's club.

Mrs. McCorkle announced that the cutting and sewing department cut and assembled 4,786 dresses, which were made by 180 church societies, sewing guilds, and high schools. Several schools, in which the children were unable to furnish material for their sewing lessons, were furnished with a total of 1,278 yards of dress material.

The distribution included complete clothing outfits for both boys and girls and 56,620 pairs of shoes. The society carried out its project with unsalaried workers and by the provision of $82,833 from the public schools and $30,000 from the Joint Emergency Relief commission.

Supreme Court Reverses Verdict in Arson Case

The Supreme court yesterday reversed and remanded for trial the convictions of Thomas H. Farrell, piano builder, and Harry Samsky, trucking contractor, on charges of arson. They were sentenced to one to 10 years in prison by Judge John K. Newhall of Geneva in July, 1930, after the Farrell piano plant at Elgin was destroyed by a gasoline explosion. The state charged that there was a plot to collect $80,000 in fire insurance.

5 Sandino Rebels Slain in Clash with Guardsmen

TWO GOVERNORS HELP DEDICATE $400,000 WABASH RIVER BRIDGE

Evansville, Ind., June 24.—[Special.]—Governors of two states, Louis L. Emmerson of Illinois and Harry G. Leslie of Indiana, participated in the dedication of the $400,000 Wabash river bridge at Mount Carmel, Ill., today, the ceremony being attended by more than 10,000 persons.

While Gov. Emmerson cut the purple and green ribbons on the Illinois side of the stream Gov. Leslie severed the blue and gold on the Indiana side.

One of the features of the dedication was the singing of "The Star Spangled Banner" by Mrs. Irene Coolidge.

As the governors started their march to the center of the bridge from their respective shores a salute of 17 guns was fired by Battery D, 139th field artillery, Princeton unit of the National Guard. Both governors spoke during the afternoon's program, which was preceded by a parade in which scores of floats and decorated cars participated. Cities of Mount Carmel and Princeton, joined by the bridge, united in the celebration.

STATE SETS OUT TO PROVE BAIN BANKS INSOLVENT

Defense Refuses to Admit It.

Proof was being presented to Judge John M. O'Connor yesterday that the twelve banks once headed by South Park Commissioner John Bain are insolvent. This is a technical proceeding deemed necessary in the trial of Bain, his two sons, John H. and Robert A. Bain, and his son-in-law, W. Merle Fisher, who are charged with conspiracy to defraud the depositors.

Assistant State's Attorneys Howard M. Keele and Henry Seyfarth proceeded to ask Frank P. Murphy, 3309 West 60th street, assistant receiver of the Chicago Lawn and West Lawn banks about every scrap of paper in the banks. Was a note in a given amount and a given name found? Was the note paid? How many letters has the receiver sent the debtor? How many conferences were held with the debtor? Has a judgment been obtained?

Defense Won't Admit It.

Attorney Francis X. Busch, professor of law and twice corporation counsel of Chicago, who has charge of the defense of the four bankers, made many objections. The tedious process of proving default on notes, etc., is due to Busch's carefulness. The attorney will admit nothing for his clients. He wouldn't admit the twelve closed banks are insolvent—so the state lawyers are compelled to prove the insolvency.

Special Prosecutor Edwin J. Raber has shown that the Bain family borrowed more than $2,000,000 from the twelve banks of which they were executives, and that their friends and business partners borrowed as well. He has shown that most of the loans were unsecured—no collateral having been required.

Depositors' Losses Shown.

He has shown that the twelve banks had only $236,000 in cash in all of them when they were closed June 9, 1931, even though they had collected $884,000 in taxes which they did not turn into the county treasury. He has shown inflated values on many of the properties carried by the bank as assets. He has shown the hopelessness of expectations by the thousands of depositors, whose claims aggregate $13,000,000, of ever getting any considerable amount in repayment.

"But it is necessary to prove the banks insolvent," he explained yesterday. "We are showing the worthlessness of much of the paper in those banks. We will show the conspiracy later."

Council Acts to Halt Stealing of Auto Parts

The city council yesterday adopted a resolution by Ald. Walter Morris [18th] instructing the judiciary committee to draft an ordinance to make more difficult the disposition of stolen automobile parts. "It is apparent that most automobiles are stolen for the purpose of stripping them and selling the parts and accessories," Ald. Morris told the council. Mayor Cermak suggested recently that a system of regulation similar to that now exercised by the police over pawnshops be set up for dealers in second hand automobile parts and accessories.

Alice Rosman Pens Another Happy Novel

"Benefits Received" Is Her Standard Work.

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

"Benefits Received," by Alice Grant Rosman. [Minton Balch.] Published yesterday.

ALICE GRANT ROSMAN is one of the most gifted of all writers of fiction, for she is blessed with the ability to write a book about nothing [or about anything at all] so delightfully that anybody can find in it relaxation and amusement. Her novels from "The Window" on have been light whiffs of milkweed seeds, but they have a certain quality of realness and humanness that makes them the kind of fluff by which the most sedate reader finds himself intrigued as well as the most frivolous pursuer of plots.

ALICE ROSMAN.

Her novels are, of their kind, as good as are being done today. They belong to the genus of the old fashioned hammock novel, a phrase reminiscent of a day when we lolled in luxury with a box of caramels melting in our mouths before they melted in the sunshine, and pursued our literary careers by reading caramel-ish fiction.

But they are not "sticky" nor mushy. They have real sweetness in them and real sentiment to the exact degree which the modern reader will allow in his modern novels. They might be read aloud to any old fashioned Sunday school class, and yet there is nothing goody-goody about them. In a word, they are superb fluff.

"Benefits Received," yesterday's offering, is no more and no less characteristically Rosmanesque than her previous novels. It will neither surprise her friends for its charms nor delight her enemies for its lack of them. It is standard and the Rosman standard is by now well established. Friends of her work look forward with a comforting anticipatory pleasure to a book by her. Enemies [if there are any] can do nothing about it but ignore it. She makes no pretenses to writing great literature. And neither does she, like some modern writers, do the kind of thing that makes readers think "she only does it to annoy because she knows it teases." She never teases. She, quite simply and honestly, pleases!

"Benefits Received" is about a very nice young girl whose father had been an explorer and had left her an orphan [her mother had died when she was eight]. She was "discovered" by an eccentric old grandmother who took her in for a year and then as oddly put her out without any explanation other than an obviously faked quarrel. What lay behind the quarrel, how the girl faced the sudden change in her fortunes, how the canny old woman chose to provide for her granddaughter's future, is the warp of the tale. Its woof is a gay romance.

The character one is most liable to remember in the book is the grandmother, Mrs. Devonshire, who lived in a grand house in Portman square and died as grandly, like a gentleman with his boots on!

There is nothing profound about "Benefits Received," but, in weather like this, when getting steamed up about anything is the next to the last thing one cares to contemplate [the last being a trip to the official tropics!] a book which is about nothing on earth being exactly what it is, a gay pouf, really deserves itself to be listed, as so few books seem to be, among "Benefits Received."

India Is Setting for Romance of Love and Intrigue

"The Palace of Intrigue," by A. E. R. Craig [Minton Balch], is an exotic romance laid in India, involving intrigue and love and tragedy. The beautiful and wicked young wife of a shah tries to supplant the shah's legal wife, who has borne him two sons. The young wife's son dies almost at birth. She steals another boy from a perambulator of an English lord to bring up as her own until another son is born. The adopted son is sent to England and is betrothed to a native Indian favorite. He meets, however, the lovely English girl, Fiona Lovell, who is the ward of his legal parents [whom he does not know] and falls in love with her. This is the outline of an exciting tale involving the background of international cultures.

[Director of Children's Work for Branches of the Chicago Public Library.]

"Debby Barnes, Trader," by Constance L. Skinner. [Macmillan.]

"Shuttle and Sword," by Hawthorne Daniel. [Macmillan.]

A NEW Constance Lindsay Skinner book is always a promising addition to the older girl's bookshelf and in "Debby Barnes, Trader," the promise is well fulfilled. It is another excellent frontier story centered about two orphan sisters, with its scene laid during the French and Indian war. During an Indian attack upon the isolated cabin of Isaac Barnes his two foster daughters disappear, Rose, the younger, becoming a captive of the attackers, and Debby escaping from the locality finally to find a home over the mountains in the cabin of Daniel Boone's parents.

The young Daniel recognizes in Debby a fearless, resourceful frontier girl, and they enter into a partnership to hunt and trap during the winter. The winter is an eventful one for the young hunters, for on a trip to Philadelphia they meet Benjamin Franklin, the young George Washington, and another stranger who turns out to be Debby's aristocratic uncle from Baltimore.

Disliking her uncle's snobbish attitude, Debby refuses to make known her identity and continues to search for her sister, aided only by the efforts of her frontier lover, a white boy who had been brought up as an Indian. When the uncle later plays a creditable part in the rescue of Rose, Debby sees him in a new light, but she remains true to her love for the wilderness and settles down to a life in the frontier as mistress of the old Boone cabin, while Rose returns to the luxury and riches which their mother had cast away so long before.

The story is an extremely interesting one with the action, adventure and romance which the teen age girl demands so definitely in her stories. It offers at the same time an excellent picture of frontier life, and of the various types of people found there. Especially interesting is the intimate picture of life in the Boone family and of the sturdy old Quaker father who chose to push further on into the wilderness rather than accept the domination of the fanatics of his own sect. A fine story, exceedingly well told and a worthy successor to "Becky Landers." It was a May selection of the Junior Literary guild.

Another author whose name stands high among young folks is Hawthorne Daniel, and his new book, "Shuttle and Sword," is another that meets the high expectations of his readers. It is a story of Flanders' revolt against the French, and of their trade alliance with England in the days of Edward III.

The hero, young Diereck van der Weyden, son of the master weaver of Bruges, sets out on a journey to London to learn about his father's business, but on his way to Ghent meets a fleeing fugitive who gives him a secret message to be delivered in the city. This is the beginning of a series of mysterious adventures which involve the young craftsman in a battle with the French overlord's men and finally in the struggle which won freedom and neutrality for the province in the French-English war. It is a fine historical story with plenty of action and mystery, and a young hero who is very real. Boys especially will like it.

"Esther Waters" to Mark Anniversary of George Moore

It is nearly the eightieth birthday of George Moore. Liveright is celebrating the occasion by issuing "Esther Waters" in a new edition. This novel, written in the last part of the 19th century, is one of the finest realistic studies of its kind. It follows in the great tradition of the English novel, presenting the character of Esther Waters and tracing her adventures and misadventures over the period of a lifetime. The book is a brilliant realization of the author's initial purpose, that of portraying in detail, painstakingly, truthfully, realistically, the life of the heroine.

George Moore has, after much effort (he says), written a preface to the book. It is an imaginary colloquy between Esther Waters and George Moore. In it the author subtly reveals many of his artistic theories. Esther says, "I was thine in the beginning, but as soon as a book is written all right passes from the author to the book itself," to which George Moore replies: "Thou wouldst have me believe, then, that the creator passes into nothingness and the thing created lives on?" She concludes: "About that there can surely be no doubt. A man's life is brief; a book's life may be prolonged century after century."

George Moore, in the charming imaginary colloquy, asks again: "But can a book create a human soul?" to which wise Esther replies, "Books like me are doing that every day," and finally she says [a revelation of George Moore's own superb critical aptness]: "I belong to the 19th century. All its ideas are incarnate in me." Despite the fact that the book is "dated" all readers who want to know an example of English realism at its height, the unflagging, faithful realism of the 19th century, should surely not miss "Esther Waters," one of the classics in the English language.

British Await Memoir Tale of Stage Family

Fanny Kemble Subject of New Book.

BY FRANK SWINNERTON.

LONDON.—[Special Correspondence.]—A new book which should be of great interest is the illustrated memoir of Fanny Kemble, announced here by Elkin Mathews and Marrot. The author is Dorothie de Bear Bobbé. Fanny Kemble was the daughter of one famous actor and the niece of two of the most famous persons in the history of the English stage—Mrs. Siddons and John Philip Kemble. She was an actress herself, but not of the first rank, because she did not seriously care for acting. And she was one of the most intelligent women of her age.

DOROTHIE BOBBE.

Fanny Kemble's autobiographical works are fascinating. The earliest of them, "Records of a Girlhood," gives an account of the life of England a hundred years ago and the preoccupations of young womanhood in those days, which in its own field is unsurpassed.

If Miss Bobbé's book sends readers back to Fanny Kemble's work it will have done a service to the contemporary reader, and as Fanny Kemble married an American, her later journals give a picture of the south which [though unsympathetic] has at least qualities of vividness and feeling. She was then a disappointed woman, and unhappiness colored her vision. But all she wrote is as much alive today as it was when she set pen to paper.

It was E. V. Lucas who first made known to me the charm of Fanny Kemble's "Records." He described this as one of the finest "bed books" in the world. A new edition of it, edited by Mr. Lucas, would be welcome. But Miss Bobbé's book will do to go on with. Mr. Lucas' book of recollections is now due for publication. I should have said "overdue."

It is good news that we are soon to have a new novel by Miss Norah Hoult. She has gone to Ireland to write it, and is at present in Dublin, hard at work upon it.

A new novel of life in Russia during the revolutionary period has been published in London. It has great qualities of clearness and intelligence. The author is a Jewess who writes from personal experiences. Her name is Esther Salaman, and the book is called "Two Silver Roubles." It has been written in English.

The book that is being most widely read just now by memoir-lovers is the second volume of Sir William Rothenstein's autobiography. Although in the matter of "names" this volume will compare favorably with its predecessor, it has not quite the same personal interest.

Sir William Rothenstein has known many of the most interesting people of his age, but as he has grown older his contacts have been less urgently experienced. What he has to tell is less lively and less vital.

There will always be two opinions as to the excellence or otherwise of Sir William's portraits of these friends as reproduced in the two volumes and in separate publications. I am among those who do not find them very good, but I so much admire Sir William's other work that anything he does will always seem to me to be full of interest.

For These Reasons Did John Cowper Powys Write

When John Cowper Powys was asked why he writes novels he replied, "To earn my living, to get the sensation of reading what I wrote; that is, of writing the sort of book that pleases me most to read, to get the pleasure of my friends' liking what I wrote, to get the pleasure of imagining complete strangers liking what I wrote, to get the pleasure of triumphing over my enemies, to express certain moral, philosophical and mystical ideas that seem to be unduly neglected these days, and to get the pleasure of having my imagination for a long space of time fixed intensely upon England."

Navy Men Write of Old Ironsides and Her Fighters

Elliot Snow and H. Allen Gosnell have penned a salty biography of America's most famous ship of war in their "On the Decks of Old Ironsides" [Macmillan], which both grownups and youngsters will dash through with the enthusiasm that goes with a tale of Yankee prowess on the high seas.

It's an inspiring volume of victory and valor, with much of the narration by seamen and officers of the old Constitution itself, gathered from various old time magazines and diaries.

Such famous fighters as Preble, Hull, Bainbridge, Stewart, and Decatur sail gloriously through its pages, bringing fame to Old Ironsides and making it, perhaps, the world's most famous ship—certainly America's best known ocean fighting unit.

The authors are both navy men. Elliot Snow is a rear admiral, U. S. N., retired, and H. Allen Gosnell is a lieutenant commander, U. S. N. R. The book is handsomely illustrated and has much data on the famous old frigate.

Picture of Chinese Royalty Presented by Short Stories

Princess Der Ling, who was the first lady-in-waiting to the former dowager empress of China, has written in "Jades and Dragons" (Mohawk), a series of short tales and sketches about various personalities in and out of international life. She sets her delightful sketches in Peking where foreign and native diplomats and nobles lived.

The stories, delicately written with those nuances and innuendoes of thought and expression that usually characterize French writing, are charming and vivid thumbnail sketches of the high society in Peking, the society that was. Social customs and taboos, wives and mistresses, foreign and Chinese, diplomatic intrigue, all the array of interesting and uninteresting characters who are always found on the edges of and within royal society are included in this delightful book.

JUST PUBLISHED / THE NEW NOVEL
By Alice Grant Rosman
Author of THE WINDOW and VISITORS TO HUGO

NEVER has Miss Rosman created a more lovable character than Biddy Kerlin, gay and independent in the face of her strange dismissal from her grandmother's house; nor a more delightful one than Grandmother Devonshire, hiding under her sharp wit a wonderfully brave, warm heart. As for Sholto Fenwick, we defy you to find anywhere a more entertaining young man. No wonder Biddy loved him. "Benefits Received" is the best Rosman novel. Don't miss it.

PARIS AND BERLIN AGREE TO EXTEND SCOPE OF PARLEY

Decide Problem Is Bigger than Reparations.

BY JAY ALLEN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LAUSANNE, June 24.—In two long conversations, the German and French delegates to the reparations conference earnestly explained each to the other the gravity of his own country's financial and economic situation.

The Germans took up the morning session, recounting their miseries—a railway deficit, budget troubles, mounting unemployment and a falling trade balance. The French took up the afternoon session doing practically the same thing. The Germans sought to prepare the way for their insistence on wiping the slate of all political debts, and the French for their insistence more or less to the contrary.

Take Up Bigger Problems.

So absorbing were these tales of woe that neither side chose to go today into a debate on principles. There was another reason—that it has become apparent that cancellation or any other reparations settlement now will not be enough. Before Premier Herriot left for Paris tonight, and Chancellor von Papen for Berlin, the French asked the Germans to bring forward not a statement of their definite stand on reparations but of their plan for economic reconstruction, particularly in aspects that might be accepted in compensation for renunciation, masked or otherwise, of future French claims.

The French and German experts will continue their labors tomorrow and on Monday afternoon Von Papen and Herriot will return here and get down to facts, with the possibility that enough progress will have been made so that the middle of the week will see the scope, if not the actual fate, of this conference decided.

Discuss Tariff Cuts.

With Herriot and Von Papen both convinced that they have on their hands a job vastly greater than burying reparations, which have evaporated to all intents anyway, the experts already are up to the neck in a welter of projects for reviving Europe—tariff reducing agreements, such as the Dutch-Belgian scheme, industrial privileges, and economic pacts.

One plan that was given profound attention today aims at the establishment of a vast European reconstruction fund in the Bank for International Settlements at Basel to save the embattled currencies of Europe and to maintain and extend the gold standard. This is linked up with a sweeping plan of coöperation for central European salvage and tariff reductions.

Both Sides Outline Views.

The initial conversations of the French and Germans went off without shocks. Count Schwering von Krosigk, German finance minister, produced data aimed to show the French how near the reich is to disaster and what efforts have been made to keep the mark from slipping and how urgent is the need of united effort to stave off a catastrophe.

Louis Germain - Martin, French finance minister, outlined the French situation, stressing the threatened budget deficit, the falling off of exports and railway losses. In a short, friendly debate, the French called the Germans' attention to the contrast of the highly paid German and the notoriously underpaid French public servants.

"This is a historical fact; it has always been so," Von Krosigk answered.

The French were in better humor and Herriot was inspired after the meeting even to blithe quotations in German verse pertinent to the occasion. He quoted Heine: "The air is cool, but it is not getting dark."

8 NATIONS UNITE TO FORCE HOOVER PLAN TO FRONT

Urge Moral Pressure for Disarm Scheme.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

GENEVA, June 24.—A determined move to save President Hoover's disarmament proposal from piecemeal discussion behind locked doors in private Anglo-American conversations is on foot here.

Eight of the smaller powers met today to prepare a campaign to revive the conference and consider the plan to reduce the armaments of the world by one-third as a whole. These nations were Holland, Spain, Switzerland, Sweden, Norway, Denmark and, significantly, two of France's military allies, Czechoslovakia and Belgium. All heartily approve of the plan, but they will ask to have it complemented by measures for international control and, having no vast stakes for argument themselves, they count on exerting moral pressure.

Postpone Talks Until Tuesday.

Foreign Minister Dino Grandi of Italy talked at length today with Hugh S. Gibson, head of the American disarmament delegation. He urged that a meeting of the general commission of the disarmament conference be called to consider what is now the Italian as well as the American plan, since Premier Mussolini in his enthusiasm had the Hoover proposal duplicated.

The three power conversations among the United States, Great Britain and France will not be reopened again until possibly as late as Tuesday pending a study of the Hoover plan by the latter two nations.

Senator Claude A. Swanson today called the plan "a blast on the battlefield of disarmament," putting the American delegation in the front line of the battle.

Dying of Suffocation.

"Any one who has the idea that this plan is going to die in private conversation is mistaken," he declared. "We are dying of suffocation in this conference. Wouldn't it be better to go out on the battlefield than to die of suffocation?"

Gibson today addressed the disarmament organizations, who are swarming here as lobbyists without a single William Shearer to combat. He assured them that the plan is more than a Hoover plan, but an all-American plan, which has the support of the chief of naval operations, the chief of the general staff, and other officials.

Gibson also called on Baron Tsuneo Matsudaira and Naotake Sato today to attempt to sell the naval clauses of the plan to Tokio. The Japanese delegates said they are awaiting instructions.

Britain Considers Proposals.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, June 24.—For two hours today the cabinet discussed President Hoover's disarmament proposals and Foreign Secretary Sir John Simon's report of the proceedings at the Geneva disarmament and Lausanne reparations conferences. The cabinet will resume its discussions Monday, which necessitates Sir John postponing his return to Switzerland. It is understood that the cabinet welcomes Hoover's declaration, but prefers the British plan for reduction of the size of battleships instead of reducing their numbers.

Supreme Court Upholds Jail Term for Sheridan

John D. Sheridan Jr., 21 years old, must serve a 10 day sentence for contempt of court imposed for giving false testimony before the grand jury, the state Supreme court held yesterday. The sentence was imposed on Oct. 24, 1930, by Judge John P. McGoorty, then chief justice of the Criminal court. Sheridan, who was then acting secretary of the teamsters' union, was pronounced guilty of giving false testimony regarding payments made from the union treasury to George [Red] Barker, labor racketeer, since shot to death.

Laws Exempting Vets from Peddling Licenses Upset

The Illinois Supreme court by a 4 to 3 opinion at Springfield yesterday held that laws exempting war veterans from obtaining licenses to peddle in Chicago were class legislation, and therefore unconstitutional. Justices Heard, Orr, and Jones dissented from the majority opinion. The right of veterans to sell candy, ice cream, and similar commodities in parks and about city recreation centers was the subject of a number of injunction suits directed against park commissioners and the city last year, in which the veterans won in the lower courts.

Wanamaker's Grandson Files for Reno Divorce

Reno, Nev., June 24.—[Special.]—John Wanamaker Jr., grandson of the late John Wanamaker, noted merchant, filed a divorce action against Pauline Disston Wanamaker here today. They were married in Newport, R. I., on Aug. 11, 1917, and have two children. The bill asks the court to approve a settlement of $4,375 quarterly to support the wife, and $1,250 quarterly to support each child. Wanamaker charges desertion August, 1924.

Convictions of Two in Brokerage Deal Reversed

The conviction of James Gualano, president, and Jack Warren, secretary of Hamilton, King & Co., Chicago stock and bond brokerage firm, for misappropriating $18,000 worth of stock belonging to Leroy Horton, was reversed yesterday by the state Supreme court. Gualano and Warren, who had been sentenced to one to 10 years, contended that Horton had deposited the stock as collateral to buy more stock.

HITLER DECLARES "HOUR AT HAND" TO SQUELCH REDS

Demands Germany Be Put Under Martial Law.

BERLIN, June 24.—(AP)—Political clashes in Germany that have cost ten lives within the week today brought a public declaration from Adolf Hitler demanding martial law throughout the country.

The document, coming from Nazi headquarters at Munich, also declared for suppression of the communist party and purging of the police, especially in Prussia, of their socialist and centrist members.

"The hour is at hand," the document declared. "It is five minutes before twelve."

Meanwhile Hitler's National Socialists and the communists joined forces in the Prussian diet today to adopt a Nazi bill lifting the ban on political demonstrations in Prussia.

Diet Members Walk Out.

At Stuttgart today the communist, centrist and socialist members of the Wuerttemberg diet walked out when the Nazis appeared in uniform.

When they returned they offered a bill empowering the presiding officer to eject a uniformed member, a maneuver which created such a hubbub that temporary suspension was taken.

Before the martial law demand by Hitler his National Socialists had threatened to seize the police power themselves unless the Von Papen government put an end to the rioting.

Hohenzollern Stock on Rise.

Although the Hohenzollern family issued its customary denial of plans to restore the former kaiser today, there was a great deal of evidence that his family stock is on the rise in Germany.

This is indicated by the fact that the former monarch's sons now appear regularly in parades and demonstrations by war veterans, whereas formerly they usually reviewed troops beside officials of the former soldiers' organizations.

Der Aufrechte, Berlin monarchist organ, today expressed the opinion that, following upon the downfall of the Bruening cabinet, the "monarchy is the necessary final goal."

The left radical paper, Berlin am Morgen, said that Gen. Franz von Epp, Bavarian National Socialist [Fascist] member of the reichstag, visited the former kaiser at Doorn recently to discuss the possibility of his return to the throne.

Deny Royalist Meeting.

AMSTERDAM, The Netherlands, June 24.—(AP)—Reports that the former German crown prince had visited his father in Holland in connection with a movement looking toward restoration of the Hohenzollerns were met today by official denials that the prince had been in the country or intended to come here. The former kaiser is concluding his seashore holiday at Zandvoort tomorrow, when he will return to Doorn.

The report that the former crown prince had visited his father was printed by the London Daily Herald. It said conferences have been going on in secret for a week among the former kaiser, German bankers and monarchist politicians with a view to possibly restoring the Hohenzollerns. The dispatch added that the former crown prince had made his first visit to Holland in seven years for conferences.

Bavaria Defies Hitler.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MUNICH, Germany, June 24.—"We will not allow our citizens to be treated as vassals by bands of uniformed terrorists."

This was the substance of a statement which the Bavarian cabinet drafted today in reply to the ultimatum of the federal cabinet demanding that Hitlerites be allowed to wear their uniforms in Bavaria.

"We will bring the young citizens of Bavaria on the streets to defend their constitutional rights," the Bavarian secretary of state threatened.

Hitler, defying the Bavarian government, ordered his followers to concentrate in Munich to stage a great demonstration Sunday.

Mother of Five Jailed for Shooting of Deputy

Mrs. Alma Miller, 38 years old, 1238 West 74th place, was sentenced to 90 days in the county jail yesterday by Judge George Fred Rush on a charge of assault with a deadly weapon. The punishment was fixed by a jury, which returned a guilty verdict after 40 minutes' deliberation. Mrs. Miller, mother of five children, shot Deputy Sheriff Frank Rollins last month when he attempted to force entry to her home to serve a writ of replevin.

Cult Leader Imprisoned for Rape Gets New Trial

Joseph Abbate, who was convicted of statutory rape of Lucy Vitiello in Chicago and sentenced to life imprisonment in Joliet, was granted a new trial yesterday by the state Supreme court. The decision held that the evidence against Abbate was not conclusive proof of his guilt. Abbate conducted a religious cult at 2021 De Kalb street. The charge against the self-styled priest was filed two years after the alleged offense.

U. S. FILES LIENS TO COLLECT TAX ON ILLEGAL RUM

Actions Placed Against 5 in Milwaukee.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Milwaukee, Wis., June 24.—[Special.]—Three liens to collect taxes on "distilled spirits" alleged to have been manufactured by persons arrested in federal prohibition raids were filed in federal court today by the internal revenue department.

The persons named and the amount of tax to be collected are: Thomas Di Cicula, 722 South 28th street, $204; Oswald and Erwin Carl Mehlos, 1954 North 33d street, $363; John Wilder and James Cruso, Kenosha, $167. All of the men were arrested in March, and their cases have not yet been tried.

The liens, the second batch to be filed in two weeks, mark a new departure. They enable the government to seize any property the person named possesses in order to satisfy the tax. They are in addition to the possibility of padlock, confiscation of property found in places raided, imprisonment and an additional fine, all of which have been previously invoked in the eastern Wisconsin district in some cases.

At the time the liens were filed it was made public that such collections of taxes from persons arrested in raids have been quietly made for the last several years in the eastern Wisconsin district through the medium of compromise settlements and in a few isolated instances by civil court suits, settled before they came to trial.

The federal prohibition headquarters in Washington is said to be in possession of information regarding liquor seized in other raids in this area than those mentioned in the liens, and on which settlements will be demanded or tax liens filed. The information is filed after each raid, together with the probable time a still, brewery or saloon has been in operation and its probable output during that time on which the tax is computed.

The normal tax charge is $8.40 for a gallon of distilled spirits, and $4.30 for a barrel of beer. In some Wisconsin raids more than a thousand gallons of alcohol have been seized. These larger tax cases generally result in a compromise settlement, it was said.

Raskob's Son Fined for Speeding on Ohio Road

Dayton, O., June 24.—(AP)—John J. Raskob Jr., son of the chairman of the Democratic national committee, was fined $10 today on a charge of speeding fifty miles an hour on a main thoroughfare. He is working in a local plant.

Policemen Capture Two Robbers; Shoots One

Michael Novak, 30 years old, who told police he was from Detroit, was shot and seriously wounded yesterday when he and James Snyder, who gave his address as 945 West Madison street, attempted to rob the Ideal restaurant, 1407 West Madison street. Policemen George Lahey and Richard Farrell of the Des Plaines street station captured both robbers after shooting Novak.

Heckencamp Is Chosen Head of Illinois Moose

Joseph Heckencamp of Quincy was elected president of the Illinois Association of the Loyal Order of Moose in Aurora yesterday. He succeeds John N. Schmitz of Aurora, first president of the association. Delegates and visitors to the convention will attend the high school graduation exercises at Mooseheart today. The address will be given by Senator J. J. Davis.

DECISION PUTS $1,500,000 RELIEF BILL ON COUNTY.

The decision of the Illinois Supreme court yesterday that bills amounting to $1,500,000 for relief contracted in Cook county between Jan. 1 and Feb. 6 of this year cannot be paid from funds of the $20,000,000 relief bond issue will throw the burden of paying the bills upon the county commissioners, in the opinion of F. D. Loomis, secretary of the Cook County Joint Emergency Relief fund.

Private agencies owe less than $100,000 for relief in Cook county between Feb. 1 and Feb. 6, Mr. Loomis said, while the larger amount is owed by the county. The private agencies have been informed that they will have to meet their bills for that period individually, he said, but there has been no indication as to what action the county board will take.

"The newspaper is an institution developed by modern civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and mold public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."

NOW THE DEMOCRATIC TURN.

The Democrats have more on their slate than the eighteenth amendment, but they are temperamentally ready to welcome one fight more rather than one fight less. Among any number of things they may do to national prohibition three may be taken as indicating the probable range.

There is an outside chance that they might accept the Republican disposition of the question, wash it out of politics, and go into the election on hard times and Republican responsibility for it. Although this is possible, it is improbable. They might go dry and take a licking in the disaffected states. They probably will damn the Republican retention of misfit national enforcement and declare for the repeal of the eighteenth amendment if not also of the Volstead act.

The Republicans completely failed to recognize the question of government. They believe, if their belief is to be found in their words, that the thing agitating the dissatisfied American people is the desire for drink. It is not very complimentary to the character of the people they undertake to placate and it is less complimentary to their own mentality.

An American who wants a drink does not go without it under national prohibition, whether it's beer or wine, prohibited and taxed, or red eye. His muddled government is encouraging him to drink and expects to balance its budget from his potations. Some Americans do not like this. They prefer to be on the square. They object to the sly way in which the preposterous scheme of government sends one man to jail and collects a percentage off ten others. It's indecent.

More crazy comment has been issued upon the Republican resolution than ever before was dinned into the ears of the democracy. The complaint that repeal provides no substitute for the eighteenth amendment is the craziest. Repeal is not intended to have a substitute. The evil of national prohibition is nothing less than national prohibition itself. A cure, not a substitute, is desired. It's an evil of government, not of drink. It is a mistake of political action, not of personal habit. The patient does not want a substitute for cancer. He doesn't want the yellow fever or a broken leg.

Stephen Douglas said that slavery could not exist in a community which did not want it. The saloon cannot exist in a community which will not have it. No saloon, speakeasy, or drinking place can exist anywhere without the knowledge and indulgence of the authorities and the connivance of the people. That is true of Washington, D. C., where it is proved true, as well as Higgin's Corners. Any drinking place anywhere at any time is well known if it has enough patronage to support it. If it is there by political support regardless of community sentiment the people who will not change the character of their politicians deserve to get what their politicians give them.

The federal government which has not closed the speakeasy and stopped rum running under the eighteenth amendment will not do any better under another amendment, but if federal jurisdiction can be retained in any form the federal bureaucracy will not be reduced, the federal agent will still be at large backed by federal appropriations and the enlargement of the Washington government will continue.

Repeal would close an era of error. Citizens who still rely on their own character for the control of alcoholic beverages and not on federal prosecution object to the eighteenth amendment, not because it interferes with the satisfaction of their appetite, because it does not, but because it is a distortion of the American government and a pollution of its officials. Centralized government is making a stand for self-preservation, not for temperance, morals, or national character. Bureaucracy is making a fight for survival.

WHO GETS THE MONEY IN WASHINGTON?

Washington, D. C., is a voteless federal ward. Its residents are political minors. They do not elect the officials who make their laws and regulations. They do not control their police authorities and they have no responsibility for their local government, or for any other kind of government, although most of them are on the government pay roll. Washington is first and last a political city and it must be exhibit A of what the federal government can do in the management of a community.

Washington, thus managed, goes from one scandal to another. Its violations of the Volstead act are notorious but not astonishing. They reflect the habits of the men who make its laws. The city is a political city and therefore it is a drinking city. Its hijackers lift the embassy rum and wine if the rum carts do not have a tank escort. The congressional bootleggers and purveyors to the official trade are unobserved by the prohibition unit in the department of justice. Although the city is the home of government, and although its people are children, its crime is a prolific source of annoyance to its pretensions of order and respectability.

When cities are in this condition there is political responsibility. In a free city the responsibility may be passed on to the people who elect the officials. The people of Washington take what they get. The responsibility starts and ends with the officials. Political sanction for lawlessness is not gratuitous. It is not a gift. The question is even more pertinent to Washington than it would be to any other city: Who is getting the big money?

THE ISSUE OF RETRENCHMENT.

If the leaders of the Democratic party wish to win this autumn they will give heed to the advice of Mr. George W. Rossetter, president of the Chicago Association of Commerce, who appeared before them in his capacity as president of the recently organized National Organization to Reduce Public Expenditures.

There is, of course, no one explanation of the repeated failure of the Democrats to win in national elections, but it is not to be doubted that one thing which has turned the tide, time after time, in favor of the Republicans has been a profound, if often ill defined, distrust of Democratic economic programs. The people of this country, and notably of this section, have thought, rightly or wrongly, that the Democrats are peculiarly addicted to dangerous experimentation in money and banking and in industrial and agricultural organization. Perhaps the record of Democratic administrations does not entirely bear out this preconception, but as long as the notion persists the Democrats must expect to enter any national campaign at a great disadvantage.

This year popular confidence in the Republican party as the party of prosperity has been shaken, but it would have been more effectively undermined if the Democrats in congress had shown ordinary horse sense. Instead, under the leadership of the Hooey Longs and the Garners, the Democrats have done their best to revive the notion that their party is the party of economic quackery. Mr. Garner has seen the light and has now come out for a reduction of government expenditures, but his name, unfortunately for him, is already linked in the public mind with his pork barrel proposals, and unless that scheme and others like it are boldly repudiated by his party the Democrats are going into the campaign as the party of extravagance, the party committed to the bankruptcy of the United States treasury.

The Democrats have thus far failed to take advantage of their opportunities this year. Their last chance to rehabilitate themselves now lies before them. If they accept Mr. Rossetter's suggestion, adopt a platform plank calling for the reduction of federal expenditures by at least 750 million a year as a start, and pledge their party to such a program, the Democrats will enter the campaign as the party of economic stability and common sense. They will have shaken off the curse which has attached to their party since it fell under the spell of the long haired Bryan.

Two elements are fighting for control of the Democracy. One is the heir of Bryan; the other is the heir of Cleveland. Any attempt to compromise on the issue of federal retrenchment will be a victory for the Bryanites, the element which has led the party time after time to ignominious defeat.

It is a curious fact that in times of stress the demagogues, who ordinarily are able to make a shrewd judgment of the popular temper, lose touch with the people. The trend throughout the world is toward conservatism. In New South Wales the confiscationist Lang has just been roundly defeated. In England a conservative government is in the saddle. In Germany, too, the conservatives are in control. Iowa has defeated its Brookhart. Long is losing out in Louisiana. This is the moment when conservatism promises votes. It is the golden opportunity of the Democrats to go to the country as the party of economic stability and governmental solvency. A retrenchment plank, free of all ambiguity, will catch more votes in the doubtful states than any other that can be incorporated in the platform with the exception of the dry repealer.

MR. BYRNS MEETS THE HOME FOLKS.

In the debate which resulted in a refusal of the house to vote an appropriation of $1,450,000 for the control of grasshoppers in the northwest Representative Byrns of Tennessee said: "I was home during the last two days, and I want to tell you that every man I talked with damned the congress for its failure to cut expenses."

Not enough members of the present congress have been home lately. That is why congressional enthusiasm was all for more bond issues and more taxes, while retrenchment was as popular as the plague. Mr. Byrns' discovery will be shared by the members of congress before the next session, too late for many of them.

Editorial of the Day

[New York Evening Post.]

Figures released by the census bureau for the registration area of the United States place the number of babies born in that area during 1930 at 2,203,958, an increase over 1929 of 34,038. Statements that the birth rate shows an actual rise are not, however, correct. It was exactly the same for 1930 as for 1929, according to the bureau of vital statistics—18.9 for each 1,000 of estimated population. In view of the present tendency toward a gradually falling birth rate this is nevertheless an interesting phenomenon. In 1915 the birth rate was 25.1, and since that year, with only two exceptions, it has steadily dropped to the present figure of 18.9. In 1921 there was a rise from 23.7 in the preceding year to 24.2; in 1922 the rate dropped to 22.3; in 1924 it rose to 22.4, and in 1925 the downward trend was again resumed, the rate for that year being 21.5. The fact that it held steady in 1930 does not by any means prove a change in the general trend, and not until figures are available for later years can we know whether it means anything important or not. But it is interesting that at a time when stocks, commodities, and almost everything else are going down the birth rate is at least holding its own and the crop of depression babies is greater than that of boom times.

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may. Ex Ed.

THE HON. ETAOIN SHRDLU, the Line's candidate for the presidency, the vice presidency, alderman from the Two Hundred and Thirty-seventh ward, dog pelter in Chicago, or any other job that has a salary attached to it, announced yesterday that he is out to stop Roosevelt. But, furthermore, Hon. Etaoin declared he was also anxious to stop Mr. Smith. After that he will endeavor to stop Mr. Ritchie, Mr. Traylor, Mr. Baker and Mr. Reed. "I will not endeavor to stop Mr. Garner," declared Hon. Etoain, "because before you stop anything it has to be going. After I have stopped all the possible candidates it seems highly logical that they will turn to me. I stand for the repeal of the 18th amendment next Tuesday at half past two in the afternoon, which is a decided improvement on the prohibition views of the other candidates."

TO A MILD AGNOSTIC.

Thomas, too, doubted, till he saw the proofs
Upon the palms and in the wounded side,
For facts and facts alone appeased his pride.

No flights of fancy would he entertain,
And demonstration only him sufficed,
He put the test of proof before his Christ.

Of those who have not seen and have believed,
You will remember how He spoke of these,
And Thomas begged forgiveness on his knees.

Night, I said, within this breast, beneath my throat, will strike me dumb, will stun this heart into a rest it does not want, will beat a drum faintly till I slumber, lest
I realize I am bereaved.

Nothing can I give as fee

AND, INDEED, WHY NOT?

Out in North Dakota, where they've been mixing poison with the bran they feed to the grasshoppers, they've discovered a way of saving lots of money. Bran was used to mix with poison for the grasshoppers because the long legged jumpers just love bran. It's roast chicken, potato dumpling, ice cream, and chocolate cake to the grasshoppers all in one. But real bran in these days and times is somewhat expensive, so the great minds out in North Dakota went into a huddle and decided that inasmuch as sawdust, which costs nothing at all, looks just like bran, to try mixing the poison with sawdust and feeding that to the grasshoppers. It was a sort of lowdown trick to try and make a fool out of an unsuspecting grasshopper, but it had to be done. And the grasshoppers fell for it. They gobbled up the sawdust as greedily as they did the bran and smacked their lips and called for a second helping. Then by the time they found out they had been flimflammed it was too late to do anything, because then they were quite dead. Anyhow, this grasshopper thing contains a germ of hope. If we've got brains enough in this country to figure out how to fool a grasshopper maybe some day somebody is going to suggest a plan for getting a strangle hold on the depression. There is hope.

SIAM is reported in revolution and King Prajadhipok is said to be a prisoner of the rebels. Nothing is known yet as to the cause of the uprising, but we shrewdly suspect the Siamese got tired of the king running around the streets buttonholing everybody and telling them about his eye operation in New York. Of course, the king acted no different from anybody else that has an operation except, of course, one has to listen to a king and pretend he is thrilled through and through instead of bored to death.

GO, MEMORY!

Go, Memory, desert us once again,
Erasing all old wrongs and dead desires,
And from the furnace of our ancient pain
Draw out the ashes and bank down the fires.

And in your going, Memory, relegate
To realms of unremembered kisses, all
The sordid details of a year of hate . . .
Turn one more picture to a barren wall!

PANAMA AND SANITATION.

THERE are no flies in the Panama Canal Zone, and not many in the Panamanian cities located near the zone. Several factors contribute to that end. There are plenty of ants, and a good many spiders and other more or less inoffensive household insects, and these eat flies and fly larvae and eggs whenever they get a chance.

Garbage is kept in clean pails and boxes, and collected daily—sometimes oftener. There is comparatively little fly food available, and the odors through which flies find their food are not in evidence.

After being collected, the garbage is disposed of on well-kept, flyproof garbage dumps. These are so placed as to fill up mosquito breeding marshes and ponds. The garbage is dumped in well regulated piles and covered by paper and other material that flies and their larvae cannot penetrate. The garbage ferments and makes heat enough to kill any fly eggs, larvae, and pupae that are present. The surface is coated with enough petroleum oils to drive flies away and to kill any larvae that might escape the fermentation heat.

Another important contributing factor is the handling of manure. All manure from stables and street sweepings is placed in fairly tight boxes and then closed and left for seven days. Fermentation causes much heat to develop. This kills the fly eggs and larvae. After it has cooled down it is found that the fermented product can be used as a fertilizer without becoming a good site for fly breeding, provided it is rather thinly spread over the ground, and provided the weather is suitable for sunning and drying.

However, these are rather too many qualifying needs to satisfy the exacting health officer, Dr. J. F. Siler, and his associates. They are now experimenting with the Beccari method, as first used for garbage disposal in Florence, Italy, and now used in many other places. It is also a compositing method but, in this method, the fermenting substances are given air. In Panama they first seal the boxes and let them ferment without air for about seven days. They supplement this with about nineteen days of limited aeration.

The cells are then left to themselves for several months. All of this must be done under cover and the fermenting material must be kept dry. In the case of garbage the end product is a dry, fairly near powdered product, inoffensive, easily handled, and with high fertilizer value. Flies will not breed in it nor will rats eat it. When manure is treated in the same way the results are not as good as had been hoped for, but the process is being tried further in the hope that it can be improved.

CALLUSES ON FOOT.

Miss J. H. writes: On the sole of my left foot there are two "eyes" of callus which seem to bore all the way up into my foot. They are very painful and sting badly at times. I was advised to use iodine, which I did for weeks, with no result. For the last week I have been soaking my foot in hot water with soda. I then try to scrape the callus with a scissors, after which I apply zinc salve. This has not helped. Do you know what this is and how I can get rid of it?

REPLY.

If these are calluses trim with a razor or polish them off with sandpaper. They thicken up again unless you change to proper shoes. In many cases, wearing shoes broad enough in front to permit the toes to spread will stop the growth of calluses. Wearing insoles or cushions will prevent calluses from becoming sore but will not prevent their formation. If you have plantar warts none of the above applies. They need to be skillfully removed.

FROM THE TRIBUNE'S COLUMNS

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

JUNE 25, 1916.

SAN ANTONIO, Tex.—Gen. Frederick Funston received from Gen. Pershing the first detailed official report of the battle at Carrizal. Trapped in an ambush during a parley of the leaders, troops C and K were subjected to a withering fire from machine guns and the rifles of a Carranza force which outnumbered them greatly. Both companies charged forward. In the face of the murderous fire troop C reached the trenches where the main Mexican force was in refuge. There Capt. Boyd, twice wounded, fell. Troop C, led by the second in command, Lieut. Harry Adair, swept onward, driving the Mexicans before them through the town. This was the last seen of them by the men who reported to Pershing, but their stories indicate few escaped.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—The administration dispatched to the Carranza government a demand for the immediate release of the members of the Tenth cavalry, captured at the fight at Carrizal and now in prison at Chihuahua City. This action was taken on the request of Gen. Funston, made in a telegram from San Antonio. After a conference at the state department, Ambassador Designate Arredondo, Carranza representative here, said that his government probably would arrange for the release of the men "if there were no further battles."

EL PASO, Tex.—Apprehension that battles may be in progress tonight between American and Mexican troops in at least two places in northern Chihuahua gripped the border. American columns were moving in the direction of San Antonio and Ojo Calliente, while Gen. Jacinto Trevino, commanding the Carranza army of the north, has ordered troops at adjacent points to attack them if they do not retreat immediately.

PARIS.—By furious attacks the French regained possession of most of the positions northeast of Verdun which were won by the Germans yesterday. They did not, however, regain the Thiaumont work and some of the village of Fleury still is held by the Germans.

VIENNA.—An Austro-Hungarian encircling advance has pressed the Russians out of Kuty [Galicia], according to the Austrian official statement. In Volhynia the Austro-German forces are disputing the ground foot by foot north of the Lipa river, northeast of Gorochow and west and northwest of Torchyn, where all the Russian counter attacks have been frustrated.

Every Man's University

Questions and answers prepared by members of the faculty of the University of Chicago outline what they consider a well educated person ought to know. Today's instructor is Alfred E. Emerson, associate professor of zoölogy.

TODAY'S QUESTION.

Are insects likely to supersede man on the earth?

YESTERDAY'S QUESTION.

ANSWER.

Ant society is similar to human society in that individuals coöperate for the good of the group; individual specialization of function with resultant division of labor makes for greater efficiency in the capture of energy, protection against enemies, and reproduction; and the social coöperative mechanisms are capable of extension to include animals belonging to other species which thus become incorporated into the society.

Some of the major differences are: [1] in ants specialization is structural, while among humans the specialization is largely the result of training or conditioning; [2] complexity of function is not as great among the ants; [3] reproduction in ants is confined to a few specialized forms, the bulk of the population being sterile; [4] ants are not as capable of intelligent behavior as humans; [5] anti-social tendencies are not as prevalent among the ants, and therefore their society is socially more perfect than man's.

Social evolution among ants stretches back at least one hundred million years, while human society could hardly be said to have existed two million years ago. Thus human society is a much more recent evolution, and we would expect the individual human to exhibit a greater degree of individualistic behavior compared to social behavior than in the case of the individual ant. Human society has had to build mechanisms for controlling prevalent anti-social tendencies. We all undergo rigid training through the activities of parents, teachers, and others which tend to stimulate the social responses and suppress or redirect the anti-social responses. Even after we reach adulthood, we have need of policemen, lawyers, governments, and ministers to force or persuade us to conform to the social pattern. Ants do not need such mechanisms, for they are born perfectly socialized. They do not need to be taught or persuaded or forced to react socially, for their anti-social tendencies were eliminated long ago through natural selection.

STREET REPAIRS.

Chicago, June 21.—[Friend of the People.]—I believe the people of the community around Central Park and Wabansia avenues should have relief from the condition existing there. The street was torn up some time ago. Is it possible to have this excavation paved? The people are tired of dodging holes and damaging their automobiles.

B. L.

Report is made that Wabansia avenue was torn up for the installation of water main. The vehicle tax repair division is now putting in concrete base preparatory to restoring the pavement. The writer is evidently not aware that sufficient time must be allowed for necessary settlement after a street is torn up before a satisfactory restoration of pavement can be made.

UNCOLLECTED WAGES.

Chicago, June 19.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—I was employed in a store that was closed up by the holder of a chattel mortgage. 1. I was told that salaries would be paid five days later. The store was conducted as a corporation. 2. I would like to know who, in this case, is legally bound to pay the salaries due employés. 3. The people who closed the store [the holders of the mortgage] say the company was supposed to pay salaries. Can you advise me who is supposed to pay? J. N.

1. An agreement to answer for the debt or default of another must be in writing in order to be enforcible.

2. If all the assets have been taken under the foreclosure then we see no way for you to collect.

3. Obviously the corporation is primarily liable, but if it has no assets it cannot pay.

THE CASE FOR AL SMITH.

Chicago, June 23.—Among Democratic politicians and voters alike there is a notion that if they can nominate a white man who has not spent most of his life in jail they will elect him in November. This notion, which is wholly without foundation in either reason or experience, regularly appears among my Democratic brethren every four years. And just as regularly the idea is knocked out of them in the November elections.

This year my fellow Democrats have an additional idea—namely: that the way to defeat Hoover is to nominate a man who will out-Hoover Hoover. It is not unlikely that these worthy people will require a demonstration that their views are unsound. As a matter of fact, the way to defeat Hoover is to nominate a man who has force, decision, and character. To nominate any other is for the Democratic party to invite a first class licking, and its history includes some choice lickings.

The purpose of these observations is to suggest the availability of Alfred E. Smith for the Democratic presidential nomination. I will go further and say that in his nomination lies the only reasonable prospect of Democratic victory in November. Such a conclusion is reached from a careful study of the popular and electoral vote in the 1928 election. In that election, despite Republican claims that they alone were responsible for prosperous times, the Democratic popular vote increased seven millions. For the first time in a half century the Republican eastern states were broken in a two party fight.

Based upon the vote cast in the presidential election of 1928, and allowing a shift from the Republican to the Democratic ranks of a maximum of 8 per cent and a minimum of 2½ per cent of the popular vote cast, I find that the following states will be Democratic in the election: Arizona, Connecticut, Illinois, Maryland, Missouri, Nevada, New York, North Carolina, North Dakota, Tennessee, Texas, Utah, Virginia, and Wisconsin. To the 192 electoral votes of these states may be added the 87 electoral votes of Alabama, Arkansas, Georgia, Louisiana, Mississippi, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, and South Carolina. This conservative forecast would give Gov. Smith 278 electoral votes, which is twelve more than the required majority.

Will the Democratic party pass by the opportunity of certain victory? If so, "Boy! Page the receivers!"

FRANCIS E. CASH.

WAGES AND CARFARES.

Chicago, June 22.—The street car company asked their men to take a cut in their pay. I understand this is the second cut they are taking within a year. The first several months ago and the second recently. The street car men voted for the cut of 7 cents an hour, according to newspaper reports. But not a word is being said of reducing the carfare. Isn't the public entitled to any reduction at all? SAM MARKOWITZ.

FOR FUNDING THE TAXES.

Chicago, June 22.—The money that the city asks from Washington could be obtained right here and now in Cook county, not in the form of a loan, but in the form of taxes from real estate taxpayers who ask that a little leniency be practiced upon this class of thrifty but harassed citizens.

Every one knows the plight that real estate is in today. Most owners cannot in one lump sum pay the outrageous taxes. Most, however, can pay a substantial sum immediately and fund the balance, if adjusted to within reason, payable in certain installments over a period of from two to ten years, according to the ability of each separate taxpayer. This funded tax debt could bear a reasonable interest and be a lien on the property until paid. This would stabilize real estate, restore property to its rightful ownership, bring in the necessary revenue to the local governments, and in general become a big factor in the restoration of prosperity.

Some, no doubt, will say that the law does not provide for the above plan. I say that the law should be made to serve the needs of man and not man to serve an antiquated and useless law.

The shifting of the burden from real estate to personal property or vice versa does not in the least help, but harms the situation. Taxation should be decreased on all forms of property and prosperity will not need any artificial restoration. HARRY J. MASLOV.

AN OUTRAGED REPUBLICAN.

Chicago, June 21.—I was present at the Republican convention when the office holding delegates were whipped into passing that nefarious straddling plank on the wet and dry proposition. I have been a Republican all my life, but cannot place party loyalty ahead of the best interests of our country; so I cannot at the coming election support men who willfully try to hoodwink the people.

HENRY REINACH.

THE THIRD PARTY.

Chicago, June 20.—Now that Mr. Hoover's convention is over, and the Democrats have theirs next week, when are the Republicans going to have a chance? Or isn't there a Republican party any more? Evidently not! All the Republicans I know [and I am one of them] are now Democrats.

MRS. T. H. CALDER.

A CHOICE.

Fort Wayne, Ind., June 17.—The writer is a traveling man. I was in Cleveland this week and attended the trial of a friend who was charged with a minor offense. When the judge asked him to stand and receive sentence he gave him his choice either to spend ten days in jail or let the court stenographer read him the keynote speech of Senator Dickinson of Iowa, who told about the good things Hoover has done. My friend asked to be sent to jail for the ten days. Before the bailiff remanded him to his cell the spectators passed by him and congratulated him. S. U. KANN.

Old Japanese Dinner Rites Lose Prestige

Geisha Girls No Longer in General Use.

BY RUTH DE YOUNG.

EDWARD WARREN EVERETT, law partner of Silas Strawn, is Yokohama bound minus a can of fly powder and a sprayer. Two years ago he packed these precautionary measures all over the orient without once laying eyes on a parasite, so this time, advice to the contrary or no, he's leaving them at home.

"Why, it's foolish anyway," said Mr. Everett, laughing as he boarded the train. "If a Japanese flea makes its abode in your private domain all you have to do is rub shoulders with a coolie. The insect prefers him as a permanent abiding place. Discriminating, you see!"

After a short cruise around Honolulu Mr. Everett will land at Yokohama July 14. And there he will meet Mrs. Everett, who left Chicago in April after closing their town apartment at 1500 Lake Shore drive.

She has spent the last two months in Kyoto, the ancient sacred capital of Japan, studying Zen, the Buddhist faith, which has persisted in the country since the sixth century. In fact, it was her interest in oriental customs two years ago that inspired this second visit to the far east.

Some of these previous studies and observations Mr. Everett has recorded for several of his friends in a little illustrated booklet entitled "Far East for Ninety Days." Timely enough it made its appearance only a few days before Mr. Everett's departure.

The geisha girl he speaks of in particular in the narrative; in fact, he spells her "farewell" as he describes a Japanese dinner given for Mrs. Everett and himself by representatives of Mitsui & Co., the J. Pierpont Morgans of Japan.

"The party was in a tea house," Mr. Everett writes. "On arrival each guest removed his shoes in favor of a pair of Japanese slippers. He was given a drink of warm sake and invited to take a bath Japanese style. And what a bath! A lady attendant soaps each patient and pours buckets of water over him. The washing process completed, she places him in a wooden tank of hot water, where he sits until thoroughly stewed. The climax comes in a massage administered while the patient reclines on a settee.

"It is the ultimate in hospitality," Mr. Everett goes on to relate, "but not wishing to delay the dinner I declined and the attendant suggested 'another time.' Dinner was served on the floor above, literally on the floor, for all of the guests seated themselves crosslegged in a horseshoe. Then in came the geishas, smiling, happy, coquettish, beautifully gowned in native costumes with their sleek black hair in pompadour style.

"There was one to serve each guest each course and the courses went on for three hours. Gracefully they dropped from an erect posture onto their knees, sitting then upon their heels without once spilling soup or food. The climax came at a late hour, when all of the geishas broke into dance . . . slow, rhythmic, symbolic . . . to the music of the samisen, a two stringed instrument."

Mr. Everett has recalled this party in his "observations" because, as he explains, it presents such a vivid picture of the old time entertainment of the geisha girls. Now intense competition, new habits of thought, an increasing Americanization of daily life—in short, all the restless anxious, giddy characteristics of the present—have come in to overwhelm gradually this traditional and charming aspect of the Japanese civilization.

Geishas of the old school have always been artists. From 13 years on they have been trained in an idyllic institution in the art of conversation, in dancing, singing, and smiling. All for the pleasure of others they have gone on for centuries following an impersonal, an aesthetic way of life.

But economy and a faster tempo, even as practiced here, are not foreign to the orientals. They have discovered that they can lead less expensive, more concentrated lives without the traditional entertainment. Private hosts and hostesses have declared the geisha girl too costly. Even the government has figured that it can save $50,000,000 by eliminating her from its national life. That's the reason, Mr. Everett says, it's rapidly becoming the dance hall instead of the tea house, the jazz band instead of the samisen, ragtime instead of the geisha.

Friends of Opera Decide to Suspend Present Activities

At the meeting of the executive committee of the Friends of Opera yesterday at the Arts club it was decided that in view of the action taken by the trustees of the Chicago Civic Opera company to suspend opera, it was best to suspend activities of the Friends of Opera.

It was the consensus at the meeting that the organization should not be disbanded, and the membership will be held intact in the hope that it will not be long before Chicago will have opera again.

The pledges, amounting to $52,450, which the guarantee fund committee obtained last spring for next year's opera season, will be returned, of course. Mrs. Charles K. Corsant, chairman of that committee, was not at yesterday's meeting, for she already is at her farm at Big Bay, Mich.

Mrs. Arthur Meeker, chairman of the organization, presided at the luncheon meeting. Among those who attended were Mrs. Jacob Baur, Mrs. Charles H. Swift, Mrs. William A. Yager, Mrs. Waller Borden, Mrs. William J. Chalmers, Mrs. Charles H. Chadwick, Mrs. Albert B. Dick, Mrs. Joseph B. Long, Mrs. Edward Hines, Miss Helen Gilbert, Mrs. Frederick T. Haskell, Mrs. Clair E. More, Miss Agnes Foreman, Mrs. Erich H. Gerstenberg, Miss Maria Rozet, Mrs. Charles H. Morse, and Mrs. Franklin McAllen.

Jean Schweppe Enters Society Without Debut

Parents Decide Against Formal Affair.

BY JUDITH CASS.

ONE of next season's outstanding debutantes who will slip quietly into what social season there is next winter instead of coming out with a flourish is Miss Jean Schweppe, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Schweppe, for although this pretty daughter of the Schweppes will be at home and will take part in the debutante activities, there will be no formal debut party given for her, so her mother tells me.

The Schweppes are very quiet people, and, as Mrs. Schweppe said when I asked her about Jean's debut, they see no reason for departing from their usual custom of not entertaining in a large, formal way just because their daughter is to be at home, especially at this time.

Mrs. Schweppe says that their house in Lake Forest is filled with Jean's friends all the time now and that they hope to continue to have small, informal parties for her frequently, both in Lake Forest and in the city at their apartment at 1200 Lake Shore drive next winter, but that there will be no large party given for her this summer or next winter, according to present plans.

Miss Schweppe's cousin, Miss Mary Reed, however, will have a formal presentation to society, although her mother, Mrs. Kersey Coates Reed, has not decided what form her daughter's coming out party will take.

Mrs. Reed and her daughter and son John are still with Mrs. Reed's mother, Mrs. John G. Shedd, at her apartment at 1550 State parkway, awaiting completion of their house in Lake Forest, although they go often to their country estate and "camp out" in the tennis house.

They hope they will be able to move into their new house in several weeks, however. Miss Reed completed her studies at Miss Hourigan's school in New York last month and Miss Schweppe returned in the late spring from a winter of study in Paris.

Polly Hart Bride Today.

The largest of the June weddings will take place today in Barrington when Miss Polly Hart becomes the bride of Harold Byron Smith, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold C. Smith of Lake Forest, at a garden ceremony at the residence of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. Stillson Hart.

The service will be read at 5 o'clock by the Rev. Dudley Stark of St. Chrysostom's church and afterward there will be a large out of door reception.

Miss Betty Hart will be her sister's maid of honor and the bridesmaids will include Miss Betty Smith, Miss Anne Byron Smith, Miss Caroline McNair, Miss Ruth Seely of Montreal, and Miss Isabel Gordon. Cyrus H. Adams III. will be best man for Mr. Smith and Edward Baumann, Keith Bowman, George Bent, Donald Bateman, John P. McWilliams II., and George Heicey of Newark, O., will usher.

Miss June Kennedy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John McCartney Kennedy of Pittsburgh, and Louis E. Laflin, son of Mrs. Louis E. Laflin of Lake Forest, will be married at 5:30 o'clock this afternoon at a simple ceremony at the Kennedy residence in Pittsburgh.

Only the families and a few close friends have been asked to attend the wedding service and the reception which will follow. The groom's moth-

Black and White Make Favorite Contrast.

BY RHEA SEEGER.

Shoppers with a hobby for ensembles—people who simply can't buy a dress without buying the correctly contrasting accessories, or those enthusiasts who have always considered their entire costume rather than each separate piece of buyable extras—are going to cheer loudly for the new ensembles which are assembled around a new hat. Some of these startling new get-togethers are things to rave about, something to really make a summer's day just a bit more perfect!

Have you a simple black frock that is flawlessly perfect in silhouette and in fabric . . . a model that is perhaps the favorite that you slip into more often than any other dress in your wardrobe? . . . If it is as severely simple as it should be it is made for the newest organdy three piece ensemble . . . first, a tight, tricky little wrapped turban of white and black organdie, an ingenious creation that whispers most seductively in French that only white can be dramatized to best effectiveness with a sharp accent of black.

With this eye smashing success you wear a demure but flattering scarf of black and white organdie, a scarf that uses white for one side and black for the other and ties in a prim bow either to perch on your left shoulder or you can wear it squarely in front at your waistline.

The third bewitching members of this trio are the deep flared white organdie cuffs tied with bows of black organdie. You can't realize the crisp smartness of this idea until you see it worn with either a black slim-fitted frock or with a simple chalk white dress.

If you are of Scotch extraction you shop shrewdly but cannily for a gay, lilting plaid combination . . . a bright, cheerful red and green and white silk plaid bonnet, a mere breath of Scotch, a tiny, impudent caplike hat that fits appropriately tight over the highest tip of your skull. . . . A slippery brown lacquered bit of inch wide ribbon shoots giddily up from the region of your left eyebrow and ends in a tiny tiptop bow.

A tricky scarf of matchless plaid silk accompanies this bonnet.

If you insist upon brims there is a sailor version of the same sort of plaid silk that can be selected instead of the cap.

And then some one must have discovered some old fashioned feminine feathers while on a looting trip in the attic, for the new evening ensembles are the most feminine things imaginable . . . the most devastatingly and deadly things a lovely dresser could wear.

The ostrich feather boa is being exploited in all pastel colors and white; these frilly, foamy, flattering feather boas are just what you will wear with your silk evening dresses. And to startle completely the admiring audience you carry with you, looped over your wrist, a matching feather bag made of rows and rows of ostrich feather bands. A perfect white evening ensemble is one achieved with everything you wear in white and the fine feathers also in white.

Gifts Increase Algonquin Fund to $1,422 Mark

BY KATHERINE KELLEY.

Additional gifts to the Camp Algonquin fund yesterday pushed the total over the $1,400 mark. The fund is seeking $10,000, with which to send 2,000 mothers and children from the poor districts of the city to the Fox river valley camp during the summer.

The guests now total 180 in the camp, having arrived this week in two delegations over the Chicago and North Western railway, which provides the transportation free. The first of July 100 undernourished children will leave for the summer. About the same time the enrollment will be increased until the camp will be operating at its capacity of 500, including the staff of counselors.

The wherewithal to finance these camp vacations is the chief worry of the project these days. Although vacations can be bought for these mothers and children at $10 each, the sale hasn't progressed very rapidly since the call for help was issued two weeks ago. These vacations are needed this summer more than ever before, due to the reverses of the last year.

Acknowledgement is made of the following gifts:

$21.25—Hortense Gollos and Mildred Rothbaum.
$5—Members of 310 Go-Getters of Charles Kosminski school.
$3—Mr. and Mrs. A. F. Hanson.
$2.50—Rosalie Levi.
$1—Anonymous.

Total	$ 37.75
Previously acknowledged	1,384.64
Grand total	1,422.39

Sally to Announce Party Winners in Tribune Tomorrow

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

Aren't you anxious to see tomorrow's Sunday TRIBUNE, boys and girls, and the list of winners for our party at White City on next Thursday? I am sure you must be and there will be one hundred of you very pleased to find your names among those selected as my guests.

If you didn't win an invitation to this party don't be too discouraged for there are many more equally delightful days to come. We've planned some perfectly fascinating times for you and it's quite likely you'll be among my guests some other Thursday if you failed to make the grade this week. The next party will be announced tomorrow and I can tell you now that you are going to be delighted with it.

The White City winners will receive invitations some time before the date of the party.

Good Morning!

"The Man from Yesterday" harks back to the world war for its subject matter.

It solicits your sympathy for three persons—a war bride, her husband, an English officer, and the French army surgeon with whom she falls madly in love after she believes dead the man she married.

Sylvia Suffolk attracts the attention of Dr. Rene Gaudin while she is working with him as nurse in a field hospital. During the course of an operation she receives word that Capt. Tony Clyde, her husband, has perished at the front. She faints—and the fact that she is to become a mother is revealed.

Dr. Gaudin takes her under his wing. After the declaration of the armistice he establishes her in Paris and is very good to Sylvia and her small son.

When the boy is about 2 years old Dr. Gaudin and she—they have never married—go to the Swiss Alps for a vacation. Here they encounter—whom do you think? Of COURSE!

The actions of three extraordinarily sportsmanlike people furnish material for the balance of the picture.

The restrained and eloquent acting of Charles Boyer—and who is he, I wonder?—makes Claudette Colbert's work appear exaggerated and melodramatic and Clive Brook's performance stilted by contrast—save in the episode where the latter chats with his small son. There Mr. Brook appears completely natural and at ease. Andy Devine as a buddy of Capt. Tony is funny and likable, and the cracks he makes with that woozy, adenoidic voice of his elicit several laughs.

"The Man from Yesterday" is no particular breed of movie. It's just dog. Situations are hackneyed. The ending is obvious. Dialogue is trite and "expected." Direction's average.

On the stage Mary Brian dances charmingly, with clowning interruptions by Ken Murray; Armida contributes terpsichorean paprika, Natcha Natova of the "Folies Bergere" contributes a novelty, and one Milton Charleston "stooges" violently for the delectation of his dear public.

See you tomorrow!

De Pauw University Will Have Dean of Freshmen

Greencastle, Ind., June 24.—(AP)—De Pauw university will have a dean of freshmen for the first time when G. H. Smith, who has held a similar position at the University of Illinois for three years, takes charge here next September.

Fair Weather Wife Ordered Back to Duties by Doris

BY DORIS BLAKE.

"I have been married ten years; am a fine cook and housekeeper. I am 32 years old and considered good looking. My husband is very selfish. He is not working and is terribly cranky. Whenever I speak to him he answers me insultingly—sometimes swearing at me.

He had a good job but was let out along with twenty others in his company and it seems to have changed him. He doesn't want to take me out anywhere, even to visit his relatives. I am fond of him, of course, but I am going to take your advice. Should I try to win him or get a divorce? I haven't any one to tell me what I should do. MRS. B. M."

You don't need any one to tell you what you should do! Or, needing some one to tell you where your duty lies, you're not much account to your husband, anyway.

How about trying to wangle yourself into your mate's position at the moment? Into his state of mind? Into his state of nerves? You're so busy thinking about your side of the case you can make a charge against a man for not taking you out! How can a man worried to death about his present and his future be expected to carry on in a merry making mood. Be your 32 years, Mrs. B. M! Don't act like an irresponsible child. Of course he barks at you when you prod him with questions. Keep on prodding and a good round swear word or two is coming to you. Besides, any woman in the situation, wondering which is her best bet—sticking or divorcing—ought to be cussed at on general principles.

Some of you women are pretty poor soldiers! You're fair weather wives! Cheerful while the good times roll in. Petulant, selfish, and thoughtless when the prosperity tide wanes. You lack money sense too. You expect amusement to keep on featuring in the budget—when there isn't any budget.

Now, Mrs. B. M., if you want to make a real woman of yourself—be a cheer leader to that sick and discouraged man in your home. Unemployment is a deadly sickness affecting nerves, stomach, spirit, everything. At no other time of sickness in the home does the patient need quite the loving, cheerful care he does during this crisis. If you look around a bit, Mrs. B. M., you can find a good many examples from which to take tips on how to be a real wife in periods of depression.

Furs and Feathers Rule Fashions at Noted French Race

AUTEUIL, France, June 24.—(AP)—Furs and feathers ruled today's fashionable Prix des Drags, famous French steeplechase here.

Double fox scarfs, worn crossed over in back instead of in front, and short jackets of summer ermine featured the outstanding pelts, while colored and black ostrich boas, feather capes and feather crowned hats led the feathered mode.

Velvet was the outstanding fall fabric for dark coats, brilliant coatees, fur trimmed suits and hats.

Brilliant red was evidenced everywhere, in wool suits, coats, crepe frocks, hats and gloves. Purple also was prominent. Crinkled fabrics such as quilted velvets and muslin were noteworthy.

Doctor Compiles Reducing Diet That Sounds Like Party Menus

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

The old prejudice still entertained by uninformed overweights about one having to starve in order to lose weight is beautifully dissipated in "Diet and Weight Control," by Dr. Shirley W. Wynne, health commissioner of New York City. In his cleverly worked out thirty-day eating program, one not concerned with dieting, might think at first glance she were being entertained with suggestions for party foods. But reading down the calorie count side, you find a variety of appetizing foods, totaling around 1,400 calories a day.

Here's one day's food program totaling 1,400 calories for the three meals:

Breakfast: One glass milk; juice of one and a half oranges; half glass milk in coffee; small omelet [2 eggs, milk and butter]; coffee, no sugar.

Lunch: Glass of milk and lettuce and tomato salad. This makes 125 calories for lunch—but wait and see what dinner has in store for you.

Dinner: Salad, endive, other greens, tomato and celery, two glasses of milk, one cup of vegetable soup, three small crackers, 2 small broiled veal kidneys, 6 small heads Brussels sprouts, and one large apple.

Here's another for use a little later on in the thirty day program when 1,300 calories will be found sufficiently satisfying:

Breakfast: Juice of a half grapefruit and small orange, glass milk, cooked cereal [cream of wheat, ¾ cupful], teapoon sugar with cereal, and a glass of milk for coffee and cereal.

Lunch: Glass of milk, tomato and lettuce salad.

Dinner: Plain head lettuce with French dressing, two glasses milk, two stuffed tomatoes [baked, stuffed with meat, bread crumbs, etc.], boiled turnips, stuffed celery [two stalks with two tablespoons cottage cheese], fresh pineapple cubes, cookie or wafer.

Do you really know what goes on in Washington?

Sudden Love

By
ELISABETH SANXAY HOLDING

SYNOPSIS.

Esmee Sully spends her forlorn young life between the office, where she is an inefficient typist, and a dismal home. The widowed Mrs. Sully loves her children blindly, but doesn't know how to direct their spiritual or physical needs. Lew, a year older than Esmee, is mingling in bad company. Cynthia, the oldest, has been deserted by her husband. Jimmy Consadine, a crook lawyer, forces Lew, whom he has in his power, to introduce his sister. Esmee is fascinated by Jimmy's grand manner, but finds him an unmanageable lover. Then she meets Michael Marriott, a young playwright, imbued with the futility of life. It's love at first sight. Esmee feels his need of her is real. Claire Cowley, Michael's sister, tells Esmee that Michael is engaged. But Michael tells her his engagement is broken; that he can't live without her, and wants to marry her. Esmee tries unsuccessfully to break with Jimmy. He accuses her of double crossing him and threatens to have Lew sent to jail. Esmee drives out to the country with him on Sunday. He forces her to accompany him to a roadhouse, where his word is law. Michael, who has trailed Jimmy's car, breaks in and rescues her. Jimmy swears he'll have Michael killed. Esmee doesn't want to tell Michael about Lew. She's afraid of Jimmy's evil power. Michael takes Esmee to spend the night at Claire's and drives her to her office next morning. They go for a drive in the evening. Esmee sees a car following. As it comes alongside she throws her arms around Michael and receives the bullet intended for him. When she regains consciousness she is at Claire's. Her mother is there and Michael is safe.

INSTALLMENT XXXVI.

A GALLANT SURRENDER.

The very sound of Jimmy's name evoked for Esmee the idea of violence. She thought—what if he and Michael were to meet in this house—on the stairs, perhaps? Shots—again? . . . And this time a catastrophe beyond remedy.

"How could he dare to come here?" she thought.

But "dare" was an inept word to use regarding Jimmy. He always knew what he was doing. He was not reckless, like Michael, like her poor Lew. He was cool, wary, and, she thought, unreachable, invulnerable. If he comes here, in his superb insolence, he knew it was safe for him to come.

He assumed, in her frightened heart, the aspect of a man almost superhuman. Not one could do anything against him. He was always prepared, always protected. He could do anything he wanted. Even now, in this house that was Michael's stronghold, he was safe. Even now he could take her away from Michael, as he could ruin Lew. He was never to be thwarted.

The pretty, young nurse brought him in and the first impression Esmee had was of his complete masculine dominance. Michael had his own charm, a woman would love Michael. But Jimmy was a conqueror, a winner. If they loved him, they loved him with tears and bitterness. He smiled at the nurse, and she smiled back, not faintly disconcerted, as she had been with Michael, but with arrant coquetry. That was what Jimmy did—that was his way. Tall, broad shouldered, masterful, and insolent, he smiled at that nurse, so confident of himself, so handsome, in his gray suit cut to show the lines of his muscular body.

Then Esmee noted that he had one arm in a sling. He could be hurt, then. And if he were hurt, how savagely could he retaliate.

"Five minutes!" said the nurse, warningly, and went out.

The chair on which poor Lew had sat, where the nurse had sat to read aloud, was still at the bedside and Jimmy sat down in it now.

"Well . . .!" he said. "How's it going, baby?"

She never yet had been able to answer Jimmy adequately. She kept silent, her eyes downcast.

"You know it was an accident, don't you?" he said. "I didn't want you hurt."

"You don't—care," she said, unsteadily. "You never have cared if you spoilt my whole life."

He brought out a gold case and lit a cigaret. No one else had smoked here: it seemed to her a long time since she had smelled tobacco smoke. And it was characteristic of him.

"You haven't cared much what you did to me, have you?" he asked.

"I did care," she said. "Only, I couldn't help it."

"Been crying, haven't you?" he said. "But still you're pretty. You poor little damn fool. Well!"

He leaned back his handsome head, smoking, and staring at the ceiling.

"I never wanted a girl before who didn't want me," he said. "I've been lucky with girls. But if you're that way about this other fellow—O. K. It's all off, as far as I'm concerned."

"What—do you mean, Jimmy?"

"You can have him, and I'll lay off him."

"You mean—you won't ever——?"

"That's what I mean. Plenty of other girls in the world, baby. It's all off."

She moved, and the pain in her shoulder made her give a little stifled gasp.

"Jimmy. But—Lew?"

He glanced at her quickly.

"Lew?" he repeated. "Lew's a sap. I'm not going to bother with him any more."

"But you mean—that nothing will happen to him? He won't—have to go to prison?"

"Not this time," said Jimmy. "Nobody'll make a move against him without my say-so, this time. But there are plenty of birds like Lew in the big house. Saps—fall guys. You never know how a fellow like that will run."

"Jimmy," she said, and her hand went to her heart. "Jimmy—Michael's told the police about you. They're looking for you."

He laughed outright.

"All right! They know where to find me. I was down at the D. A.'s office this morning about this. Charge of assault—by the guy who shot me. That's pretty good. I could put your boy friend in the dock, baby. And I could make it hot for him. I've got plenty of witnesses—and how! I can prove that you went up to that room with me willingly and that he walked in on us. Whatever you said wouldn't count much. But you'd go on the stand. God! You'd make a swell witness! Going to a hotel with your boy friend, and then to one with me—and then back to him. You'd come out well, wouldn't you? The thing's a farce—charging me. Know where I was, all yesterday and last night? In a hospital. And I can bring up a squad of doctors and nurses to prove it. The D. A.'s got my story. You needn't worry about me, baby."

"But—if Michael sees you here——"

His eyes narrowed and he smiled.

"I'll take Michael on, any day you like," he said.

"Jimmy! O, please!"

"See here! He lets me alone, and I let him alone. If he doesn't——"

"Jimmy—he might come in here—now!"

"And what would you do?" asked Jimmy. Their eyes met. "You'd like to see him drop me, wouldn't you? Like to see me out of the way for good."

"No," she said.

"What d'you mean no?"

"I don't want—any harm to happen to you," she said. "I'm just sorry—I'm sorry—Jimmy——"

He rose and stood looking down at her.

"I'm sorry, myself," he said. "Damned sorry it came out this way." He took up his hat.

"I won't forget you," he said. "And I guess you won't forget me."

He stooped and kissed her on the mouth.

"Good-by," he said, and the door closed after him.

She was lying back on the pillows with her eyes closed when the nurse reëntered. She was not asleep, though. And, though she did not seem upset or nervous, there was the strangest look on her face.

"She's lucky," thought the nurse with a sigh. "Two boys like that—to choose between." This last one was so darned attractive—and Mr. Marriott's so clever, and so sort of fascinating. Of course, she's pretty, but I can't see——"

She glanced again at Esmee, at that softly rounded face, the wide mouth, the dark lashes resting on her cheeks, and the slender, immature neck and shoulders.

"Well, there certainly must be something about her," thought the young nurse.

Parental Restrictions.

"Dear Miss Blake: I am 16 and love a boy who is 21, but my parents do not allow me to go out with any boys. Please advise. K. B."

Your parents might let you go out now and then with the boy, but there's no need of getting serious with one boy.

Refuses Invitations.

"Dear Miss Blake: The boy I like is always polite and calls me up, but when I ask him to go to such things as school activities he refuses. Please advise. L. S."

Why pursue the boy with invitations when it's obvious he'd rather not be identified with one girl?

Parents Decide Against Formal Affair.

er and his brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd A. Laflin, are in the east for the wedding.

The service is to be read before an improvised floral altar in the living room. Miss Kennedy, who is to be given in marriage by her father, is to wear a princess gown of ivory satin trimmed with lace from her mother's wedding gown and a veil and cap of the same heirloom lace. She will carry gardenias and lilies of the valley.

Her cousin, Miss Miriam Brown, who will be maid of honor, will be gowned in pink chiffon with an orchid hat and slippers. Garden flowers in varying shades of lavender will mingle in her bouquet. Little Jane Campbell, another cousin of the bride, will play the rôle of flower girl, dressed in green dotted swiss and carrying a basket of sweet peas. William H. Woodin III, of Plainfield, N. J., a young cousin of the groom, will be the ring bearer. Lloyd Laflin is to be his brother's best man.

On their return from a wedding trip Mr. Laflin and his bride will be in Lake Forest at his mother's residence.

Betty Crossett Is Engaged.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Clark Crossatt of 1200 Lake Shore drive yesterday announced the engagement of their daughter, Elisabeth Ashley, to John Leland Mothershead Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. John L. Mothershead of Pasadena, Cal.

This is an eventful year for the Crossett family, as Betty's engagement was preceded a few months ago by the engagement and marriage of her younger sister, Ruth, to Edward S. French. The Crossetts are at their Wianno, Mass., estate now and Mrs. Crossett writes that Betty's wedding will take place there some time this summer.

Miss Crossett was graduated from the Ethel Walker school in Simsbury, Conn., and from the Finch school in New York City. She has been a member of the Junior league and the Service club since she made her debut in the winter of 1928.

Mr. Mothershead was graduated from Leland Stanford university in 1930. He is a nephew of Mrs. Alexander McCormick and Ezra J. Warner of Chicago, his mother being the former Ethel Warner of Chicago.

Miss Chase to Be Hostess Tonight.

Miss Libby Chase will be among the numerous dinner hostesses tonight, her party for 16 to be given at the Lake Forest residence of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel T. Chase, for Mme. de Soriano, who is visiting the Howard Linns.

Mme. de Soriano is a sister-in-law of the former Italia Blair of Chicago, now the Marchesa de Soriano, and is well known in hunting circles abroad, where Miss Chase met her at Pau, France, last winter. Miss Chase, who is one of Lake Forest's most ardent and expert horsewomen, is planning a horse show for her pupils on July 10 at "Misery Farm," the tumbledown farm out west of Lake Forest where Miss Chase is stabling her horses this summer and holding her riding classes.

The new jumps Miss Chase has had erected are far from tumbledown, however, and from what I hear of the progress the children in the classes have made I'm sure the horse show will be an exciting affair and one that the parents of the youthful riders will be sure to attend.

One of the important events on tomorrow's social calender is the garden party Mr. and Mrs. Edward N. Hurley will give at Hurley Farms in Wheaton for Mrs. Woodrow Wilson. The hours are from 4 to 7.

Mrs. Frank Fuller is entertaining at luncheon at the Onwentsia club tomorrow for Mrs. Curtis Dall and a number of other well known guests preceding a garden party the Clarence N. Goodwins will give at their Lake Forest residence for the women delegates to the convention from 4 to 7 o'clock. Mrs. Dall [Anna Roosevelt] and Mr. and Mrs. James Roosevelt are to the Goodwins' house guests during the convention, Mrs. Dall going to Lake Forest tonight from the military tournament and Mr. and Mrs. Roosevelt going out tomorrow.

Wentworths to Give Parties.

Mr. and Mrs. John Wentworth are to have a house full of company for the Democratic convention. Most of their guests will be from Baltimore and the Wentworths' parties probably will be rallies for their good friend, Gov. Ritchie.

Mrs. Wentworth's aunt, Mrs. Wallace Keith, and her father, George Brown, are to arrive today or tomorrow from Baltimore, and Mr. and Mrs. William Wallace Lanahan, also of Baltimore, will spend the week-end with the Wentworths.

On Monday the Lanahans will come into town to be Mrs. Howard Linn's guests at her father's house on Lake Shore drive. Mr. and Mrs. Wentworth, who are occupying the Robert R. McCormick house in Lake Forest for the summer, will give a large luncheon tomorrow for their out of town guests.

Although she shares the Lake Forest house with her son and daughter-in-law, Mrs. Moses J. Wentworth is planning to spend most of the summer at her town house on Lake Shore drive and will go out to Lake Forest only for the week-ends.

She, too, will have several house guests from the east for the convention, but she isn't planning to do any entertaining for them, because, as she says, they will be too occupied with what goes on at the Chicago Stadium.

Cuthbert Adamses to Entertain.

Mr. and Mrs. Cuthbert C. Adams will give a garden reception and tea this afternoon at their Winnetka residence for Mr. and Mrs. William Thompson Lusk [Katherine Adams] of New York, who were married a year ago today in the same garden. Mr. and Mrs. Lusk will arrive from the east this morning and will remain in Winnetka until the Democratic convention is ended.

Mrs. Thomas R. Marshall, widow of the Vice President of the United States during Woodrow Wilson's occupancy of the White House, will arrive in Chicago today for the Democratic convention and will spend the week-end with her godson, Walter Field McLallen at Meadowrach in Winnetka.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard T. Fox are giving a house party at their residence, Blue Fox, in Wheaton, this week-end for Mrs. George H. Ingalls of New York, formerly of Chicago, who has been visiting Mr. and Mrs. H. Belin Voorhees of 1532 State parkway, recent newcomers to Chicago from Cincinnati and old friends of Mrs. Ingalls.

Mrs. Cyrus H. Adams gave a luncheon yesterday at her residence in Lake Forest, preceding the meeting of the Lake Forest Garden club held at the residence of the president, Mrs. Joseph M. Cudahy.

Garden Show at Riverside.

A garden and fashion show which will attract many visitors to Riverside this afternoon is being given from 2 to 6 o'clock for the benefit of the Anti-Cruelty Society of Chicago, the garden show to consist of the opening to the public of six of Riverside's loveliest gardens and the fashion show to be given in Mrs. Henry Faurot's garden, 247 Shenstone road, all afternoon. Flags will mark the way to Mrs. Faurot's and from there to the other 5 gardens. Modeling will be Mrs. W. Stephan Bailey, Miss Ruth Hunter, Mrs. William Louderback Jr., Miss Suzanne Morris, Miss Marice Murphy, Mrs. Botsford Young, Miss Nancy Reed, and Miss Mary McClory.

Mrs. William Faurot will be in charge of a sale of cut flowers at her mother-in-law's residence and she also is in charge of the fashion show. Mrs. Edgar N. Miles of Oak Park has donated punch to be served at Mrs. Faurot's and Mrs. Walter H. Inbusch of Glencoe donated the printing of the tickets and directed their sale. The senior Mrs. Faurot will give a buffet luncheon for the young women, who will model the summer fashions, before the show.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Street Stevens of the Hotel La Salle are receiving congratulations on the birth of a daughter, Dorothy Jane, on Tuesday at the Chicago Lying-In hospital. Little Dorothy Jane, who is named for her mother, the former Dorothy Moulds, and her aunt, Miss Jane Beach of Mississippi, is the first girl in three generations of Stevenses. She has five living great-grandparents—Mr. and Mrs. James W. Stevens of Chicago, Mr. and Mrs. Richard W. Street of Berkeley, Cal., and Charles F. Rice of Glendale, Cal. Her maternal and paternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. John F. Moulds of 5739 Kimbark avenue and Mr. and Mrs. Ernest J. Stevens of 1314 East 58th street.

WASHINGTON SOCIETY

Washington, D. C., June 24.—[Special.]—Mrs. Hoover entertained at tea today at the White House. President and Mrs. Hoover will spend the week-end at their camp in the Virginia mountains. They will go tomorrow.

The minister of Egypt, Sasostris Sidarouss Pasha, and the first secretary of the legation, Ahmed Mamdouh Mourad, are in New York for several days.

Senator and Mrs. Alben W. Barkley left today to attend the Democratic convention in Chicago. Miss Laura Barkley is remaining here until her parents return.

Reresentative Richard S. Aldrich has joined Mrs. Aldrich in New York for the wedding of her son, William Wurts White to Miss Leila Carlton Sammis, which will take place tomorrow in the home of the bride's parents, Dr. and Mrs. Jessie F. Sammis, in New York.

The newly appointed first secretary of the United States legation in Canada and Mrs. Pierre Del Boal have leased their house to the assistant secretary of state and Mrs. James Grafton Rogers and will go to Canada July 10.

The third secretary of the Chinese legation, Dr. Ken-Shen Weigh, has returned from Geneva where he accompanied the minister, Dr. W. W. Yen, who is attending the league of nations.

Mrs. Paddock, wife of Lieutenant Commander Hubert Esterly Paddock, U. S. N., and her daughter, Miss Mildred, has left to join Commander Paddock on the west coast.

Louise Dewey Makes Bow at Last of Courts

BY ANN WHITTINGHAM.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, June 24.—The fourth and last court of the season was held this evening by King George and Queen Mary and eight American women were presented by the French ambassadress, Mme. de Fleuriau, doyenne of the diplomatic corps.

The group included two debutantes, Miss Louise Dewey, Chicago, and Miss Jeanne Wingfield, Reno, and six matrons, Mrs. James Griswold Wentz, Washington; Mrs. Alex Spencer, Topeka; Mrs. Alexander Johnston Robertson, New York; Mrs. Even S. Draper, Hopedale, Mass.; Mrs. John J. Fitzpatrick, Somerset, Ky., and Mrs. Paul Ramsay, Las Vegas, N. M.

Miss Dewey's ensemble was of white relieved by a delicate shade of blue. Her gown was of white tulle with tiny tucks trimming the little puff sleeves and a very full skirt. Her white satin train was lined with baby blue chiffon and the same shade of blue appeared on her satin slippers. She carried a white feather fan and wore a white ermine cape in her car.

Miss Wingfield wore a debutante white model creation by Patou. The white satin of the gown was molded to her figure from a slightly high neckline to below the hips, then flared into soft folds. The train and slippers were of the same satin. She carried a bouquet of white orchids and wore diamonds and pearls.

After the court Miss Wingfield had a supper party at the Berkeley hotel and among the guests were Miss Dewey, Mrs. James Hopkins of Chicago, and her daughter, Miss Marjorie Goodman, who was presented at the third court last night; John Simpson, son of James Simpson of Chicago, and Watson Armour, both of whom have been big game hunting in Africa; Maj. Desmond Chapman-Huston and his two South African cousins, John and Renton Dunlop.

Personal Religion Will Be Theme of M. E. Camp Meeting

The need of a personal religion will be a major theme at the annual Methodist camp meeting which opens on July 3 at Des Plaines. Arrangements were completed yesterday to accommodate from ten to twelve thousand persons who are expected to attend the daily religious sessions. Cottages for 125 families are being put in readiness for those wishing to remain at the camp ground.

Bishop E. L. Waldorf, recently assigned to the Chicago area, will open the series of camp meetings. Other speakers will include Dr. Lucius H. Bugbee, editor of Church School publications of the Methodist Episcopal church; Dr. J. S. Ladd Thomas, Germantown, Pa.; Dr. Ernest F. Tittle, Evanston, and others. Bishops E. H. Hughes, Washington, D. C.; R. S. Cushman, Denver, and C. L. Meed, Kansas City, plan to attend.

A Swedish Methodist camp meeting opened yesterday at the camp and will continue to July 3. On July 17 a meeting of the Chicago Southern District HI-League institute, a young people's group, will convene there.

Linen or Pique Suitable Choice for Pretty Frock

WOMAN'S AND MISS' DRESS.

This simple but smart tailored sports type dress is youthful and most attractive looking. The bodice is given a double breasted effect through its clever wrapped effect, and the skirt has gores at the front that makes it slenderizing, also. Tomato red linen or yellow piqué makes an ideal summer dress.

The pattern, 2833, comes in sizes 16 and 18 years and 36, 38, 40, and 42 inches bust measure. Size 36 requires 3¼ yards of 39 inch material.

Movie Critics List All-Time Stars of Films

Eight American Girls in Thirteen Selected.

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Cal., June 24.—The Radio studio is making a motion picture called "Thirteen Women," and in connection with the discussion of it the studio sent out a questionnaire to several hundred film critics on American daily newspapers asking for their idea of the 13 motion picture stars, who, for glamorous personalities—and disregarding sheer acting ability—would be rated as the 13 film stars who have proved of most interest to the American public.

One hundred and nineteen film names appeared on the lists in 108 questionnaire replies received today. Of the 13 chosen eight were American girls.

Here are some of the names: Greta Garbo, Theda Bara [she's been off the screen six years], Constance Bennett, Mary Pickford, Ann Harding, Joan Crawford, Clara Bow [even a year off the screen seems to make some difference], Pola Negri, Gloria Swanson, Marlene Dietrich, Norma Shearer, and Barbara La Mar, dead seven years. Norma Shearer and Mary Pickford were both born in Canada; Garbo, of course, is a Swede; Pola Negri a Pole, and Marlene Dietrich a German. The other girls are Americans. Five would be rated as blondes because that is the way their hair appears in films. These are Garbo, Bennett, Harding, Davies, and Pickford. Clara Bow is a red head and Joan Crawford entered the movies as a red head also. Marlene Dietrich is brown haired of the blonde type, and so is Norma Shearer, leaving the brunettes apparently in the minority as far as public rating for glamour is concerned.

It is interesting to note that among the actresses who were voted on for places among the most interesting of this all-time all-star actress team many old timers were named, including Bessie Barriscale, Lillian Walker, Dorothy Dalton, Wanda Hawley, Louise Glaum, Katherine MacDonald, Nita Naldi, Virginia Pearson, the late Alma Rubens, Olga Petrova, the late Olive Thomas, Pearl White, Valeska Surratt, and Betty Blythe.

Catholic Students Hit Entertainment Standards of U. S.

Popular magazines, plays, and motion pictures came in for censure yesterday in a forum of Catholic high school students attending the convention of the Sodality of Our Lady at the Palmer house.

During the forum students made vigorous declarations condemning the moral standards of magazines, the theater, and motion pictures. The general opinion seemed to be that motion pictures are on a "higher plane than the stage, but still require some cleaning up."

Ned Farrell, chairman of the resolutions committee, suggested that the way to purify entertainment was "to have more entertainment in our homes and less on the highways." The convention passed a resolution to "dare to be different," and will set about working out methods fulfilling that purpose today. The resolution is chiefly concerned with moral standards for young people.

The Rev. J. Roger Lyons of St. Louis was in charge of yesterday's session. A reception and concert by the Mundelein college glee club followed the evening session.

Prison Warden Urges Helping Young People

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

What would you expect to hear as recommendations for dealing with young people from a prison warden? Strictness? Severe discipline? Punishment as measures to prevent the boy or girl from getting up against society so hard that he or she is eventually imprisoned?

Wouldn't you think, and quite reasonably, too, that a man like Warden Lawes, who has been at the head of Sing Sing, might recommend such measures for dealing with youth? But he does not. He says among other things, "We may, however, achieve a measure of abatement . . . by sympathetic measures during formative years." Sympathetic measures—not harsh or arbitrary ones—during the years when taste and character are forming.

Listen to that, you parents who are having trouble with your teen age children. Heed that, those of you who want to put your boys or girls of 15 or 16 in institutions! A prison warden recommends "sympathetic measures." That doesn't mean coaxing and petting and bribing. It means understanding youth. It means helping youth, not censuring it.

It means, to give Warden Lawes' meaning rather freely that: Youth needs to have its desires and deeper needs understood and recognized as vital. Youth needs to be helped and led, not suppressed and repressed. Boys need a chance and places to play in their free time. Boys' and girls' clubs should be run to help prevent delinquency.

And now, as a merely economic interest in saving our youngsters from prison, let me give you figures. It costs to provide for one boy in a boys' club for a year about $15, while caring for a prisoner in Sing Sing costs over $400.

Sausages Are Topic of Food Expert Today

Form Tempting Cold Meat Platter Service.

BY MARY MEADE

If it hadn't been for sausages, Columbus might never have discovered America.

Or, if that sounds a shade improbable, we'll say that if it hadn't been for the age old custom of preserving meats by blending them with spices, all Europe in the middle ages would not have been so eager to find a speedy ocean route to the spices of the east—an eagerness which set Columbus looking for India and accidentally discovering a new world.

But be that as it may, America, whether for patriotic reasons or because of sound good taste, is a nation of sausage enthusiasts, and American housewives are continually discovering themselves with the necessity of creating tempting new ways of using these spicy offerings brought home by husbands from the corner grocery.

And such a variety of sizes and flavors as there are to choose from! Tasty, hunger quelling frankfurters rush into the kitchen in packages and jars. Long lanky sausage rolls, which look deceptively like solid meat, turn out to be large cuts seasoned and pressed together already to serve cold or to combine jubilantly with other foods in a score of zestful dishes. Liver sausage (now you're simply compelled to buy rye bread) is slapped down on the kitchen tables in a flock of sizes, all about equally deserving of your admiration and support. Husky bologna, tongue tanging salami—endless delights!

And while hardly to be classed as sausage, delicious jellied possibilities quiver in pork loaves, tongue loaves, and other cool, filling delights for lightning speed summer suppers—and all to be had for the mere flicking open of cans, jars, and boxes.

For the speediest and tastiest service there's nothing like a simple cold meat platter of assorted sausage slices, served on the plate with the diner's choice of horseradish cream, fruit butters, catsup, or what you will. But for the housewife who would go a bit further into the mysteries of sausage artistry, may we suggest the following?

FRANKFURTERS WITH PINEAPPLE.

Sauté frankfurters—two apiece with a few more for good measure—in pork drippings until richly browned. In the same fat, sauté pineapple slices—one for every two frankfurters. Serve all piping hot, placing sizzling sausages across the pineapple slices and crowning each offering with a perky parsley spray.

Tomatoes and squat spicy frankfurters make a tasty duet. For this dish cut ripe tomatoes in halves, cover the cut surfaces with buttered bread crumbs, and broil. Split frankfurters in halves lengthwise and broil likewise. Serve with two halves of sausage crowning each spanking hot tomato.

FRANKFURTER ROLL-UPS.

Then here's another pleasant brain throb in the sausage line. First prepare a recipe of flaky pastry, roll out thin, and cut in four inch squares. Slice several frankfurters in thin, lengthwise slices and place one slice in the center of each square. Fold one side of the dough over the slice, add another slice, and fold over the second flap of dough. Press firmly together at the end and the open side and pack all the roll-ups neatly into a baking pan. Bake in a hot oven (450 degrees F.) about twenty minutes and serve with mustard.

Large slices of sautéd minced sausages lend elegance to a platter of fluffy spaghetti if the whole is served with tomato sauce and sprinkled with snappy parmesan cheese. Sandwiches become something really to thrill over when filled fatly with minced salami combined with flaky scrambled eggs. Bologna, cut in thin round slices, is a real treat when sautéd in the same pan with large sections of banana and served, terrace fashion, down the center of the platter, the banana slices flanking it right and left.

And for one final splurge may I present to you—

250,000 WOMEN JOIN IN RITES AT DUBLIN CONGRESS

U. S. Envoy's Daughter Is Christened by Cardinal.

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Copyright: 1932: By The Chicago Tribune.]

DUBLIN, Irish Free State, June 24.—A quarter of a million women gathered tonight in Phoenix park to raise thier voices in hymns and receive the apostolic blessing from the papal legate to the Eucharistic congress. After the singing and the blessing the legate, Lorenzo Cardinal Lauri, passed among the women, who lighted thousand of candles. The flickering pin points of light created a scene of exceptional beauty.

All day long special trains from all parts of Ireland poured into Dublin carrying devout women wershipers. Before evening the Great Northern railway had brought 8,000 women, including 5,000 from Belfast, and the Great Southern had brought 10,000. Additional thousands arrived by local lines of motor cars, horse cars, and on foot and all afternoon long lines of women were plodding out to the park.

The next Eucharistic congress will be held in Buenos Aires in 1934, Bishop Heylen of Namur, president of the permanent congress committee, said today.

Cardinal Christens Envoy's Baby.

A most colorful ceremony in connection with the congress today was held at the American legation at Phoenix park. It was the christening by Cardinal Hayes of New York of Mary Frederica, 6 week old daughter of Fred Sterling, American minister to Dublin.

The christening was attended by four other cardinals, two American archbishops, three American bishops, several other visiting prelates, the whole diplomatic corps, Free State President Eamon de Valera, Vice President Sean T. O'Kelly, Minister of Commerce Sean Lemass, Attorney General Maguire, and a number of other distinguished guests.

The ceremony was held in the beautiful ballroom of the legation, which was formerly the official residence of the British chief secretary to Ireland. The ballroom was transformed into a temporary chapel with the altar at the entrance to the conservatory.

John McCormack Is Guest.

In the front seats were Cardinal McCrory, primate of all Ireland; Cardinal O'Connell of Boston, Cardinal Verdier of Paris, Cardinal Lavitrano of Palermo, and the bishops of Los Angeles, Buffalo, and Davenport. All of the prelates were in their official robes.

Cardinal Hayes was assisted by Msgr. Waring, vicar general of New York. The countess of Fingall acted as godmother and Mr. Sterling's two small sons as ushers, one being dressed in Irish kilts. Among the guests was Papal Count John McCormack.

A reception after the ceremony on the lawn of the legation looked like a scene from old Italy with cardinals in scarlet and bishops in their violet robes and the diplomatic uniforms in all colors heavily embroidered with gold and lace. At the conclusion of the ceremony Cardinal Hayes read a cable from the pope conferring his apostolic blessing on Mr. and Mrs. Sterling and children, particularly their last born.

Congress Closes Sunday.

Cardinal Lauri again this morning celebrated pontifical high mass in the pro-cathedral, which was crowded to the doors.

The usual number of meetings of various groups were held throughout Dublin today. The American group met at the mansion house with the bishop of Cleveland presiding and heard an address by the Rev. Fulton Sheen of Washington.

A change was announced today in the arrangement of the sacramental procession from the park to O'Connell bridge Sunday. It was decided that the legate, who is old and in poor health, cannot walk the six miles, so a float on pneumatic tired wheels will be provided covered with a canopy and drawn by priests. The cardinal will kneel on it the whole way carrying the Host, which will be exposed from the special altar on O'Connell bridge, where the legate will give the apostolic blessing, thus bringing the congress to an end.

Pope Hears Ceremonies.

VATICAN CITY, June 24.—(AP)—Pope Pius listened on the radio tonight to a broadcast of the Eucharistic congress ceremonies in Dublin. The broadcast was received in the pope's private library, with Father Gianfranceschi, director of the Vatican radio station, at the dials.

Reception from Dublin was excellent, but there was some difficulty in transmitting to the Irish capital. Another test will be made tomorrow to determine whether or not it will be possible for the pope to broadcast a message to the congress Sunday.

Youth Steps Off Ledge Into River; Is Drowned

John Wagner, 22 years old, 950 North Trumbull avenue, was drowned yesterday afternoon when he stepped off a ledge while hunting crabs in the Des Plaines river at Devon avenue and River road. His body was recovered by Sergt. August A. Loula of the forest preserve police; Ray Gaynor, district superintendent, and Sam Purvis and Charles Porter, life guards. The four men located the body wedged in the stone work of Dam No. 4, 15 feet below the surface.

Edw. L. Doheny Jr. Estate Appraised at $14,803,910

Los Angeles, Cal., June 24.—(AP)—The estate of the late Edward L. Doheny Jr., son of the oil magnate, has been appraised at $14,803,910. A petition filed in Probate court today by the widow, Lucy Smith Doheny Battson, who remarried some months ago, asked permission to pay a promissory note claim of $1,618,299. The estate will be divided among Mrs. Battson and her five children. Doheny died in February, 1929.

TRAIN VICTIM IDENTIFIED.

The body of a man killed by a freight train Wednesday at the Illinois Northern tracks and Campbell avenue was identified yesterday as that of Paul Klak, 55 years old, 2336 West 18th place.

VARNER CORRY, BOY SLAYER, IS GRANTED NEW MURDER TRIAL

VARNER CORRY.

Varner Corry, 15 years old, who was sentenced to 18 years for the murder of Policeman Edward Smith, was granted a new trial yesterday by the state Supreme court. The opinion said that reversible error had been committed when the prosecution was allowed to mention the fact that Corry had not testified in his own behalf. It also held that evidence of Corry's other crimes should not have been admitted into the murder trial record.

The defense waived a jury in the murder trial and Corry was sentenced by Judge Joseph Sabath. Policeman Smith was shot to death on Memorial day, 1931, in the basement of the John Marshall High school.

Attorney James M. Burke announced yesterday that he would demand a jury in the second trial of Corry. The youth will be brought to trial as soon as possible, Prosecutor Harry Busch said yesterday.

CHINA DISMISSES JAP WHO SEIZED DAIREN CUSTOMS

Says Tokio Connives with Manchoukuo.

BY JOHN POWELL.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SHANGHAI, June 24.—The Chinese government, through Finance Minister T. V. Soong and Sir Frederick Maze, British inspector general of customs, today dismissed from office J. Fukumoto, Japanese customs commissioner at Dairen, on charges of "gross insubordination."

At the same time Sir Frederick published correspondence between the head customs office at Shanghai and Fukumoto, who is a Chinese government employé, in which Fukumoto's action in conniving with the Manchoukuo puppet government to seize the Chinese customs was designated as "unprecedented in the history of Chinese customs service."

Costs China $12,000,000.

Seizure of the customs revenue at Dairen, which places all of the Chinese government customs revenues in Manchuria in the hands of the Japanese supported Manchoukuo régime, has produced a depressing effect here.

It means the loss of more than 40,000,000 Chinese dollars [$12,000,000 at the current rate], or about 13 per cent of the total Chinese customs revenues. It is considered certain to cause the Chinese government to default on numerous foreign and domestic obligations.

Chinese Banks Seized.

Immediately following the seizure of the customs office balances, the Chinese government banks in Manchuria also were seized.

"The action of the illegitimate régime, styling itself Manchoukuo, constitutes a Japanese breach of treaty obligations with China, and threatens the very integrity of the Chinese customs service," Soong declared today.

Manchoukuo's seizure of the customs is regarded here as a preliminary step to Japan's outright recognition of Manchoukuo. It is rumored that the Chinese government is contemplating issuance of an order for a punitive expedition against the Manchoukuo government.

La Grange Zoning Law Held to Be Unreasonable

Springfield, Ill., June 24.—[Special.]—A La Grange zoning ordinance, which prevented Julius J. Koos from erecting a filling station on his property at Spring and Burling avenues, was held invalid by the state Supreme court today. The court holds that the condition of the ordinance, requiring Koos to secure the consent of other property owners on four sides of the property, is unreasonable.

Attacked by Squirrel in Park; Bitten Three Times

Dewer McDonald, 30 years old, 1449 East 65th place, was attacked by a squirrel yesterday as he strolled in Jackson park. The squirrel dashed down a tree and bit McDonald three times on the neck and shoulders before he could offer a defense. McDonald was given anti-rabies treatment at the county hospital.

CRASHING CARS HURLED ON LAWN; 1 DEAD; BOY HURT

Child at Play Caught in Wreckage.

A light delivery truck and a sedan collided at 52d street and University avenue last evening, skidded over the curbing, and crashed through a fence on one of the corners. The truck driver was instantly killed, and a 4 year old boy, playing in the yard, was so severely injured that physicians feared for his life.

The truck driver was Stanley Stromquist, 17 years old, 1376 East 55th street. The child was Benjamin Franklin Meyer Jr., 5211 University avenue, whose father is head of Meyer, Connor & Co., securities brokers, and a director of the Illinois Central Bank and Trust company. At the Illinois Central hospital physicians determined that a blow upon his head at the base of the brain had caused a blood clot which threatens his life.

Three Passengers Unhurt.

The three passengers in the sedan, Charles Loomis, 18 years old, 4759 Ellis avenue, and his sisters, Anna and Nellie, 21 and 23 years old, escaped unhurt. Loomis was taken to the Hyde Park police station, where he was questioned.

He said that the delivery truck, traveling at a high rate of speed in 52d street, struck his car, which was southbound in University avenue. The impact, he said, drove the wreckage of both cars to the lawn of the Meyer residence.

Two Children Killed.

Two children died yesterday as the result of automobile accidents. The day's deaths increased the Cook county toll since Jan. 1 to 530. The other victims:

Marie Tanzillo, 7 years old, 1503 West Polk street. Fatally hurt last Tuesday when she was struck by the car of John Trier, 1529 Eddy street, at Ashland avenue and Polk street. She died at the Mother Cabrini hospital.

Josephine Migliozzi, 2 years old, 1446 Polk street. Toddled into the street in front of her home while chasing a ball. She was struck by the truck of John Sansone, 1150 Vernon Park place, and died at the Mother Cabrini hospital.

When a tire on her coupé blew out yesterday afternoon, Mrs. Martha M. Loomis, 25 years old, 444 Oakwood avenue, Highland Park, lost control of the machine and it plunged into a deep ravine on Sheridan road at Fort Sheridan. After rolling 15 feet it struck a boulder and stopped. The rumble seat crashed through the rear window and painfully cut Mrs. Loomis, who was taken to the Fort Sheridan hospital.

The body of a man killed at Lake Shore drive and Addison street Wednesday evening was identified last night at that of Theodore Anderson, 65 years old, a patient at the Marine hospital.

DEFEAT MOVE TO HALT SUBWAY ON 47TH STREET

A move to dismiss the condemnation suits brought by the city to acquire property for approaches to the proposed 47th street subway under the Illinois Central railroad tracks was defeated in the city council yesterday after protests had been made by Ald. B. A. Cronson [4th]. The aldermen who sought the dismissal of the suit needed 34 votes, but succeeded in mustering only 26.

The south park board is to build the subway, but it has informed the city that it has no funds to carry out the improvement even should the city carry out its share of the project by acquiring the approaches. Corporation Counsel Sexton informed the aldermen that if the city condemned the land but didn't use it for the purpose for which it was acquired the title would revert to the original owners, the city losing its investment.

Ald. Cronson protested that residents of his ward have been working for years to have the subway, which would be the south entrance to the World's Fair grounds, constructed. Since the move to dismiss the suits was defeated the matter was referred to the finance committee for public hearings.

POSES AS COP; FINED $100.

Leo A. King, 33 years old, 1439 West Adams street, was fined $100 yesterday by Judge Howard W. Hayes on the charge that he posed as a detective and promised protection to vice resort keepers.

JURADO, PERKINS CARD 145; LEAD OPEN GOLF

RADIO REPLACE PRESS? AW, NOW, GEE WHIZ, ABNER

You Forget Those Fight Broadcasts.

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, June 24.—There has been a feeling in our business for some time that the radio might some day come along to outnews the newspaper and disemploy all of us newspaper writers who do not chance to be blessed with the gabby knack and that hearty laugh-in-the-neck which makes the broadcaster.

I never thought this could be so and after listening to a few prize fight broadcasts and some of the conversational crack walking uttered on the air in connection with the Republican convention, I am now convinced that we have nothing to fear from this sort of competition.

The radio, like the movies, is strictly censored to avoid offense to the most sensitive feelings of partisanship and you may be sure that any account which you may listen to on a large national hookup will consist of just so many mouthfuls of grade A horsefeathers, no matter who may be at the mike.

The Paper's the Thing.

The newspaper account will tell you whether the demonstration in the convention hall is spontaneous and genuine or a mechanical phoney that the broadcaster, in his little watchman's shanty, will be required to join and go crazy along with the delegates, who, of course, will be strictly professional in their enthusiasm because they will be cheering and braying for their political jobs.

He will not be allowed to say: "This demonstration is an obvious act and doesn't mean a thing. It was touched off on schedule by a fat politician, who figures that if he puts his stuffed shirt into the White House he will be made collector of the port or U. S. marshal. The rest of the live stock who are mooing and kicking the stalls down there on the floor are a lot of minor grafters who hope to get something out of it, too, and the mugg they are yelling for wouldn't commit himself to the day of the week off two calendars, and he is so dumb that he was a senior in college before he learned to tie his own necktie."

You Get the Idea.

This, of course, would not be the language of a newspaper writer in any case, but he would manage to convey the impression to you in decent English. The broadcasters, however, speak a chummy vernacular and the foregoing is about the way they would say it, if they were allowed to say anything at all. But they aren't, so they indulge in self-induced hysterics and their accounts no more convey the realities of the situation than a label off a bottle conveys the sensation of champagne.

I happened to sit alongside the two artists who strove to acquaint the great big, lovable radio audience out there with the progress and the character of the recent Sharkey-Schmeling prize fight in the Garden's new arena and, listening to them and watching that miserable travesty of a fist fight, I realized what their trouble was. I understand that Mr. Coe, the head man of the broadcast, had done some fist fighting himself and I know he knows a good fight when he sees one.

So when I heard Mr. Coe putting the thrills into his voice and gasping about those two wonderful, marvelous, clean bodies, those fine young sportsmen, both of them, fighting for fame and fortune with tiger-like fury and all such as that, I said to myself, "Uh-huh, so that's how it is on the radio. "On the radio," I said to myself, "everything has got to be just swell, and Pontius Pilate was not a bad fellow and the kaiser was misunderstood and smallpox isn't so bad after you get used to it," I said to myself.

Mr. Coe Is Genuine.

Now, I know Mr. Coe pretty well from meeting him around in one place and another, and I know he is no hand to go around telling little children that Santa Claus is a fake, because that isn't his way of doing. Mr. Coe is generally on the boost, and he is pals with both Tunney and Dempsey, which is ambidexterity, but, nevertheless, he knows a good prize fight from a punk one and if there hadn't been a clamp on the radio that night, put there, I suppose, by the "policy" of the air, I state that he would have moved in not later than the fifth round with a remark to his audience that this was actually the worst heavyweight championship fight in the history of the world. For, so it was. It was such a fight as the customers would have hooted out of the ring not later than round ten if the heavyweight championship hadn't been at stake.

I suppose the air companies figure that there is never any danger of libel is a boost, and therefore wish to play it safe at all times, which is good business, no doubt, from the standpoint of the legal department. But when I heard Mr. Coe and Mr. McNamee telling the customers of the great big, lovable radio audience out there that this was a great fight between two great fighters, I said to myself, "Go on, Pegler, and yell, 'Don't you believe a word of it, you great big, lovable boys and girls and folks of the radio audience out there, because I am telling you fair that if you read the papers tomorrow you will

Cooper and Sarazen Among Elite.

Chicago in 1933

FLUSHING, N. Y., June 24.—[Special.]—The North Shore Golf club of Chicago was selected today as the course for the next national open golf tournament. The dates and further details will be decided later, according to President H. H. Ramsey. Olympia Fields of Chicago had bid for the tourney.

BY TOM PETTEY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Flushing, N. Y., June 24.—T. Philip Perkins, the tall, bespectacled Britisher, now a New York professional, and José Jurado, the colorful Argentine star, led the field with 145 at the close of the second day of play for the national open golf championship. Olin Dutra of California, who burned up the course yesterday, met tough going on the second nine this afternoon and finished in third place with 148 for the 36 holes.

Leo Diegel continued to play championship golf, ringing up a 74 to match his first 73, and held fourth place by one stroke. Walter Hagen of Detroit clicked off a snappy 73 this afternoon and was in fifth position with 148.

Cooper Forgets Sore Finger.

Harry Cooper, Chicago professional, forgot all about a wounded finger and smashed his way through for a 73 which gave him 150 and kept him up among the leaders. Gene Sarazen came in with a 76 to give him 150.

Perkins had the best score of the day, matching Dutra's 69 of yesterday. The Britisher got it by fighting all the way. He had a couple of birdies to help him along as he turned toward home, but he didn't need them to keep his courage up.

The crowd was larger than on the first day, more than 4,000 following Dutra when he climbed the hill to the eighteenth green. There were a half dozen stars teeing off within an hour between - and 2 o'clock this afternoon and the crowd could not decide which favorite to trail. As a consequence there were golf bugs in every fairway and the players had a difficult time of it for a while until the majority of the spectators flocked over to cheer for Dutra.

72 Survive Play.

The wind was not as high in the afternoon and the scores began to grow more respectable in size. Most of the players appeared to be over the tension of the first day and ready to fight it out to a finish.

Seventy-two players will make up the field for the final 36 holes tomorrow. A score of 160 was the deadline. The 60 best scores along with the ties [12 were tied at 160] let in most of the best known stars.

Jurado, the Argentine champion, played almost perfect golf to obtain his 71 today. He made his round when the wind was at its height, but José comes from the wind swept pampas and he likes for it to blow. The Argentine was one over par for the first nine and played the in round in par figures.

An Unorthodox Shot.

It remained for Hagen to provide the most unorthodox shot of the day. It didn't help his score much, but it caught the fancy of the gallery. The big fellow was cut off from the green by an old barn on the edge of the course at the sixteenth. There was no room to swing a right hand club, so Walter fished out a left hand niblick and let go with it. The ball overran the green, but the crowd cheered just the same.

Sarazen had a difficult day even though he did manage to wind up with a 76. Gene had the largest gallery, picked up during the late forenoon and started out smoothly. He ran into trouble on the second, however, hitting into the rough and then into a trap. Just the same, Gene got his par four. It was that way all around the course for the holder of the British open title, and frequently his recoveries as well as some of his putts left the spectators hoarse from cheering. Gene's ability to get out of tough spots began to fade on the second nine and he was lucky to get a 76.

Diegel Plays Consistently.

Diegel continued to play the most consistent golf of any of the stars. The Agua Caliente professional was seldom in serious trouble, and except for a couple of rimmed putts that would not drop, he might have had a 72 or better. At it is, Diegel still remains a favorite to win the title now held by Billie Burke, who rolled up a 77 today to place him down in the 152 bracket, also occupied by the wee Scot, Bobby Cruickshank, and George Von Elm.

Olin Dutra's round of 77 was a great disappointment to the several thousand fans who still pick him for a winner. The big Californian started out to burn up the course and he did just that for nine holes. It was almost 3 o'clock before Dutra teed off in front of the cameras and admiring feminine O's and ah's that yesterday's 69 commanded. His shots were clicking and the big boy clad all in white snared a birdie on the first hole.

A beautiful drive followed by a

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Wilson Charles Jr., former Haskell Institute athlete, led the field at the end of five events yesterday in the decathlon trials at Northwestern university which will determine the makeup of America's team of three men who will compete in the Olympic games at Los Angeles in August. Charles' total for the five events was 4,030.25625 points.

WILSON CHARLES.

Charles took the lead by winning the 100 meter dash and the broad jump, tying for first in the high jump, taking second in the 400 meters, and placing fifth in the shot put.

The remaining events will be held at Dyche stadium this morning. They are: 110 meter high hurdles, discus throw, javelin throw, pole vault and 1,500 meter run.

Bausch Can Win.

While the Oneida Indian, who now is attending the University of New Mexico, holds the lead, victory in the ten events is by no means assured. It is difficult, however, to conceive how he will fail to place in the select trio which will represent the United States against the nations of the world.

Clyde Coffman, Kansas university pole vaulter, whose specialty will be decided this morning, holds second place for the first day's competition. His points total is 3,804.97475. James Bausch, another Kansas university athlete, who has competed for the Kansas City Athletic club since his expulsion from college athletics by the Big Six conference more than a year ago, finished third with 3,772.652 points. Bausch has another event in which he excels, the discus throw, and he may be the winner after this morning's finals.

The decathlon starts at 9 o'clock this morning and is preliminary to the track and field competition sponsored by the A. A. U. in the afternoon, which will qualify contestants for the semi-final meet at Dyche stadium a week from today.

Ray Moncus, representing the Denver Athletic club, was the only one of the field of 11 who dropped out during the five events. Moncus competed in four, but failed to contest in the 1,500 meter run.

Beat Charles Twice.

Bausch has beaten Charles two consecutive years at the Kansas relays. His mark this spring was only exceeded in American track history by that of Jesse Mortensen, who established a record in the National A. A. U. games last summer. Mortensen now is ineligible because he has entered the coaching profession.

None of America's representatives in the 1928 Olympic games competed yesterday. Of that group Kenneth Dougherty, former national champion, is ineligible. Barney Berlinger, University of Pennsylvania graduate in 1931, did not enter, and Tom Churchill of the Olympic club, San Francisco, and James Stewart of South California, did not appear. Stewart will compete in the intercollegiates on the coast next week and it is understood a special plea will be made to have him included on the American decathlon team without the formality of competing in Chicago.

While Bausch still has an excellent chance to win the ten events, he probably will not equal his mark of 8,022.-4025 points set in the Kansas relays.

The Standing

STANDING of the contestants in the Olympic decathlon trials at Dyche stadium at the conclusion of the first five events follows:

Wilson Charles, Haskell Institute, 4,030.25625.

N. Y. Commission Praises Referee Smith.

New York, June 24.—[Special.]—Joe Jacobs, manager of Max Schmeling, whose world's championship was lost on a decision to Jack Sharkey Tuesday night, was suspended indefinitely today by the boxing commission. He will not be allowed to manage or second boxers in New York state until reinstated because of his action in protesting the 2 to 1 decision against Schmeling.

When Joe Humphreys announced the Sharkey verdict to the astonishment of two-thirds of the New York newspaper men at the ringside, Jacobs leaned back against the ropes and shook his head in bewilderment. In speaking over the radio, he shouted: "I don't want to seem to be a poor sport, but Max Schmeling did not lose his title in the ring. He was robbed." Afterward in Schmeling's dressing room, he declared his boxer was the victim of a plot.

Muldoon Praises Smith.

William Muldoon, veteran member of the commission, after the suspension had been announced, condemned Jacobs but praised Schmeling as "a gentleman and a credit to the sport."

Muldoon declared Jacob's conduct and statements after the fight "had been detrimental to the sport and had brought suspicion on boxing."

Gunboat Smith, the referee, who with George Kelly, one of the judges, gave Sharkey the decision, was praised by the commission for his efficiency in the bout and for his work generally as a referee.

Gen. J. J. Phelan, member of the commission, declared Jacobs had made no protest before the fight against Smith appearing as referee and that none of the officials who acted knew he was to be assigned to the championship bout. Gen. Phelan said he phoned the judges, among whom were Charles F. Mathieson and Kelly, and the referees, Smith, Arthur Donovan and Jed Gehan, to be present at the bouts, but told none of them which bout he was to judge.

Lewis Seeks Schmeling.

Neither Schmeling nor any of Jacobs' other boxers are affected by the suspension.

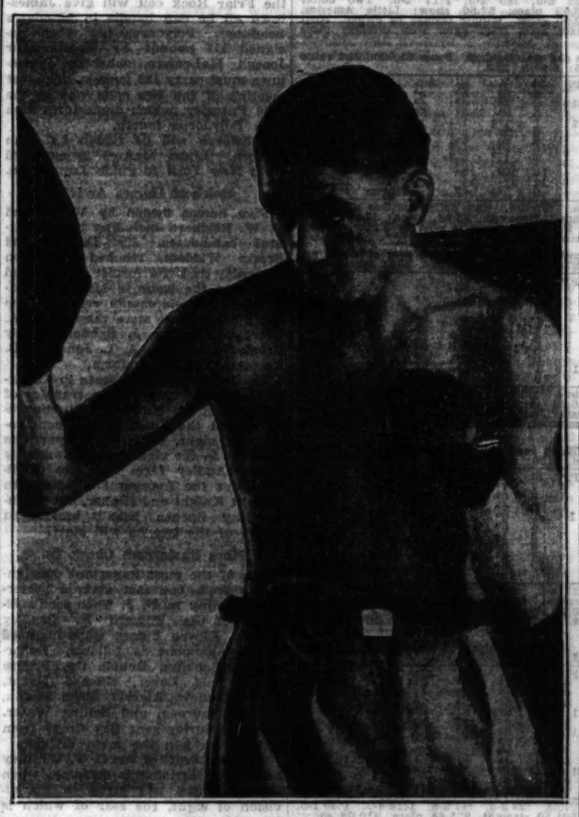
Before today's meeting, Jacobs declared he would stand pat on all that he had said and denied he had apologized for statements made after the fight.

Nate Lewis, matchmaking director of the Chicago Stadium, and Al Weill, speaking for Tim Mara, football promoter, who plans to stage boxing shows at Yankee stadium and the Polo grounds, approaching Jacobs seeking Schmeling's next appearance. Lewis mentioned pairing the Teuton with King Levinsky or Tuffy Griffith. Weill mentioned Mickey Walker, and Manager Jacobs mentioned money.

Thus the usual state of affairs that dethroned the heavyweight champion finds the "defeated" gladiator still the champion, judging by the attentions showered on him by matchmakers.

Schmeling plans to sail tomorrow night on the Columbus to visit his mother in Germany, but probably will return later in the summer.

ONCE WEAKLING—NOW CHAMP



They told him in Munich he was too weak to put on boxing gloves. But he—Joseph Schleinkofer—told them to go button their noses. Now he's the German featherweight champion and at the moment is packing his trunk to come to Soldiers' field, where he will meet the Chicago Golden Glove champion in the international bouts on July 26.

Firing Engines No Job for Featherweight, but Boxing—

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Germany, June 24.—When the bell rings for the featherweight bout at the international Golden Gloves match between Germany and the Chicagoland team in Soldiers' field, Chicago, on the night of July 26, spectators may be surprised to see a slender young man climb through the ropes wearing on the side of his trunks a large number 13.

Such bold defiance of superstition may seem a bit strange and even futile unless they know the history of Joseph Schleinkofer, German featherweight champion, who will bear the German colors in the 126 pound division. Joseph has no fear of this mathematical malignancy and, unlike most people, has a wholesome respect for the number. Most of his success as a boxer is closely related to the figure 13.

He is the thirteenth child of his parents and since he has been bringing home laurel wreaths to decorate the family parlor in Munich the entire Schleinkofer menage has come to regard the number as an emblem of good luck. Moreover, Herr Schleinkofer was for years a fireman on the Bavarian railways and one of the engines to which he was regularly assigned bore the number 13.

Too Weak to Fire Engine.

Joseph was born on March 19, 1910, and tradition should have dictated that he follow in his father's railroad tracks, but his lean frame was hardly suited for the strenuous work of pitching coal into the flaming maw of an engine firebox. So he turned to some other occupation more fitted to his frail physique. Eventually he struck upon the trade of carpenter and learned it thoroughly, although it has been little of an asset to him, as he has been out of work for a whole year with no prospect of getting a new job at any time soon.

Although he is 5 feet 11 inches tall, he weighs only 126 pounds now and considers himself a trifle too heavy. He puts on and sheds weight with the same careless ease with which ordinary individuals don and doff their coats, so that he experiences no inconvenience in making the weight for any division in which he elects to fight, from flyweight to lightweight.

As might be supposed from his peculiar physique, he had difficulty getting started in the sport of boxing. When he first appeared at the Munich Boxing club and asked for permission to fight, the board of directors of the club tried to keep him from "losing his time boxing" because he appeared too weak and suggested that he take up some other less violent pastime which would not place too great a strain upon him. He, however, was persistent and pleaded for just one week's training, promising to withdraw if the members of the board still found that he had no chance of becoming a fighter.

He Makes Good.

Rather grudgingly they granted him permission. He went to work under Trainer Max Klingenstein, a former professional, who had fought in America a few years before. At the end of the week, Schleinkofer had his first fight. He weighed 95 pounds when he stepped into the ring and the great scarcity of flesh upon his gangling framework brought many wisecracks from the spectators. But Joseph ignored them and instead of jeering at him the crowd was cheering at the finish when he won a draw with a much more seasoned opponent.

After that bout there were no more attempts to stop him. He has fought successively through the flyweight, bantamweight, featherweight, and lightweight divisions. In all he has had 160 bouts and has won 138 of them, 41 of them in international competition. He has lost only 15 on points and has drawn twice. He never has been knocked out.

He won the German featherweight championship after battling his way through three tournaments and then defended it against Hans Kramer of Cologne, Fritz Arenz of Berlin, Heinrich Kaestner of Erfurt. Later he fought against Swedish, Finnish, Hungarian, Italian, Czechoslovakian, Swiss, Danish, and Spanish boxers, most of them national champions in their native lands, and won 41 of his 43 bouts with them.

Face Shows He's Fighter.

In the last international tournament in Berlin in May, he won from Antonio Alessandrias of Italy, and Rudolf Frigsch of Hungary.

While his figure would never suggest that he is a boxer, his face is that of a determined battler. His nose is slightly askew from repeated battering and one eye peers out from beneath a lump that attests the punching ability of some of his assailants. Joseph doesn't consider these disfigurements as detracting from his appearance, but rather a badge of honor.

HARVARD WHIPS YALE CREW AGAIN BY 3½ LENGTHS

Eli Trails from First Mile in Big Upset.

New London, Conn., June 24.—[Special.]—Back from the ruck of an early season shot full of disappointment, a brilliantly rowing Harvard crew sped through the screaming sirens of the yacht fleet on the Thames river to victory over Yale tonight.

All through the last mile, Harvard rowed to a roar of triumphant cheers. Underneath the railroad bridge, with its load of filled observations cars, this Harvard crew came to a stop three and a quarter lengths ahead of the Yale varsity, which was soundly and convincingly defeated. In this seventieth chapter of the oldest of American sporting events, Harvard achieved one of the most amazing upsets of recent years.

Here's a Real Upset.

The triumph put the finishing touch to one of the most highly successful Harvard days of recent years. The Harvard freshmen went to defeat at the hands of Yale in the first race of the day, but the junior varsity gave some indication of what the evening might hold by bringing the morning to a close with a victory at one and one-quarter lengths. Then tonight Gerry Cassidy and his mates, with little Hammy Bissell screaming into their faces, rowed steadily to victory, leading without a break from the end of the first mile to the end of the fourth.

The time for the race was not fast. Harvard finished in 21 minutes and 29 seconds and Yale in 21:42.

The Thames threatened for a long while this morning to prevent the morning races. A high, cool wind that made overcoats welcome swept across the river and made it necessary to shorten the morning races from two miles to one and a half miles. The wind dropped tonight, but the conditions were not good.

Yale Challenges Once.

This is the first time in 19 years that Harvard has won from Yale on the Thames two years in a row. Last June Harvard rowed upstream through a terrific, grueling fight to whip Yale.

This was a great Harvard crew today. Starting with a flashing beat of 40, the Crimson carsmen jumped to the lead. Yale then came back to join them for the first and last time, the Elis leading at the first half mile flags, by about an eighth of a length. Very soon afterward Harvard bore down on the Blue, overhauled her and went on into the lead to stay there.

Steadily and calmly, Harvard rowed its race. At a lower stroke for a good part of the course, the Crimson steadily piled up its lead, holding its greatest margin when the crews went over the finish line.

Victory Complete.

For the Elis, who until today, had gone through an undefeated season and who were looking forward hopefully to the Olympics, this was a crushing disappointment. Rowing over most of the course at 31 and 32, Yale was never able to muster a sprint or a real challenge to the smoothly moving Crimson. The Elis simply had a long, stubborn stern chase which turned into a hopeless one in the last half mile.

Even at the finish, they were unable to get up to more than 25 strokes a minute, and their boat rode sluggishly, refusing to answer the despairing drive of the eight men.

There was no catching Harvard. The sheer power of the crew was harnessed smoothly at last and the Crimson was going away easily.

The attendance was not up to past standards. The crews:

Poreda Wins Decision Over Schaaf in 10 Rounds

West New York, N. J., June 24.—(AP)—Stanley Poreda of Jersey City won the referee's decision over Ernie Schaaf of Boston, stablemate of the new heavyweight champion, Jack Sharkey, in a ten round bout here tonight. Poreda weighed 201, Schaaf 203.

RISKO CLOSES WALKER'S EYES, WINS DECISION

Cleveland, O., June 24.—(AP)—Johnny Risko, Cleveland heavyweight, won a decision over Mickey Walker, former middleweight champion, in a 12 round fight tonight. Risko weighed 193½ and Walker 171½.

Both Walker's eyes were battered and one of Risko's was cut at the end of the action-filled battle. It was Risko's first fight in nearly seven months.

The decision by Referee Matt Brock and two judges was unanimous. More than 14,000 witnessed the fight, promoters said, the first in the Cleveland stadium since the Stribling-Schmeling championship bout a year ago.

Risko knocked down Walker in the second round with a right cross to the jaw. He breezed along for several rounds, then started in the tenth to recover his lead and put on the best finish of his career. It was revenge for Risko, who had lost two decisions to Walker.

In the semi-final bout, Roy [Tiger] Williams won an eight round decision over Tommy Freeman, former welterweight champion. Williams weighed 163 and Freeman 159½.

HARVARD WHIPS YALE CREW AGAIN BY 3½ LENGTHS

Eli Trails from First Mile in Big Upset.

New London, Conn., June 24.—[Special.]—Back from the ruck of an early season shot full of disappointment, a brilliantly rowing Harvard crew sped through the screaming sirens of the yacht fleet on the Thames river to victory over Yale tonight.

All through the last mile, Harvard rowed to a roar of triumphant cheers. Underneath the railroad bridge, with its load of filled observations cars, this Harvard crew came to a stop three and a quarter lengths ahead of the Yale varsity, which was soundly and convincingly defeated. In this seventieth chapter of the oldest of American sporting events, Harvard achieved one of the most amazing upsets of recent years.

Here's a Real Upset.

The triumph put the finishing touch to one of the most highly successful Harvard days of recent years. The Harvard freshmen went to defeat at the hands of Yale in the first race of the day, but the junior varsity gave some indication of what the evening might hold by bringing the morning to a close with a victory at one and one-quarter lengths. Then tonight Gerry Cassidy and his mates, with little Hammy Bissell screaming into their faces, rowed steadily to victory, leading without a break from the end of the first mile to the end of the fourth.

The time for the race was not fast. Harvard finished in 21 minutes and 29 seconds and Yale in 21:42.

The Thames threatened for a long while this morning to prevent the morning races. A high, cool wind that made overcoats welcome swept across the river and made it necessary to shorten the morning races from two miles to one and a half miles. BY FRENCH LANE.

The early summer racing season at Washington Park will come to a close this afternoon with the renewal of the Francis S. Peabody Memorial handicap. The race is worth $10,000 and is at a mile and a quarter. Ten stars were named through the overnight entry box and it is expected that most of them will accept the issue.

Plucky Play, Gallant Knight, Spanish Play, and Pittsburgher were absorbing most of the overnight play. There was backing, and lots of it, for all of them. But when they line up at the barrier this afternoon Gallant Knight will be the favorite and he will be the kind of a favorite which will make good for his backers unless he gets into one of those once-in-a-blue-moon sulking moods. In that event anything may happen and Gallant Knight may be at the eighth pole when the official numbers are hung out.

The Knight's Own Territory.

Washington Park has long been the happy hunting grounds for Gallant Knight. He hasn't run many bad races at this course and just the other day he gave evidence of his splendid condition when he ran a mile in 1:35 3-5, the fastest of the year in America, breaking the track record for the distance.

There is only one three year old in the race and that is Osculator, the famous "second" horse, second in the Withers, second in the Belmont and second in the American Derby. He gets into today's race with 107 pounds, a much lighter impost than he has been carrying in the 3 year old specials. Bobby Jones will ride him.

The curtain should come down on Washington Park's season with a huge crowd in attendance. Hundreds of early visitors to the Democratic convention will be on hand, including most of Tammany Hall. The early reservations show that Al Smith, Mayor Jimmie Walker, John Curry and other Tammany braves will be among those in the front row seats.

Exodus to Arlington Begins.

While Washington Park was getting ready to close shop there was a general exodus of horsemen toward Arlington Park, where the Arlington Jockey club's stake-a-day program opens Monday. Only horses that race on today's program remained over at Washington Park. However, all the races on the final, well balanced card are filled to the overflowing point with entries.

The Meteor purse was the best race on yesterday's program and it brought the biggest plunge of the season, a plunge which was successful when Big Brand, a Kentucky 3 year old, turned up as the winner by four lengths from the Audley Farm's Renewed. Otto W. Lehman's Subtlety landed third money and was going fastest of all near the end.

Batter Odds Down to 7 to 5.

Big Brand's opening price was 10 to 1. There was a steady stream of money for him in all sections of the crowd. The price was battered down and down and the last quotation was 7 to 5. The payoff price was $5.22.

It was the first race Big Brand ever won, but he skipped over the mile in 1:37 3-5 and came from far back to score his triumph.

Polydorus to Race Monday at Arlington

A sharp contest, in which the track record will be in danger, is predicted for the seven furlong Inaugural Handicap at Arlington Park Monday following the announcement yesterday by Harry Unna that he will start Al Bartelstein's Polydorus in the $5,000 added event against George D. Widener's Jamestown.

Polydorus moved to Arlington Park Thursday, along with five other Bartelstein racers, and arrived in such fine condition, Trainer Unna believes the Friar Rock colt will give Jamestown all he can handle in Monday's headliner. Polydorus has been assigned 117 pounds by Handicapper Joseph McLennan, whereas Jamestown must carry 122 pounds. The last meeting of the two colts was in the 1930 Futurity, which Jamestown won with Polydorus fourth.

Polydorus will be ridden by John Maiben. Linus McAtee is expected from New York to guide Jamestown.

Reichert Horses Arrive.

Five horses owned by W. C. and E. W. Reichert, including two Inaugural candidates, My Dandy and Brown Wisdom, reached Arlington yesterday and the former is expected to accept the issue in Monday's feature. Other shipments reaching the north side course were those of F. A. Carreaud, Walter J. Salmon, Shady Brook Stock farm, A. L. Jones, J. B. Respess and Audley farm.

The latter sent ten horses to Arlington and will complete the transfer of its large stable tomorrow. Pittsburgher headed the Shady Brook consignment of eight, while Satin Spar was included in the eight horses owned by Jones. Audley farm has two candidates for the Inaugural Handicap in Gallant Knight and Higher, but Trainer Kay Spence hasn't announced which of the two he will start.

More Easterners Check In.

DODGERS' DOUBLE PLAYS TURN BACK BRAVES, 3 TO 0

Five Too Many for Boston; Wilson Hits No. 14.

Boston, Mass., June 24.—(AP)—Hollis Thurston kept his starting record perfect today, pitching the Brooklyn Dodgers to a 3 to 0 victory over the Boston Braves.

Although hit safely 10 times, at least once in every inning except the fourth, Thurston tightened in the pinches and aided by good support kept the Braves away from the plate. Five double plays and sensational plays by Hack Wilson and Joe Stripp featured the Dodgers' defensive play.

Wilson also drove out a home run, his 14th of the season and one more than he hit last year. The two other runs were made in the second on somewhat flukey singles by O'Doul, Lopez and Taylor together with Slade's double and an error by Knothe.

PHILLIES WHIP GIANTS, 11-6.

Philadelphia, Pa., June 24.—(AP)—With Chuck Klein smashing out three singles and a triple to raise his total hits for the season to 103, the Phillies continued their heavy slugging to defeat the New York Giants, 11 to 6, today. Klein is the first to pass the century mark in hits this year. Dick Bartell also connected with four hits in five times at the plate, while Don Hurst brought his total hits for the season to 99 with a single and his tenth home run. Ott hit his thirteenth homer for the Giants.

SUTTER, GRANT REACH FINAL OF COLLEGE TENNIS

Haverford, Pa., June 24.—[Special.]—Clifford Sutter, Tulane university, and Bryan Grant, University of North Carolina, will meet in the finals of the 47th annual intercollegiate tennis tournament tomorrow on the Merion Cricket club courts as a result of victories in the semi-final round today.

Sutter, winner of the national championship in 1930, swept into the finals with a 6-0, 6-2, 6-1 victory over Clayton Lee Burwell, University of the South. Grant, in earning the right to meet Sutter, eliminated last year's titleholder, Keith Gledhill, Stanford university, 6-3, 6-2, 1-6, 8-6.

Marriner Gives Away a Pound to Retzlaff Tuesday

Les Marriner and Charley Retzlaff, heavyweights, who meet Tuesday night in the main ten round event of Promoter Mique Malloy's outdoor fight show at White, City, are evenly matched physically.

Marriner, a former University of Illinois football player, who weighs 192 pounds, will give away only a pound to Retzlaff, the Duluth battler, who has just returned from New York, where he beat Hans Birkie on the Schmeling-Sharkey championship card.

Retzlaff will have an inch advantage in reach, the figures being 84 for Charley and 83 for Les. The same similarity carries over into stature, Retzlaff standing 6 feet 2½ inches, a scant inch above his opponent. Both have the same chest measurements, 43 inches, and identical waists, 34 inches.

Marriner did only road work yesterday, his afternoon being spent piloting an airplane over Chicago for the military show at Grant park. Les is a lieutenant in the United States aviation corps, and reserve officers are compelled to fly for a certain length of time each month to keep their standing.

DICK TRACY—The History Lesson

WELL PAT WE'RE JUST WHERE WE WERE TWO WEEKS AGO ON THIS COUNTERFEIT CASE- THIS GUY PENN IS THE SLICKEST THING I'VE BEEN UP AGAINST IN MY LIFE, AND NOW HE'S VANISHED OUT OF THE PICTURE COMPLETELY.
TRACY, I'VE GOT AN IDEA! I'M GOING BACK TO BIG BOY'S CELL AND QUESTION HIM - IF THIS GUY, PENN, IS THE HEAD OF A BIG COUNTERFEIT RING, HE MIGHT KNOW SOMETHING ABOUT HIM
DON'T MAKE ME LAUGH - YOU KNOW BIG BOY WON'T TALK
FIVE MINUTES LATER.
IF THERE'S ANYTHING ELSE I CAN DO FOR YOU, FLAT-FOOT, JUST LET ME KNOW.
NUTS!
WELL - DID HE KNOW ANYTHING ABOUT PENN?
YEAH - HE SAID HE WAS AN ENGLISHMAN THAT SETTLED IN PENNSYLVANIA ABOUT TWO HUNDRED YEARS AGO.

Princess Wins First Race for Yacht Trophy

Princess, the fleet Q boat owned by Ed Jedzry-Kowski and Carl Kallgren of the Jackson Park Yacht club, danced into a lead midway through the running of the first of the Virginia trophy races off Belmont harbor yesterday and maintained it throughout, although at the finish she was only five seconds ahead of the Robinson brothers' Hope, Lake Michigan's newcomer in the Q class. The Karas brothers' Siren, three time victor in the Mackinac Island race and defender of the Virginia trophy, was third, with O'Rourke brothers' Intruder from Jackson Park fourth.

Princess thus enters the second of the series, to be settled today, with 4 points to 3 for Hope, 2 for Siren, and 1 for Intruder. The third and final race will be run tomorrow.

Eight Sail for St. Joseph.

In addition to opening the Virginia trophy series, the Chicago Yacht club also inaugurated a new distance race at 7 o'clock last night when eight members of the cruising division set sail for St. Joseph, Mich., in their first race to that port. Among the starters were included Bob Benedict's Bagheera, favored because of its victory in the recent Michigan City race; Col. Albert Peirce's Quicksilver II.; the Scot-Wright Privateer; Dr. R. B. Cobb's Nira; Sterling Morton's big Freedom; Chet Foust's Picaroon; W. R. Rummler's Sea Call, and Hal Redmon's Velma.

The fourth race of the club's regular series A also will be sailed today, with R boats, eagles, stars and pups competing.

Race in Shifty Wind.

Yesterday's race was sailed over a triangular twice around course of 12 miles in a shifty southerly wind, which was from the southeast on the outside and the southwest inshore. Hope led the fleet around the home mark the first time, but Princess, only five seconds behind, worked out a commanding lead running before the wind to the fifth leg. On the sixth leg, a beat, Hope picked up considerable ground, but not enough to catch the southside boat. Siren was doing well until the fourth leg, where she failed to keep pace with the leaders and dropped out of it completely.

The elapsed time for the quartet was: Princess, 2 hours 42 minutes and 5 seconds; Hope, 2:42:10; Siren, 2:47:15, and Intruder, 2:50:54.

Radio Replace Press? Now Gosh, Abner

discover that this fight is awful. And, moreover, this Sharkey isn't a great big, finely conditioned body, but a fellow who had gone past the peak and thickened out around the middle, so that a little fold of slack blubber is bouncing around above his tights.'"

Read the Papers, Boys!

But, of course, it was none of my business what they told the G. B. I. radio audience out there, and, in fact, it was a little better than okay with me, because, personally, I am all newspaper and not at all radio, and I would just as soon see the radio discredit itself and relieve us of any little threat of disemployment or unjobment, or whatever the right word may be, which may exist in radio, although, as I say, the threat doesn't amount to anything. A fight may be a good fight in the newspaper acccounts, but it doesn't have to be, whether it really is or not.

And that is the difference between the radio and the papers. I can't understand how an industry so young as the radio has curled up and quit to the chance objections of the hypersensitive, because when it did that it waived its independence and its credibility.

SOUTH SHORE TO CHANGE POLO LINEUP SUNDAY

The South Shore Polo club lineup will be revised from last week when it faces the Chicago Shamrocks at the White City field Sunday. Lieut. Levine will be at No. 2 position while Lieut. Don Rice, who started last week will be at No. 1. Edwin Hirsch of the South Shores, who was injured last week, has recovered and will play.

The Shamrocks, 1929 national champions, will present a strong lineup with Lieut. Romeo Mura, one of the hardest riding players in the country, playing No. 2 position. The lineup:

CHICAGO SHAMROCKS.	SOUTH SHORE.
Capt. L. Callahan	No. 1	Lieut. Don Rice
Lieut. Romeo Mura	No. 2	Lieut. Louis Levine
Lieut. Chris Schuh	No. 3	Charles Roovaart

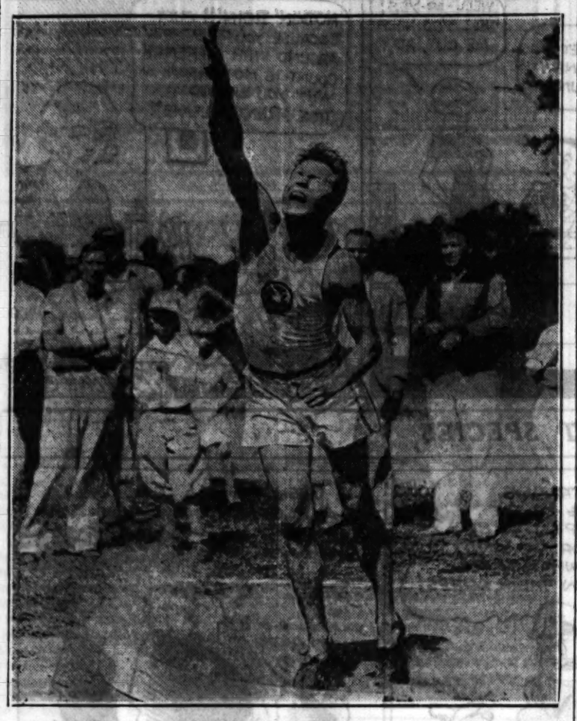
NEXT STOP OLYMPICS, HARRY?



Harry Frieda is representing the Illinois A. C. in final Olympic decathlon tryouts at Dyche stadium. Harry finished fourth in the shot put yesterday and will wind up the two day competition this morning with ten other contestants. The first three will compose the United States Olympic decathlon team at Los Angeles.

In the Wake of the News

EARLIER CHICAGO.

DEAR WAKE: It was April 23, 1914, at what is now Wrigley field, then the new home of the Federal league formed to combat organized baseball in the recognized National and American leagues. Charles Weeghman, local restaurant man, was chief backer of the Chicago end of the enterprise. Harry Sinclair, oil man, was also one of the club owners.

There was a parade on opening day to the new park from the loop, with all kinds of music and noise makers. Remember the caps they gave to every customer with the big "C-Feds" in the center? I still have one as a memento of the occasion, one of the greatest, gayest and most tumultuous openings I ever attended. Every one seemed to enjoy himself or herself. This was the lineup:

CHICAGO.	KANSAS CITY.
Flack,lf	Chadbourne,lf
Zeider,3b	Potts,rf
Tinker,ss-mgr	Kenworthy,2b
Beck,1b	Stovall,1b-mgr
Zwilling,cf	Perring,3b
Wickland,rf	Kruger,cf
Farrell,2b	Goodwin,ss
Wilson,c	Easterly,c
Hendrix,p	Johnson,p

Chicago won, 3 to 1, by knocking Johnson out of the lot, and Stone finished for Kansas City.

Here is an ordinance passed by the common council of the City of Chicago Jan. 14, 1856:

Be it enacted by the council that hereafter no person or persons shall be permitted to buy, sell, or have in possession for sale, within the limits of the City of Chicago, any deer, fawn, wild turkeys, grouse, pheasant, prairie hen, quail or woodcock, between the 15th day of January and the first day of August of each and every year. And any person who shall violate any of the provisions of this ordinance shall forfeit and pay a penalty of five dollars for each and every offense, and the sale of such deer, fawn, wild turkey, grouse, pheasant, prairie hen, quail or woodcock shall be deemed and taken as a separate offense.

Way Back When.

Pride it was that gave men thought,
For with every sailor hat
Went a cord when one was bought.
This was pinned onto the coat
When "safety first" was e'en remote.
When the wind blew 'twas a sight
For the hat blew like a kite,
But the wearer caught the trailer
Without a sprint and saved his sailor. Mrs. F. L. Radell.

Stoefen Wins Way to Tennis Semi-Finals

Frank Parker, the 16 year old Milwaukee boy who eliminated George Lott, will meet Junior Coen of Kansas City today at 3 o'clock in the feature match of the Western tennis tournament at River Forest. Today's matches will decide the finalists in all divisions.

The other men's singles semi-final match will be between Lester Stoefen of Los Angeles, who yesterday defeated Wray Brown of St. Louis, 6-0, 6-8, 3-6, 6-0, 6-1, and Gilbert Hall of East Orange, N. J., seeded second in the draw.

Stoefen's victory yesterday, which advanced him to the semi-finals a day after the others, was the highlight of a day that saw only one match in the men's singles and the easy advance of favorites in the women's division.

Lott-Garland Team Loses.

The only upset of the day was scored in the doubles when George Lott and Charles Garland, seeded first in the draw, lost to Doc Barr of Texas and Lefty Bryan of Chattanooga, 3-6, 6-3, 6-4, 2-6, 9-7.

Mrs. Stanley Hack, women's singles favorite, won again yesterday and will meet Louise Hoffmeister today. Miss Hoffmeister moved into the semi-finals at the expense of Ruth Oexman of Cincinnati, 6-2, 8-6. Mrs. Hack defeated Mrs. E. C. Johnson, 6-2, 6-2.

Hedberg vs. Wolf.

Lucy Jane Hedberg upset Eugenie Sampson, 4-6, 6-3, 6-4, and earned the right to oppose Catherine Wolf, women's champion last year, who led the field in to the semi-final round two days ago.

Stoefen and Parker, after their duel in the singles, will return to the courts later in the day to oppose Barr and Bryan in the semi-finals of the men's doubles. Hall and Fritz Mercur yesterday ran ahead of schedule and moved into the final round by first defeating Norman Bickel and John Shostrum, Chicago youngsters, 6-0, 6-1, 3-6, 7-5 and then taking the measure of Coen and John McDiarmid, 6-3, 6-4, 7-5.

MIDWAY ATHLETIC CLUB WINS SUIT TO BALK MERGER

Springfield, Ill., June 24.—[Special.]—The Midway Athletic club, located at 59th street and Stony Island avenue, Chicago, which declined to merge with the Outer Drive Athletic club, also of Chicago, won its fight in the Supreme court today. The court ordered the Superior court of Cook county to issue a decree restoring the Midway club to its status of Nov. 11, 1929.

According to officials of the Midway club, the Outer Drive club, with three members, was formed for the purpose of taking over the Midway club. The Midway club has 2,000 members. Real estate, valued at $500,000, was involved in the fight.

Vines Leads March of Americans on Wimbledon Courts

BY EUGENE SPECK.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, June 24.—The brand of tennis necessary to win Wimbledon championships began to appear on the twelve courts today as three men and five women reached quarter finals in the singles and the competition in other divisions began to assume more definite form.

Ellsworth Vines was the first American to reach the last eight. The United States champion played inspired tennis at times to beat the Japanese banker, Iwao Aoki, 6-2, 3-6, 6-3, 6-2. Four more Yankees play tomorrow. Sidney B. Wood Jr. and Gregory Mangin, who are paired in the doubles, oppose each other, Wilmer Allison meets Fred Perry of Great Britain, and Francis X. Shields faces the Czechoslovakian, R. Menzel.

Joining Vines in the last eight today were Bunny Austin, Briton, who beat Paul Feret, French No. 4 man, 6-4, 8-6, 4-6, 6-3, and Jiro Satoh, frozen faced Japanese, who routed Henk Timmer, redheaded Dutchman, 6-3, 6-2, 6-4. Jean Borotra, Frenchman, and Jack Crawford, Australian, who are the likeliest challengers for Wood's title, complete the quarter final list for tomorrow.

Out of five women attaining places among the last eight only two are Americans. Mrs. Helen Wills Moody trimmed her conqueror of the Wimbledon finals eight years ago with a 6-3, 6-0 victory over Mrs. L. A. Godfree. Helen Jacobs disposed of Mrs. C. H. Jameson, 6-1, 6-2. Miss Jacobs is working toward a match with either Mrs. Rene Mathieu, France, who is seeded No. 2, or Betty Nuthall, England, who was hard pressed to defeat Sarah Palfrey of the United States, 8-6, 9-7. Mrs. Moody next plays Dorothy Round of England, who won this afternoon in two sets. Miss Jacobs' next opponent is Fraulein Krahwinkel, German runner, for whom tennis is a side line.

Allison and John Van Ryn are working toward the doubles title which they took two years ago. They won today and will oppose I. G. Collins and J. C. Gregory, former British Davis cup stars. Wood and Mangin also won, beating the Spaniards, Eduardo Maier, and H. C. Fisher, 4-6, 6-3, 6-4, 6-4. The American-British combination of Shields and P. D. B. Spence was victorious in today's first match against Nigel Sharpe and J. D. Wheatley, but lost later to Borotra and Jacques Brugnon, 11-9, 6-0, 6-2.

In women's doubles Elizabeth Ryan, American, who has shared the crown ten times, paired with Miss Jacobs to beat Mrs. C. O. Tuckey and Mrs. I. H. Wheatcroft, 6-1, 6-2. Another American pair, Mrs. L. A. Harper and Miss Palfrey, won in two sets.

GIRL, 13, WINS TITLE.

CUBS BEGIN LAST STAND OF ROAD TRIP IN ST. LOUIS

Warneke to Pitch Opener of Cardinal Series.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

St. Louis, Mo., June 24.—The Cubs were just a bit punch drunk when they pulled in here this evening for the final stand in a journey that to date has been a keen disappointment for those who believe the Chicagoans potential pennant winners.

Ten defeats in seventeen attempts since quitting their own playground is not a record calculated to inspire confidence in the future, and yet it wasn't much worse than expected by those who are wise to the team's little weaknesses. Pitchers can't produce shutout ball day in and day out, but that is what the Cub staff has been trying to do. Whenever they weaken a bit the team falls apart.

So long as no other entry in the race puts on a spurt this slow pace of the Chicago team will not move it very far below the top, but it is reasonable to fear that within the next couple of weeks some team such as the Cardinals or Pirates will get serious and pull away from the crowd now packed tightly in the first division.

No Pennant Claims.

Those who are storing up their chuckles to turn loose when and if the Cubs slide down the percentage pole are advised not to be too mouthy with their "I told you so." They should stop and consider that nobody has made any pennant claims for the Chicagoans. The experts, as soon as the spring training exhibitions had progressed to the half way mark, noted the team's lack of a satisfactory attack. This one weakness was regarded as serious enough to keep them from finishing any higher than third, and that is about where they would be right now if the champion Cardinals hadn't started poorly and the Giants hadn't been a dismal flop.

The Cubs themselves aren't trying to kid anybody about where they'll be when the race ends. The boys, of course, are hopeful. The world series money is worth while capturing. But they aren't figuring how they are going to spend it. They don't even indulge in much pennant talk. They appreciate their own shortcomings. And they realize that the last half of the race is going to be far more strenuous than the first part. If they could play all their remaining games at home they could walk over the finish line without being pressed, but they still have two more eastern trips to make. These always have been tough for Cub teams.

Jurges Ready to Play.

When the series with the Cardinals opens tomorrow Manager Hornsby may be able to present his strongest combination from the lead-off hitter right down to the pitcher. Bill Jurges, who has been out for several days as the result of an infected spike wound, thinks he will be ready to return to shortstop. That will let English move back to third, where he fields with more skill than he ever revealed at short, where he was considered pretty good. And Jurges at short is a better defensive man than English.

Lon Warneke, seeking his tenth victory, will be the pitching pick in the opener, and probably will draw Jess Haines as an opponent. That should mean a low score win for one or the other.

Friday to Sox Is Sunday, a Day for Rest

BY EDWARD BURNS.

The White Sox spent yesterday in relaxation, conscious, perhaps, that they've shown some improvement of late, but still confronted with the cold realization that they are in seventh place, a mere nine games out of sixth place.

The day of idleness was brought about by the American league schedule, which this year is showing an unprecedented aversion toward Friday competition. Today, however, the Sox will be back at work, their guests being the new second placers, the Detroit Tigers. The Tigers will be here through Monday, after which the Sox go to St. Louis for five hot games with the St. Louis Browns, who have gone stark mad with victory lust as witness their 31 runs in their last two games with the league leading Yankees Wednesday and Thursday.

The St. Louis series will open next Wednesday. Friday will be an off day, the third Friday off in three successive weeks. The series will close with a double header on Sunday. The Sox come back home for a doubleheader with Cleveland on the Fourth, then head east for the second seaboard invasion of the year.

They Meet the Surprises.

The two immediate foes of the Sox have been the two surprises of the American league, especially to the Sox who had counted on both Detroit and St. Louis to join Boston in finishing below them in the league standings, come September.

In the opening series of the season St. Louis showed promise of living up to the dope, by dropping three out of four to the Sox. Since that time, however, the Browns not only have beaten the Sox five out of six, but they have indulged in such prankish ruthlessness as trimming the Washington Senators seven out of eight, to say nothing of kicking the Yanks around by scores the like of which no one deemed possible.

The Sox record with the Tigers is slightly better than their won and lost ratio in the league, in that they have beaten the Tigers four out of 13, including both ends of a double header here May 22.

Sox Shade Boston.

The Chicagoans boast an advantage over one team in the league, however. They lead the Boston Red Sox in the season series, five games to three. Their next best ratio is with the A's, who are only one up on them in the five games played.

While Sox sympathizers can point to many instances where tough breaks have vanquished their heroes, the Sox have won a few lucky ones themselves. In any event the detailed statistics of the league, compiled irrespective of victories and losses, show them one peg higher in the standings than their position in the batting and fielding tables. The Sox are last in fielding and last in hitting, just as they finished a year ago. Less significant is the fact that they also are last in home runs. The latest averages show the team to have only one .300 hitter. Selph is batting an even .300. Fothergill and Sullivan, earlier members of the elite circle, have faded out within the week.

Pitching Is Improving.

The Sox pitching has been showing improvement, especially in the case of Jones and Gaston, two veteran journeymen. Frasier has been a little better, but still far below pre-season expectations. Lyons still is a problem.

The catching has been all right and the outfielding has been brilliant—in one position. Funk is proving a sensation and is an asset in his present environment if his batting average shrinks to .050, which it won't.

RETURN OF BEER TO BRING OUTLAY OF $200,000,000

Brewers Ready for Quick Expansion.

New York, June 24.—[Special.]—The return of beer—tingling cold, foaming, legalized beer—will signalize an overnight rush of orders for millions of dollars worth of new brewing equipment, cereals, bottles and motor truck fleets, a survey among some of the nation's leading brewers revealed today.

Not only will pay rolls be increased, breweries enlarged and expensive new machinery installed, but some of the brewers, anticipating an early change in the prohibition laws, said today that they already have placed orders with manufacturers for additional equipment to be delivered the moment that legalized 4 per cent beer becomes a certainty.

Plans for Expansion.

Other brewers said further that they have carefully worked out plans, either for enlarging their present plants or for buying adjacent property, and building additions to their breweries.

Among half a dozen brewers, comprising the country's leading beer makers, it was estimated today that about 20 million dollars will be spent for new equipment and materials within a week after beer is legalized again. Additional millions, the brewers said, will have to be spent on pay rolls for additional forces of employés.

From St. Louis August A. Busch, president of Anheuser-Busch, sent word today that his brewery "would immediately require additional material and equipment costing seven million dollars."

Millions for Men and Material.

Jacob Ruppert, a leading figure among New York brewers, declared that he would immediately hire 600 to 1,000 men for permanent work and would spend five million dollars for improvements in his breweries.

From Milwaukee the executives of the Schlitz Brewing company reported that they would expend several million dollars for additional equipment, and added that increased expenditures for supplies and labor would total three million dollars.

Col. Ruppert estimated that during the first year of beer's return the nation's brewers will spend approximately 200 million dollars for pay rolls, supplies and extra equipment. Hugh F. Fox, head of the United States Brewers' association, estimated that "the rehabilitation of the industry would require a capital investment of at least 200 million dollars," and from treasury department figures for pre-prohibition days estimated that "a moderate beer tax would produce a revenue of not less than 150 million dollars a year in federal revenue alone, without figuring local and state taxes."

Others Tell of Plans.

"We would have to spend nearly $1,000,000 for immediate wants on the return of legalized beer," said Henry G. Piel, vice president of Piel Brothers, Brooklyn, makers of near-beer.

George Trommer, a leading Brooklyn brewer, now making near-beer, said he had spent nearly $700,000 in the last four years readying his plants for the return of old fashioned beer. He estimated that he would expend from $300,000 to $500,000 additional when beer comes back.

Rudolph Schaefer, president of the Schaefer Brewing company, Brooklyn, oldest lager brewery in the country, said his company already had filed plans for erecting $1,000,000 worth of new buildings and machinery.

Of the 1,100 breweries operating in 1918 only 164 are functioning today. Brewers who have abided by the dry laws estimate that there are 15,000 illegal breweries operating today. The legalized return of beer, they say, would force the bootleg beer back into taxable channels and revive many of the plants now closed and idle.

COMPACT SAVES $2,000,000 ON CITY PAVEMENT LEVIES

Property assessments for joint city-state and joint city-county pavements within Chicago will be reduced approximately twenty-five per cent, or approximately $2,000,000, under a new agreement between State Highway Engineer Sheets and President Benjamin F. Lindheimer of the board of local improvements.

The announcement was made yesterday by Attorney Irvin Rooks, attorney for the board, as the first public hearings on the joint paving projects were indefinitely postponed. He said that under the new arrangement the state will pay the entire cost of a superior and more expensive type of pavement for the lanes free for moving traffic and that the owners of abutting property, who will pay assessments for the parking lanes, will have a voice in determining the type of pavement to be used.

Under original plans the pavement was to have consisted of three inches of asphalt on a seven and a half inch base of concrete, and the property owners, in effect, would have been paying for almost all of the asphalt for the entire width of the street. The state highway department had indicated it would not contribute, under this original plan, more than the cost of its standard concrete slab for the traffic lanes.

Mrs. Alice Wells Dies at Home of Her Son

Mrs. Alice M. Wells, wife of Addison E. Wells, president of the Wells Bros. Construction company, died early yesterday at the home of her son, Harry L. Wells, 20 Green Bay road, Hubbard Woods. She was 74 years old. Mr. and Mrs. Wells moved from Chicago to Tujunga Valley, Cal., some time ago and returned here for the Christmas holidays last year. Shortly afterwards Mrs. Wells became ill, and since then had been confined at her son's home. Pneumonia was the cause of death. Surviving beside Mr. Wells and the son are two other sons, Arthur F. and Percy A. Funeral services will be held at 2:30 p. m. today, with burial in Rosehill.

CHILEAN JUNTA DENIES DRASTIC ACTION REPORTS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SANTIAGO, Chile, June 24.—The junta in control of Chile took steps today to allay alarm in foreign countries, due to dispatches telling of drastic measures the new Socialist government has placed in effect. Carlos Davila, head of the junta, said "such information is absolutely false. The defense and interior ministers will give it official denial."

Minister of Defense Gen. Arturo Puga, said: "Until now nobody has been shot and there has been no break in military discipline. Stories have been transmitted to Buenos Aires by phone, whence they have been sent to the world. This is not patriotic, and I hope that serious papers will not accept them, but will accept only those dispatches filed by their own correspondents, who are freeto enter the government palace and get all the news."

Premier Juan Antonio Rios, who is also minister of interior, said: "The situation in the country is calm. Drastic measures have been announced, but, fortunately, have not yet been put in practice, because citizens, after the chaos left by the late government, are convinced that we are working for tranquillity and reestablishment of normality."

William C. Asay Dead; Former City Prosecutor

Funeral services for Attorney William Cooper Asay, 75 years old, 5553 Wayne avenue, will be held tomorrow at the Bentley undertaking rooms, 2701 North Clark street. Burial will be in Rosehill cemetery. Attorney Asay, who died Thursday in his home, is survived by his widow, Genevieve, and three daughters. He was appointed assistant city attorney in 1892, was city prosecuting attorney from 1903 to 1905, and was assistant attorney for the sanitary district from 1913 to 1919. He had been a member of the firm of Asay & Street since 1925. He was a Royal Arch Mason and a member of the Yale club.

Sentence of Doctor for Death of Girl Is Upheld

The state Supreme court yesterday upheld the 15 year sentence imposed on Dr. Thomas J. Ney of Chicago for the murder by abortion of Miss Elma Bromps, 20 years old, of Angora, Minn. Dr. Ney was found guilty by a jury in the court of Judge Joseph B. David on July 23, 1931. The state's principal witness in the case was Robert Berry, 24 years old, 2258 Indiana avenue, who was the sweetheart of the dead girl. He testified that he paid Ney $50 on April 16, 1931, to engage him for the operation. The girl died on April 26.

SAYS ALLEGED BRIBE BY THEATERS WENT TO LORD'S DAY ALLIANCE

New York, June 24.—[Special.]—The $100 he received from an official of the Theater Owners' Chamber of Commerce was a contribution to the Lord's Day alliance and not a bribe for his promise not to enforce Sunday blue laws, Cornelius McNerney, a field agent of the alliance, testified today at his trial on an extortion charge.

McNerney took the stand today before Judge Charles C. Nott and a jury, to tell his version of what the state claims was an attempt by him to make the independent theater owners in New York pay him tribute on pain of having their theaters closed for opening before 2 p. m. on Sundays in violation of the law.

On the day of the alleged extortion attempt he went to the office of Charles L. O'Reilly, president of the theater group, to protest against theaters opening before 2 p. m. on Sunday. He explained to O'Reilly that numerous complaints had come to the alliance from clergymen, including Canon Chase.

O'Reilly complimented him, the agent said, on his fine work and that of the alliance and offered to "do something" for the alliance. McNerney said he suggested a $1,000-a-week contribution, but O'Reilly said that sum was too great for the 420 theater members to pay and $100 a week finally was agreed upon.

RESTAURANT MEN FIGHT PLAN FOR U. S. CAFETERIAS

A. H. Buck, president of the National Restaurant association, which has its headquarters in Chicago, wired protests to Washington yesterday against a federal appropriation of $750,000 which is to be used to install cafeterias in 15 new postoffices.

"While government officials talk about economy the bureaucrats are anxious to spend three-quarters of a million dollars of the taxpayers' money for restaurant equipment so Uncle Sam can compete with restaurants adjacent to these new postoffices," said Mr. Buck. "The postoffice department raises the postal rates to offset deficits and then increases those deficits by going into the restaurant business in competition with taxpaying citizens."

Before making his protests Mr. Buck conferred with Congressman Joseph B. Shannon. Congressman Shannon is the chairman of a newly formed congressional committee to investigate government competition with private enterprise.

HIRE EXPERTS TO SURVEY ILLINOIS' GOVERNMENTS

The Illinois state commission on taxation and expenditures created by the last regular session of the general assembly employed the firm of Griffenhagen & Associates yesterday to make an analytical study of the multiplicity of governments in Illinois and the possibility of eliminating some of them.

The entire commission, headed by Senator Martin R. Carlson of Rock Island, met to receive a preliminary report from the subcommittee on consolidation, of which Representative Elmer J. Schnackenberg of Chicago is chairman. The services of three experts were considered, those of J. L. Jacobs & Co., of Prof. Simon Leland of Northwestern university, and of the Griffenhagen firm. The bid of the last named, $16,000, was accepted.

It is expected the report of the experts will be ready about Oct. 1 and thereafter public hearings probably will be held. Senator Carlson appointed Senator Richard R. Meents of Ashkum as chairman of a subcommittee to examine the work of the Illinois Emergency Relief commission.

DR. PHILIP FOX DIES IN MADISON AT THE AGE OF 92

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Madison, Wis., June 24.—[Special.]—Dr. Philip Fox, 92 year old dean of Madison physicians and godfather of Gov. Philip Fox La Follette, who was named after him, died in his home here today.

Dr. Fox retired from his profession in 1920 after 57 years of medical practice. Since then he had spent his time quietly at home. He became ill four months ago.

He was a member of a pioneer Wisconsin family tracing its lineage to Rory Fox, prince of Tirin and Earl of Kilcoursey, Ireland. He was born in La Grange county, Indiana, the eldest of seven children, and was graduated from medical college in 1863.

Surgeon in U. S. Army.

In that year he entered the United States army with Wisconsin troops and as a surgeon served in the battles of Cold Harbor, North Anna, Wilderness, and Spottsylvania.

The following year he began the practice of medicine with his uncle, Dr. William Herrimon Fox. He moved to Janesville in 1870, and practiced medicine there for six years, after which he came to Madison.

Dr. Fox was the first physician in this region to perform a tracheotomy upon a patient suffering from diphtheria. He was a highly successful practitioner, adept at diagnosis, and frequently was called into consultation by other physicians.

Attended Late Senator.

While the family physician of the La Follette family here, Dr. Fox helped to bring the present governor into the world. He attended the late Senator Robert M. La Follette throughout his political life.

Gov. La Follette issued a statement this afternoon, saying:

"Dr. Fox was a great physician, endowed with all the skill and wisdom of his profession. There are few families in this community who are not under heavy debt to his wise and devoted professional services. But over and above this, our debt is deeper for the influence of his noble character on the life of every one who knew him.

"To as great an extent as any one I have ever known, he lived his deep religious faith every hour of his life, and carried its sweetness and comfort into the hearts of men and women."

Son and Daughter Survive.

Dr. Fox was named honorary chairman of the inaugural of Gov. La Follette this year, but because of illness he was unable to attend.

Surviving are a son, Dr. Philip Reinald Fox, Madison, and a daughter, Mrs. Carl E. Hilbert. Mrs. Fox died many years ago.

Dr. Fox this year received the first special papal blessing bestowed upon a Madison resident.

Briton Slain in Paraguay; Chief of Police Accused

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina, June 24.—Newspapers of Paraguay report the murder of a British subject, Charles Comber. Police say he was shot to death by squatters on his estate near Yuty. Comber's widow arrived in Buenos Aires today and declares that her husband's murder was instigated by the chief of police of Yuty in revenge for Comber's denunciation of the chief's fraudulent practices. Comber foresaw his fate and appealed to the British minister for protection a month before his murder.

PEOPLES GAS, EDISON, TOO, CUT DIVIDEND

Public Service Also Reduces Rate.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

Reduction in the dividends of the three large Chicago utility companies, formerly under Insull management, was announced last night by James Simpson, who recently succeeded Samuel Insull as chairman of the board of the three concerns.

Mr. Simpson stated that the directors of the Peoples Gas Light and Coke company voted yesterday to place the stock on a $5 annual dividend basis by the declaration of a quarterly dividend of $1.25 a share. The executive committee of the Commonwealth Edison company has approved a recommendation to place the stock on a $5 yearly basis, while a $3 yearly rate for the common shares of the Public Service Company of Northern Illinois has been recommended by Mr. Simpson and the executive committee. All three companies have been paying $8 yearly. Early meetings of the board of directors of the latter company will be called to ratify the recommendations of the executive committees.

First Change in Years.

The action marks the first change in the dividend rates of the three companies for many years. Peoples Gas stock has paid $8 yearly since 1925. No dividends were paid by the company from 1918 to 1922. It was during this period that Samuel Insull took over the management and effected a thoroughgoing reorganization of the company's affairs. Dividends were resumed under the Insull management in 1923 and $5 was distributed to stockholders. In 1923 $6 was paid and then $7 was distributed in 1924. The $8 rate was adopted at the beginning of 1925 and has been maintained since that time.

Commonwealth Edison has distributed $8 yearly to stockholders since 1926. A $8 rate was maintained from 1913 through 1924. After paying $7 a share in 1924 the company adopted the $8 rate, which has been in force since then.

Reductions Are as Expected.

The reductions in the rates of Commonwealth Edison and Peoples Gas were in line with expectations. The drastic cut in the dividend of Public Service company, however, came as a distinct surprise. The $3 rate which was recommended to directors by the executive committee is the lowest ever adopted by the company. Following its organization in 1911 the company paid dividends ranging from $4 to $7.50 yearly until 1926, when the $8 basis was adopted.

Announcement of the dividend reduction precedes by a few days the formal offering of bonds of 70 million dollars by the three properties. The first of the bond issues is expected to be offered early next week by a syndicate of New York and Chicago banks.

Mr. Simpson said that in addition to the dividend revisions the companies are working out a readjustment of salaries and wages of officers and employés. The heaviest reductions are to be made at the top, he added.

Calls Earnings Satisfactory.

"These reductions in dividends and expense are being made to allow all three companies to safeguard their current position, even though their earnings as reported by Arthur Andersen & Co. and Arthur Young & Co. for the year ended March 31, 1932, were satisfactory," Mr. Simpson declared in his statement.

"Commonwealth Edison company reported $5.75 a share available for dividends on its capital stock outstanding as of that date. The Peoples Gas Light and Coke company reported $3.40 per share and the Public Service company of Northern Illinois $8.18 per share on its common stock.

"Net results since April 1 to date justify the expression of hope that earnings for the current year in all three companies will compare favorably with last year," Mr. Simpson continued.

"In accepting my present responsibilities in these companies, the public service nature of the call, in the broadest sense, was a prime consideration. I had in mind a threefold obligation: first, to the customers served; second, to the employes of the companies; third, to the owners of their securities, both bonds and stocks.

"In behalf of all interests the first responsibility of directors is to maintain the financial stability of each of these companies as a going concern, so that it may keep its service unimpaired, keep a competent, efficient operating organization intact, and maintain the low schedule of rates for the service which have been consistently applied in the last decade. The times require that operating expenses must be kept as low as good service will permit. Therefore widespread economies were put into effect before reductions in dividends or the pay of officers and employés were considered.'

Get Consistent Returns.

"Investors in the properties have enjoyed consistent returns for many years," Mr. Simpson added. "Employés have had good pay and good working conditions.

"The customers of these companies have had repeated rate reductions in the last decade. While prices of nearly everything else were going up, staying up, the quality of the service supplied was being steadily improved and rates for the service were steadily reduced.

"To preserve, under present economic conditions, the ability of these companies to continue to protect customers, investors and employés alike, it is essential to maintain and safeguard their cash resources. The above program is directed toward accomplishing this end.

"In the short time I have been associated with these three great companies, I have been greatly impressed by the efficiency of their operating

High Pressure Stock Selling in Packages

BY SCRUTATOR.

Beware of the smooth-tongued stock salesman or the highly optimistic pamphlet issued by so-called "investment services" urging you to buy one share each of a number of stocks at a lump price.

This method of selling securities has spread over the country in the last few months. In fact it has got to be so akin to a "racket" that the New York Stock exchange has been forced to lay down strict rules on such selling by its members.

These lists of securities which are offered to investors are known as "package securities." They vary widely as to stocks, number of shares, and lump price. Usually they are stocks listed on the principal stock exchanges. Moreover, most of them contain a number of stocks of leading American corporations. These are good stocks, as securities go these days, but the lists also contain other stocks that are not so good.

Price Provides "Racket."

It isn't the lists of stocks, however, that constitute the "racket" so much as the lump price at which they are offered. This lump price ranges anywhere from one-fifth to nearly double the aggregate market value of the stocks in the package. The sellers of these "package securities" say the difference is to cover brokerage and transfer charges, etc. Then, too, in the pamphlets offering stocks will be found other things designed to keep an investor on the "sucker list."

One of these pamphlets that came to THE TRIBUNE Investor's Guide this week is a masterpiece of high pressure stock selling. It starts off with a cheerful editorial, gives brief analyses of stocks of several well-known companies and quotes from a number of reputable investment services as to stock market factors and prospects. All this is just stage setting to gain the investor's confidence.

Real Purpose Revealed.

Now comes the real purpose of the scheme, which is to take a handsome profit fom the unwary investor. A "package" of one share each of 25 stocks listed on the New York Stock exchange is offered. The prospective investor is told that these are stocks of the "nation's leading corporations" and "outstanding dividend paying key industry stocks." There also is other statistical information.

Finally the investor is told that the combined high price for this group of stocks was $2,550. And now this "package" is offered for only $260. It seems a wonderful bargain, doesn't it? However, taking the actual market price of each stock the aggregate value of the "package" is only about $190. Thus, a buyer actually pays about $70 more than the stocks are worth in the market. This difference is nearly 37 per cent. In other words, the "package" will have to increase 37 per cent in value before it is worth even as much as was paid for it.

But this isn't all. The sellers of the "package" reserve the right to substitute five other stocks for an equal number of those in the list. So the buyer doesn't know exactly what he is getting, after all.

Offers Special Service.

The pamphlet winds up with an invitation to the investor to open a margin account and let the "investment house" analyze his present holdings of securities. Then, too, there are some market "tips," comment, and advice. And there appears in prominent type the following:

"We are shortly going to release the name of a stock which we believe should prove a moneymaker, and if you are desirous of having the name of this stock, when the information is available, let us know immediately, so that your name can be placed on file."

That's the "come-on" for promoting business in the future. It's a neat "racket," isn't it?

Great Western Reports Decline in May Income

Net railway operating income of Chicago Great Western railroad company for May was $47,384, against $175,688 in the same month last year, a decrease of $128,304. Patrick H. Joyce, president, announced today. Total operating revenues for the month were $1,250,243, against $1,637,889, a decline of $387,646. Total operating expenses amounted to $949,303, against $1,190,903, a decrease of $241,700.

Other railroads to report May incomes were as follows:

KREUGER & TOLL CASE IN U. S. AWAITS FRIENDLY COMPACT

New York, June 24.—(AP)—A hearing before Federal Judge Julian W. Mack, set for today on the question of appointing a trustee for the affairs of the Kreuger & Toll company, one of the firms controlled by the late Ivar Kreuger, was postponed until next Wednesday. That will permit attorneys to continue friendly negotiations toward liquidating the company's affairs in Stockholm, Sweden.

Most of the assets of the company are in Sweden. Samuel Untermyer, attorney for an independent protective bandholders' committee, has urged appointment of a trustee to represent the interests of American creditors. His suggestion has been opposed on the ground that such action might antagonize the Swedish authorities.

A motion for an injunction against the sale of 350,000 shares of Diamond Match stock by four banks which held the stock as collateral on a $3,800,000 loan was withdrawn today before Federal Judge John M. Woolsey, by counsel for the Irving Trust company as bankruptcy trustee for the International Match company.

The block of stock was sold at auction, with the consent of the Irving Trust company, to the Diamond Match company for $5,022,500. The banks which held the stock were the National City bank and the Bankers Trust company of New York, the Union Trust company of Pittsburgh, and the Continental Illinois Bank and Trust company of Chicago.

FRISCO RAILWAY ASKS DELAY IN BOND INTEREST

Adds to Plans for Relief Loans.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, June 24.—The Railroad Credit corporation has agreed to release to the St. Louis-San Francisco railway the $2,014,000 of its consolidated mortgage 4½ per cent bonds that the railroad pledged for a loan of $2,805,175.

These bonds the Frisco would repledge, together with $4,390,000 of new prior mortgage bonds, for a $4,390,086 loan from the Reconstruction Finance corporation.

As security for the $2,805,175 loan the Railroad Credit corporation will retain contributions to the pool in which are collected the freight surcharges that went into effect Jan. 4 and also will retain a second lien on the $2,014,000 of bonds. In effect, the Railroad Credit corporation will transfer the collateral to the Reconstruction Finance corporation while continuing the loan to the Frisco which the collateral secured.

Less Strict on Collateral.

The Railroad Credit corporation is empowered to make loans to railroads for meeting interest charges from the rate pool and it does not require as good collateral as the Reconstruction Finance corporation requires for its loans. The Frisco asked for its new loan from the government on Thursday. Proceeds would be devoted to the payment of $1,000,005 for working capital, $903,248 for taxes and $2,481,138 for bond interest.

The $2,805,175 owed by the Frisco to the Railroad Credit corporation originally was advanced by the Reconstruction Finance corporation, but later assumed by the railroad organization. More recently the government lent $1,800,000 to the Frisco on condition that the railroad reform its capitalization.

To Ask Interest Delay.

The Frisco is completing and expects to submit to the interstate commerce commission early next week a plan of revision which calls for the suspension of at least part of the interest payments in the next few years on its $109,866,000 of consolidated bonds and $92,105,000 of 4 per cent and $25,589,000 of 5 per cent prior lien mortgage bonds. The new prior lien bonds which the company proposes to pledge for the proposed $4,390,086 government loan would be senior to the present prior lien bonds. Some of the new bonds might be used as collateral for bank loans.

From the amounts saved by the foregoing of interest charges reductions in funded debt could be made through the retirement of equipment trust certificates or possibly by the purchase of Frisco bonds in the open market at current low prices.

Loan to Western Pacific.

Washington, D. C., June 24.—(AP)—The interstate commerce commission today approved a loan of $2,264,000 by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to the Western Pacific railroad company.

This is the third approved, the road having previously borrowed $2,102,000 to assist in meeting its fixed charges and to pay expenses.

20 PER CENT OF LAKE ORE FLEET IN COMMISSION

Cleveland, O., June 24.—(AP)—Twenty per cent of the great lakes' ore carrying fleet will be in activity when the nine ships now being fitted out by the Pittsburgh Steamship company are placed in commission. These boats will bring the total number of ore carriers fitted out this year to 67. There are 332 ships of the United States registry in this trade. These figures do not include self-loaders, which carry no ore.

A year ago there were between 50 and 60 per cent of the ore boats in commission, according to figures furnished by the ship statistician of the M. A. Hanna company.

Standard Gas and Electric Units Plan Note Issues

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, June 24.—Two Standard Gas and Electric subsidiaries—Wisconsin Public Service corporation and Wisconsin Valley Electric company—have authorized the issuance of 1-year 6 per cent notes, proceeds from which will be used toward the payment of note issues maturing on July 1 next.

Control Pact to Affect Packing of Cling Peaches

The interest of canned food distributors is focused on the matter of control agreement over the coming pack of cling peaches. Prices in this division show a decided lack of stability, it is claimed, and the whole industry is said to be looking to the leading factors in this pack to correct present conditions.

FEDERAL RESERVE REDUCES REDISCOUNT RATE TO 2½ PER CENT

Directors of the Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago yesterday reduced the rediscount rate on all classes of paper of all maturities to 2½ per cent. The reduction amounted to 1 per cent and restores the rate which was in effect prior to last October when a 1 per cent cut was made.

The new rate encourages borrowings from the reserve bank by the member institutions which, it is believed, will in turn help business to obtain credit. The action of the Chicago institution follows the action by the New York Reserve bank which voted a similar reduction Thursday.

A reduction had been anticipated in financial quarters but the cut of a full 1 per cent came as something of a surprise.

CHEAPER MONEY FOLLOWS CUT IN N. Y. BANK RATE

New York, June 24.—(AP)—Money borrowing rates dipped in spots today in response to yesterday's action by the New York Federal Reserve bank in cutting its rediscount rate to 2½ per cent.

The reserve bank lowered its bankers' acceptance buying rate to 1 per cent on maturities up to 120 days and to 1¼ per cent on longer maturities. These quotations are the lowest since late last autumn. They compare with previous rates of 2½ and 3 per cent, respectively.

This action reduced the reserve bank rates to prevailing quotations in the open market, but two leading dealers in bankers' acceptances, a commercial credit used widely to finance international trade, shaded their previous schedules by ⅛ of 1 per cent. This action brought their charges to ⅝ of 1 per cent bid for 30 to 90 day maturities and 1 to 1¼ per cent bid for longer maturities.

The "official" rate remained ⅛ of 1 per cent higher, as no formal change was voted during the day by the American acceptance council.

Commercial paper quotations were reduced ¼ of 1 per cent, bringing the bid and asked quotations to 2⅛ and 2¾ per cent, respectively.

ELECTRIC POWER EARNS SIX TIMES INTEREST NEEDS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, June 24.—Electric Power and Light corporation's consolidated statement of income for the twelve months ended April 30, 1932, issued today, shows a balance applicable to interest of $10,412,400. This amount is more than 6½ times the total interest on the company, including interest on its gold debenture bonds.

The balance of $8,822,446 after deducting interest was equal to more than 1.7 times the dividends for the twelve months on the company's $7 and $6 preferred stocks.

After dividends on preferred and second preferred stocks net was equal to $1.18 a share on the average number of shares of common stock outstanding.

BANK LOANS OF UNITED GAS ARE EXTENDED 1 YR.

New York, June 24.—(AP)—Bank loans of the United Gas corporation amounting to $21,250,000 have been extended one year from July 20, the maturity date, it was announced today. Electric Power & Light Co., which controls United Gas, in the twelve months ended April 30 earned 88 cents a share on the common stock outstanding at the end of the period, compared with $2.86 a share for the previous twelve months.

Wisconsin Public Service Authorizes Note Issue

The Wisconsin Public Service corporation and the Wisconsin Valley Electric company, both subsidiaries of the Standard Gas and Electric company, have authorized the issuance of one year 6 per cent gold notes, proceeds from which will be used to pay off note issues maturing July 1, next. The new issue of the Public Service corporation will total $2,500,000 and that of the electric company $4,000,000. Both issues will be due June 15, 1933. The Harris Trust and Savings bank is handling the issues in the west.

THINGS APPEAR TO BE BETTER DOWN ON FARM

Price of Hogs Jumps 36 Pct. in 30 Days.

BY HOWARD WOOD.

Business experts who have insisted that the first inkling of a genuine turn for the better would be found in better prices for farm products are pointing to encouraging developments in the live stock markets.

Wheat prices cannot be regarded as a barometer because they are kept down by the farm board's surplus. Both the live stock markets and the dairy business, however, offer cheering news.

Top hogs yesterday at $4.50 were the highest since April 15 and $1.20 above the low point. The general average advanced to a point 95 cents above the low point three weeks ago. During the last thirty days the price of hogs has increased 36 per cent.

This week the cattle market is averaging the best prices since early in January, the gain in values during the last thirty days being about $10 per head.

Expects Gain to Continue.

Charles E. Snyder, editor of the Chicago Daily Drovers Journal, says the prediction is being heard among those engaged in the trade and the packing business that the advance is likely to continue.

This opinion is based on the fact that offerings of both cattle and hogs have been of moderate size, the demand being better than it has been for several months. There is no shortage in supplies, although hogs seem to be in stronger hands and receipts have become lighter as the market has advanced.

"Improvement in these markets," says Mr. Snyder, "will have tremendous effect on the way people feel. Meat is a staple of first rank. It enters into the diet of practically all persons every day. It may be that live stock is showing the way upward and this possibility should not be overlooked.

"Even at higher prices than those now prevailing meats are still relatively lower than many other commodities. Therefore, there is no reason why the gains already made should not hold."

Feed Grains to Hogs.

During the winter and spring farmers had plenty of grain. Unable to get even a fair price for it, they fed cattle and hogs and got them as heavy as possible, figuring that they could get more for their grain on the hoof than through the elevators.

Then when tax bills became due there was heavy selling to raise cash. Practically all the animals were sold except sows, the price of which was so low that farmers found it to their advantage to keep them. This selling process has left the farmers with small reserve stocks. And the demand for meat has increased instead of decreased.

Dairy products have proved to be another outlet for the grain that the farmer could not profitably sell as grain. The per capita consumption of butter has increased steadily during the depression.

Plans to encourage the already increasing consumption of meat were made yesterday at a meeting of the national live stock and meat board, packers and producers' organization, in session at the Blackstone hotel.

BANKERS WIN CASE; BEAT PROMOTERS ON DEAL WITH SCHWAB

New York, June 24.—(AP)—The banking houses of August Belmont & Co. and Speyer & Co. emerged victorious today from the trial of a suit marked by charges of "market rigging" and of sharp practices. Supreme Court Justice Frankenthaler dismissed a $140,000 claim against them.

The claim was presented by Victor Soskice, son of a former Russian cabinet minister, and Michael Kay. They contended the money was due them for promoting the purchase of Charles M. Schwab's holdings in the Chicago Pneumatic Tool company in 1927.

The promoters said they arranged for the purchase by the banking houses of Schwab's 95,000 shares at a price of $16,000,000. Their contention was disputed by Morgan Belmont, senior partner in Belmont & Co. He testified the only transaction he knew of was the purchase of 20,000 shares early in 1928.

For arranging this transaction, Belmont said, Soskice and Kay were paid $20,000 commission.

Soskice testified he telephoned to Belmont to ask what had happened to the larger deal and was told "the old man put something over on us."

The "old man," he said, referred to Schwab.

In questioning Belmont, counsel for Soskice and Kay sought to show that plans for "rigging the market" were made in connection with negotiations to purchase Schwab's entire holdings at $178 a share when their current market value was about $137.

Belmont acknowledged he considered a "set up" by which the bankers could buy the stock from Schwab for $15,219,040 and later sell it for $16,987,490 after the company was recapitalized. He flatly denied, however, that the transaction was ever consummated. The 20,000 share purchase was made, he said, at prices below, rather than above, the quotations.

U. S. Gives Inland Steel $478,887 Credit on Taxes

Washington, D. C., June 24.—(AP)—The bureau of internal revenue announced today it had granted credits of $478,887 to the Inland Steel company, Chicago, for overassessment of taxes for 1919, and 1921-24.

Omit Payment on Curtis Co.'s Common Stock

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, June 24.—Directors of the Curtis Publishing company today voted to suspend dividend payments on the common stock. Three months ago the company paid a dividend of 50 cents, or at a $2 annual rate, prior to which the stock had been on a $4 year basis since June, 1931. Before June, 1931, the firm had paid $6 yearly with special disbursements from time to time.

Earnings of the company reached a peak of $21,534,285 in 1929 and has shown a steady downward trend since that time. Last year net amounted to $12,217,286. Net was $2,643,252 in the first quarter this year, or 72 cents a share on the common.

Directors of several other large corporations voted to revise dividends yesterday or omit payments entirely.

Outstanding exceptions were the Firestone Tire company and Corn Products Refining company, which declared the usual payments.

Maintain Their Dividends.

Corn Products authorized the regular quarterly disbursement of 75 cents a share and Firestone maintained the $1 annual rate through the declaration of a quarterly dividend of 25 cents. The American Ice company also paid its regular 50 cent quarterly dividend.

Harvey S. Firestone, president, reported that net profit of the tire company, including service stores, was $1,639,729 in the six months ended April 30, last. Profit was $2,908,553 in the comparable period of the preceding year.

Stock of the Telautograph corporation was placed on a $1 annual basis by the voting of a 25 cent dividend. Heretofore the company paid $1.40 yearly. C. H. George, president, said that the board made the change because it believes the new rate can be maintained even though business conditions fail to show any improvement. Earnings were $138,874 or 60 cents a share in the first five months of 1932, he added.

Stetson Directors Delay Action.

John B. Stetson company directors failed to take any action of the semi-annual dividend of $1 on the preferred stock which is now due. The dividend is cumulative at the rate of $2 yearly.

Preferred stock of Sharp & Dohme was placed on a $2 basis against the regular rate of $3.50. A quarterly distribution of 87½ cents a share was voted.

Electric Vacuum Cleaner company declared a quarterly dividend of 25 cents, payable July 15 to stock of record June 30. In the last three quarters 50 cents was paid, prior to which the stock was on a $4 annual basis.

Universal Products company has declared a dividend of 15 cents a share, payable July 1 to record June 27. Three months ago 25 cents was paid.

American Home Products company has declared its regular monthly dividend of 35 cents, payable Aug. 1 to stock of record July 14.

St. Croix Paper company declared a dividend of $1.50 on common, payable July 15 to stock of record July 6. Previously $2 was paid quarterly.

CITY TAKES RENTS AS WAY TO GET PAST DUE TAXES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Philadelphia, Pa., June 24.—The city today began trial of a new way of collecting back taxes on real estate without recourse to a sheriff's sale. It plans to confiscate rentals on the property until the amount of the taxes can be made up.

As a precedence Judge Joseph L. Kun in Common Pleas court allowed a rule for the appointment of a sequestrator to collect rents from a property on which no taxes had been paid in ten years.

The petition was filed against a house occupied by the owner, who owes $1,200 taxes plus five years' interest. If he files no answer by July 5 the court will name the sequestrator and fix a monthly "rental" to be paid toward the back taxes.

Irving A. Wingrad, assistant city solicitor, said other similar petitions would be filed.

NEW FEDERAL TAX WILL SEND PLANT TO BRITAIN

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, June 24.—As a result of the new federal taxes the Durium Products company, makers of the paper phonograph records which have had wide sale in this country since 1930, will transfer most of its manufacturing operations from the United States to England, it became known today.

The tax of 5 per cent imposed under the new federal levies, although it amounts to only ⅝ of a cent per record, is enough to render further local manufacture impossible in the present depressed state of business, Ralph H. Maxson, president of the Durium company, said. He accordingly plans to sail for London next week to supervise equipment of a plant at Slough, near London.

EXPORT OF GOLD TO EUROPE 385 MILLIONS IN MAY

3 Billion 980 Million Still Left in U. S.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 24.—[Special.]—In its review of the month the federal reserve board today reported that gold exports increased considerably in May, 385 million leaving the country up to June 8. On the same date the balance of monetary gold in the United States was three billions, 930 millions, a decrease of 826 million from the same date last year. The total that has left the United States since the beginning of this year is 475 million.

The exports largely were to France, the Netherlands, Switzerland and Belgium. This flow of gold to Europe, the report stated, has exerted an influence toward easing conditions in the international money market and increasing the volume of loanable funds in foreign countries.

Fluctuation of Reserves.

The reserve board called attention to the fluctuation of gold reserves in this country in the following summary:

"During the period from 1914 to the autumn of 1931, taken as a whole, there was a net increase in the gold stock of this country of three billion or more than 150 per cent of the amount in the country at the beginning of the period. After the decrease of about one billion from the high point reached in September of 1931, the amount of monetary gold in this country is about four billion compared with one billion, 800 million in 1914, and more than at any time prior to 1923. At the beginning of June, reserves of the reserve banks were one billion, 34 million in excess of legal requirements."

Hold Foreign Exchange.

The central banks of England, France and Netherlands gained gold reserves in the latter part of April. The Bank of England showed the first gain in gold reserves since suspension of the gold standard last September. The increase in the Bank of France was more than offset by a decline in the bank's holdings of foreign exchange. Gold and foreign exchange reserves of the Reichsbank increased by $463,000.

Day's Gold Exports Small.

New York, June 24.—(AP)—There was a net loss of approximately $1,486,000 in the country's monetary stock of gold as a result of today's transaction in the metal.

There were exports of $6,000,000 to Switzerland; $5,002,600 to Belgium, and $1,501,700 to France, but these shipments were largely offset by an $11,002,600 decrease in the stock of gold under earmark for foreign account. On the import side the only transaction was the arrival of $15,700 from Mexico.

BY FRED HARVEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, June 24.—Bank failures in Chicago were brought forward as an excuse for a fresh reaction in the stock market today. There were other factors, of course, among them being the so-called inflationary legislation proclivities of congress, and nervousness over a raft of important dividend meetings scheduled for next week, but the street has grown so tired of such warmed over bits it insists on a new alibi every time its pessimism gets a little out of bounds here of late.

However, the bears were in the saddle today and they rode the list ragged in spots. Various issues of leadership caliber, including American Can, United States Steel common and preferred, Atchison railway, General Motors, Allied Chemical and Dye, International Harvester, Sears Roebuck, and Continental Can were forced to new lows for the major decline, and losses of 3 points were numerous. Auburn Auto dropped 9¼ points, Homestake Mining 8¼, Atchison 3⅝, and Union Pacific 3¼ points.

Some Short Selling.

Brokers reported considerable short selling, chiefly from professional quarters.

Overnight news of the reduction of the federal reserve bank rate had little effect, although it did take the street somewhat by surprise. Initial prices, in fact, were slightly higher in the main. The rail group got upset about something or other after a while, however, and the weakness gradually spread to other sections of the list.

Comment on the midwestern banking difficulties, remote as they are from Wall street—the burden of impending relief legislation and possible "bad news" from the dividend meetings of the boards of American Can, Atchison, Allied Chemical, American Ice and other big corporations next week did the rest. Except for a little halt around noon the price drift was steadily, if slowly, downward, and the close found the various averages seriously threatening their bear market lows established on June 1.

Middle West Selling.

Considerable of the selling emanated from the middle west, chiefly around Chicago. Some of the local liquidation was attributed to efforts on the part of some people to raise funds necessary to meet their July 1 requirements. American Can was driven down to 30⅝ and closed showing a net loss of 2¼ points. Allied Chemical gave up 3½, hitting a new bottom of 45⅜. Auburn Auto sank back to 45, and Steel common went down to 23⅜, with the preferred going to 55⅞. The renewed selling in N. S. Steel, particularly the preferred shares, was based largely on the belief that second quarter operations have reduced the cash of the steel corporation considerably.

An interesting sidelight of the day was the stocks of the Central Aguirre and South Porto Rico Sugar companies, both of which moved against the popular trend to record new high levels for the year. The products of both these corporations enters this country duty free of the 2 cent rate which applies to Cubas. Gossip is that the forthcoming reports of both companies will show satisfactory operating results for the year.

Turnover was around 700,000 shares.

CHICAGO STOCKS DRIFT LOWER IN QUIET TRADING

Shares drifted lower on dull trade on the Chicago exchange yesterday. The volume of business showed little change, with total transactions reaching 18,000 shares.

Quaker Oats common stock was an exception to the trend. On light sales the issue moved up a point to 64½. Commonwealth Edison recovered an early 2 point loss and finished unchanged for the day.

Interest in Swift International continued and the price receded a point to seventeen. Swift & Co. shares were extremely dull and slightly lower.

NOTICE OF CLOSE OF DEPOSITS

Deposits of bonds on the following issues will close on the dates appearing after the issues:

Estimated receipts at Chicago today: Cattle, 200; hogs, 4,000; sheep, 2,000.

A sharply higher wholesale market for fresh pork, coupled with some of the smallest hog receipts in almost four years, drove prices to a 10@25c higher position yesterday. Top hogs soared to $4.50, the highest since April 15 and $1.20 above the low spot, while the general average advanced 15c to $4.10, or 95c above the low of three weeks ago.

On May 28 top hogs were down to $3.30 and on June 4 the general average figured $3.15, these being the lowest marks since 1896. None of the relatively low western markets quoted top hogs below the $4.00 line yesterday, while high eastern centers reported $4.70. Fresh pork loins advanced to 15c per pound, showing 5c gain in less than a week. This equals the highest price for pork since last October.

In a wild advance that had nothing behind it but cold weather and storm receipts last March top loins also went up to 15c and on a bulge last November 14c was reached. Barring these periods prices have been under 12c all winter. The low of 5@8c was made in February.

Hog receipts at Chicago this week, estimating today's supply, is expected to stand at about 84,000, which equals the smallest in 45 months. This total is 27 per cent below the average for the last six weeks and compared with 126,268 a year ago, with 156,038 two years ago, and with a five year average of 144,500.

Cattle Market Does Well.

The cattle market also gave a good account of itself yesterday, although not enough arrived to establish a fair list of quotations in all branches of the trade. Only 1,500 came in and part of these were billed direct into the packing houses from other points. Buyers were on hand in search of good grades at the week's full advance, which amounts to 35@50c, but they were inclined to neglect the poorer classes, particularly animals showing too much grass. The best steers available yesterday sold to packers at $7.10.

All good grades of grain fed cattle, both steers and butchers' stock, were easily disposed of. The cattle market this week is averaging the highest since the week ending Jan. 9. Advances since the low spot a little more than a month ago have elevated cattle values approximately $10.00 per head and added millions of dollars to the returns from sales at leading market centers during the last few weeks.

Few Lambs on Sale.

Comparatively few lambs were left to sell yesterday, when 6,000 directs had been deducted from the supply of 8,000. Prices ruled mostly steady with sorting much the same as it was on the preceding session. Prevailing quotations are still about 75c to $1.00 above the low spot of the season, but 25@40c has been lost in the last week in face of the advance scored in other live stock. Large local packers picked up most good native lambs at $6.00@6.25, while a few ewe and wether lambs were hand picked by yard traders and city butchers at $6.50@6.75. Aged sheep and yearlings sold steady.

Receipts at Chicago for today are estimated at 100 cattle, 4,000 hogs, and 2,000 sheep, against 200 cattle, 6,511 hogs, and 6,219 sheep the previous Saturday and 268 cattle, 4,848 hogs, and 3,378 sheep a year ago.

NORTHERN STATES LIFE IS UNDER FIRE IN INDIANA COURT

Gary, Ind., June 24.—[Special.]—Directors of the Northern States Life Insurance company of Hammond, an $8,000,000 institution, represent a stock investment of only $264. So Earl E. Stroup of Indianapolis, deputy attorney general, charged here today in a hearing on his receivership petition against the company. The hearing before Judge Charles E. Greenwald in Gary Superior court, will be concluded next Wednesday.

Stroup charges directors of the company with manipulations involving the Northern States, Inter-Southern Life, and the Missouri State Life, through the Keystone Holding company. He contended the Northern States was unable to meet $546,000 current obligations. The company has $56,000,000 in outstanding policies.

HEAT MAY CHECK THE BOLL WEEVILS

Hot weather over the south, particularly in the eastern half of the cotton belt, with temperatures 100 to 104 degrees, is regarded as likely to check operations of the boll weevil if continued for a few days. Weevil reports have been more numerous over the eastern belt and caused serious damage. The news, while attracting the attention of cotton traders, had little effect on the market owing to the light volume of trading. There was switching from July to the more deferred months as today is the first notice day on July contracts.

Weather conditions over a large part of Texas and Oklahoma were less favorable, there being too much rain, and complaints of heavy boll weevil infestation continue to be received. Liverpool cables were stronger with a net advance of 2 points. American markets were quiet within a narrow range. The close at Chicago was 6@8 points net lower, and other markets 3@5 points lower. Spots were 5 points lower at New Orleans, at 5.15c, with Galveston the same price, while New York was unchanged at 5.30c and Houston 5.10c.

Exports for the season to date aggregate 8,302,000 bales as compared with 6,880,435 bales a year ago. Prices follow:

organizations and the loyalty of their employes and officers to the institutions with which they are connected."

Audit Data Comes Later.

Details of the results of the audits of the Andersen and Young firms were not made public last night. It is expected that additional information will be supplied when the bond issue of the various properties are marketed next week.

The per share earnings figures which Mr. Simpson issued for the year ended March 31 are those shown by the recent audit. The results in the case of Commonwealth Edison and Peoples Gas differ only slightly from those reported prior to the change in management. In the case of Public Service company, however, the share earnings which Mr. Simpson gives are below the indicated per share profit computed from the results of the earlier statement of the company.

Two Reports Vary.

Mr. Simpson reports per share earnings of $8.18 for Public Service for the year ended March 31. Per share earnings for the 12 month period as computed from the report issued earlier by the company were $11.20. Mr. Simpson's figures of $9.40 a share for Peoples Gas for the same 12 months compares with $10.47 a share indicated by the previous report of the company. The $9.75 a share reported for Commonwealth Edison is approximately the same as the per share earnings indicated in the earlier statement.

Actual comparison cannot be made because the total earnings figures were not announced by Mr. Simpson. The apparent disagreement in the share earnings reported by Mr. Simpson for Commonwealth Edison and People's Gas and those indicated by the earlier statements may be due to some difference in per share capitalization figures from which the results are computed.

WHEAT TRADING BULL; BROKERS STUDY POLITICS

Wheat Declines in the Local Pit.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Politics seethed on the Chicago Board of Trade yesterday, with the result that little interest was taken in the grain markets. The pit presented a deserted appearance owing to the absence of a great many brokers who left with a delegation to greet Gov. Albert C. Ritchie of Maryland and Democratic presidential aspirant on his arrival from the east.

Routine news as to the crops and supply and demand attracted little attention throughout the day. The pronounced weakness which developed in stocks, however, led to some increase in local pressure and wheat dropped around ¾c from Thursday's finish and to within ½c of the lowest figures of the season which were made early in the week. Old July touched 47¾c on the break which was checked by buying against bids. Closing trades were at net losses of ⅞@⅞c with old July 47¾@47c, old September 50@50¾c, and December 53@53¼c.

Await New Developments.

In the last few days there has been a rather pronounced tendency on the part of the trade to pay attention to economics rather than to the ordinary run of news. It is felt that the prevailing price level in itself is commencing to have considerable influence in helping to stabilize the market, although there has been little or no buying. The failure of prices to decline sharply in sympathy with stocks and other depressing factors caused comment yesterday. The average trader is not expressing an opinion as to the immediate trend of the market. The same resistance to pressure is apparent in other grains.

How much winter wheat and other grains will be actually harvested as commercial grain this season is a question that is puzzling the trade. On the basis of the average yield indicated by the government June returns the gross return per acre on wheat on the basis of the prevailing prices for the July future would be around $6.25 and rye on the same basis would return $3.25. Reports during the day indicated fields in the vicinity of Colby, Kas., which promised 7 bu wheat per acre were being plowed up, and also claimed that small farmers were having trouble in financing operations for the crop which should be put in this fall.

Foreign Interest Light.

There is no material demand for North American cash wheat at the present time, and sales of 500,000 bu were indicated in all positions yesterday, largely Canadian, but including a little hard winter. Both Germany and France are expecting large crops this year and may become exporters, according to cables from abroad. On the other hand Rumania, normally an exporter may have little wheat for sale to other countries owing to heavy crop losses.

While the trade is still apprehensive over the probable development of black rust in the spring wheat area it is believed that it is too early in the season for it to become a market influence of consequence. Harvesting of winter wheat while well under way, has not furnished a heavy run of hedging sales so far. The numerous conflicting influences has a tendency to cause traders to keep close to shore pending fresh developments.

The near stagnation in American grain markets is having some effect abroad. Winnipeg reported trade as light and closed ¼@⅝c lower with July at 53⅛c in Canadian funds. Liverpool gained ⅛@⅝c with July at 50⅝c or 3⅛c over the same futures in Chicago.

Cash Corn Sells Slowly.

Eastern demand for cash corn was extremely slow with sales of only 10,000 bu reported by local handlers to the domestic trade and nothing was heard regarding foreign interest. The break in stocks and the subsequent dip in wheat led to local selling of futures with the close ⅛@⅝c lower. July was 29⅝@29⅞; September, 31⅞@32c, and December, 32¼@32⅝c at the last.

Oats closed ⅛c lower with other grains, the July finishing at 20½c; September, 20½c, and December, 22¼c. There was some selling of July by cash interests. Crop comments from the large producing areas were favorable, but the trade does not expect the country to sell new grain to arrive on a liberal scale at the present time, especially as the grain would bring 10c per bu at loading stations in parts of the belt. Rye declined ⅛@⅝c with wheat. July closed at 29¼c; September, 32c, and December, 35½c.

EGG FUTURES RALLY

Butter and egg futures were about steady on the Chicago Mercantile exchange yesterday, butter closing ½c lower and eggs unchanged. October eggs opened higher at the opening, dropped back ⅛c, but recovered at the close. The four market storage figures revealed nearly as great a total storage as last year and receipts were heavier, these items bringing in scattered selling at midseason. Butter news improved again, the Zone markets storing 200,000 lbs less than last year, but support failed to develop material. Sales: Butter, 19 cars; eggs, 50 cars. Prices follow:

WHEELER URGES ROADS TO BUY AT THIS TIME

Favors Self-Liquidating Goods for Them.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, June 24.—The railroads of the country, because of their huge concentrated purchasing strength and distributive ability, have it within their power to turn the tide of depression, H. A. Wheeler, president of the Railway Business association and former president of the United States Chamber of Commerce, today told the mechanical division of the American Railway association.

This can be done by the purchase of self-liquidating goods so profitable to the railroads and important to the country, he said.

"Such purchases would at once increase revenue tonnage, employment and consuming power and also would expand general business operations and serve to break the stronghold of depression," he added.

Need for More Earnings.

It is imperative that railroad earnings increase, Mr. Wheeler emphasized, in order to stabilize railroad securities that must precede a permanent favorable influence on other security issues.

"Failing to secure such stabilization," he added, "savings banks and insurance companies will become increasingly embarrassed in their efforts to maintain reserves.

"In the absence of improved earnings, continuing and larger loans are inevitable from the government sources to meet fixed charges, and such continuation will give the government a stake in the roads sufficient actually to imperil private ownership.

"It would seem," he said, "that self-preservation would suggest the railroads entering the market for the purchase of self-liquidating equipment and supplies, particularly if payments can be arranged so that immediate use of any of their present cash resources will not be required.

Face Record Problems.

"The railroads are facing problems more general and more difficult than heretofore confronting them, and yet in one respect at least here is more than a silver lining to the overhanging clouds. That silver lining is the general and sympathetic public interest that I find everywhere expressed.

"The opportunity now exists to take advantage of this favorable public sentiment to secure relief from too rigid regulation, to secure repeal of burdensome legislation and to bring about either the better control of competitive agencies of such freedom of activity to the roads as will enable them to compete on terms of equality."

Earnings Show Decline.

With a sharp contraction in traffic in May, indications are that May gross and net income of the railroads will show larger comparative decreases from 1931 than recorded for any month so far this year.

The first fifteen roads for the past month had gross revenue of $54,754,494, compared with $77,853,301 for the like 1931 period, a decrease of 29.7 per cent. Net operating income of these carriers totaled $4,569,696, compared with $10,926,478 a year ago, a decline of 58.2 per cent.

In April, gross revenue of the class 1 carriers was 27.6 below that of the corresponding 1931 period, while net operating income declined 49 per cent.

Gross of the first fifteen roads to report for the first five months was 26.9 per cent less than in the like 1931 period, while net operating income showed a reduction of 45.3 per cent.
